Poison for Prisoners.
One Lady Helps Another.
Mistakes Well Meant.
One Short Lynching.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

A NEW IDEA for capital punishment suggested by the Very Rev. Dean Inge, of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, commonly called "the gloomy dean," and indorsed by George Bernard Shaw, is this:

"Don't kill your criminals. Sentence them to death. Lock them up, leave painless poison where they can get it, and let them swallow it when ready."

IT REMINDS you of Dickens' nurse who said, concerning whisky:

"Don't ask me will I take none, but leave it on the mantelpiece and let me put my lips to it when so disposed."

The criminals might not be "disposed" for a long time, if ever.

BUT, REGARDLESS of what the criminals would like, you couldn't pass such a law in this country. Both Protestant and Catholic religions forbid suicide, and where Protestants and Catholics agree lawmakers will also agree.

MR. SHAW WOULD compel the doomed to decide. He would say to the murderer, "For two or three days we shall supply you with poison to kill yourself, painlessly. If you are not dead by such date we shall hang you."

That would make the condemned's last days more complicated than usual, listening to Carlyle's "hammering on the gallows," and looking dubiously at the poison.

IN THE WASHINGTON Herald, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, editor of that Hearst newspaper, publishes over her signature a first-class editorial advocating the election of Mrs. Ruth McCormick, who will run for the United States Senate in Illinois this fall. The Chicago Herald-Examiner reprints the editorial today.

Mrs. McCormick and Mrs. Patterson have been friends since childhood, and the editorial undoubtedly will add to the size of the McCormick vote.

Mrs. Patterson, born in Illinois, is the granddaughter of Joseph Medill, who established the Chicago Tribune, and Mrs. McCormick is the daughter of the late Mark Hanna.

SERIOUS MISTAKES are made with good intentions. Prohibition, that had virtue, innumerable good impulses back of it, produced bootlegging. Bootlegging has organized crime with hundreds of millions yearly income, and crime blossoms out in unexpected forms.

INVESTIGATION of "Tong" murders, in New York's Chinese quarter, shows that certain Chinese have entered the "racketeer" game, so important in our modern civilization.

The humblest Chinese earning a living must pay part to the racketeers.

Big Chinese racketeers are "bosses" in smuggling in Chinese for $2,000 a head.

The crime system is spreading and will spread, while young men otherwise worthless, deadened by cocaine, can earn $500 by pulling a trigger.

IN THE STRONG box of Jack Zuta, a gangster boss in Chicago, recently murdered by other gangsters, interesting things are found.

There is a letter from a police captain asking for the loan of "4 C's," meaning $400. He got the loan, never paid it. There is a check drawn to the order of a state senator, whose name is made public.

OLIVER MOORE, a Negro, 29, was accused of attacking two white girls. The sheriff jailed him, a mob broke into the prison. "Moore walked sullenly down the aisle toward them."

They took him to his home, that the "lesson might be impressed on his neighbors," hanged him to a tree, riddled his body with bullets.

Men in the North will pass judgment on that incident promptly. Some might modify the judgment if they happened to be the father of girls, 5 and 7 years old, similarly treated.

ONE RAY OF HOPE in China, first in some time. Farmers that were starving are making a living raising dogs for their fur.

Five years ago, when the fashion started, dog skins had a value for western barbarian fur dealers of $1.50 each. In many cases in addition, because of religious scruples, the dog owner would not kill the dog, but sold it alive, and let somebody else kill it. But now a good skin is worth $15. On that sum a Chinese can live for three or four months.

WHEN GUTENBERG ran his little press by hand, using the typesetting idea that was to fight the darkness of superstition with light, he printed a simple Bible. One of his bibles now becomes the property of the Congressional Library. One million five hundred thousand dollars bought Dr. Volbehr's book collection, in which the Gutenberg Bible is included. Dr. Volbehr bought the Bible from the monks of St. Blaisus Monastery in Austria for $275,000.

All that would surprise old Gutenberg if he could hear about it. But a modern printing press would surprise and interest him more.

AIMEE SAYS SHE DIDN'T HIT 'MA'

Evangelist and Mother in New Clash Over Temple; Face Lifting Disputed

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 20.—Out of the welter of reports concerning Aimee Semple McPherson, noted evangelist, and her mother, Mrs. Minnie (Ma) Kennedy, the public today mulled over a series of rumors which ran the gamut from the somewhat bizarre charge of "snake-throwing" to broken noses and "face-lifting."

With both Mrs. McPherson and her mother under the care of physicians, the situation today was a maze of contradictions.

From Angelus Temple sources came word that Mrs. McPherson was "near death" in her closely guarded Malibu Beach cottage.

DENIES SHE'S BLIND

Her physician, Dr. Edward M. Williams, stated, however, that her condition was not serious and that she would probably be up in a day or two. Reports that Mrs. McPherson was blind were denied by Dr. Williams.

Mrs. McPherson today denied striking her mother, as Mrs. Kennedy charged, according to an interview in the Examiner, which quoted Mrs. McPherson as follows:

"I did not hit mother. I wanted to talk to her about some things she had been saying and she started to leave the room. I asked her to stay and talk to me. She threw herself on the floor and screamed and yelled, as she had done before. Then she went away and severed all connections with the Temple."

Regarding her physical condition, the Examiner quoted Mrs. McPherson as saying:

"I'm just a sick girl—but I'll be all right soon."

Meanwhile, Mrs. Kennedy, at a Brentwood sanitarium, where she is being treated for a broken nose she accused her daughter of causing, said she and her daughter quarreled over reports concerning the evangelist and her secretary, Miss Mae Waldron. Mrs. Kennedy declared:

"She called me to her house. She acted as if she were wild

Gusmundson, Arctic Hero, Killed in Iowa

SUIT PERILS WORK ON AIRPORT

Pair Occupying Home in Center of Field Seeking Injunction; Price Disputed

More trouble over the county airport loomed today when Charles E. Lutz and his wife, Carrie E., asked Common Pleas Court for an injunction against Allegheny County and the Vang Construction Company to restrain the county from ejecting them from the old mansion house in the center of the airport.

This is the first move of Lutz to forestall ejectment while he prepares a new plea to court to determine the value of the property, which he claims is worth about $1,000 an acre.

When originally appraised by the board of viewers, Lutz was awarded $24,150 for the condemned land. He appealed this appraisal and was awarded $40,000 by a jury in Common Pleas Court.

In the plea for an injunction, Lutz points out that the court proceedings were never legal because the condemnation action was not passed by two successive grand juries. The petition will be heard later in the week.

JUSTICES THROW OUT BROWN'S APPEAL ON LUZERNE BALLOTS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20.—(A.P.)—Gifford Pinchot's nomination for governor by Pennsylvania Republicans at the primary last May was upheld today by the State Supreme Court.

The court denied the petition of Francis Shunk Brown, principal opponent of Pinchot, to throw out approximately 60,000 ballots cast in Luzerne County on the ground that they had been mutilated by perforations.

Pinchot carried Luzerne County by a plurality of 26,000 and the entire state by about 20,000. Had Brown's petition been granted, he would have been the nominee by 6,000.

Substantially, the Supreme Court held that while the Luzerne County Court had exceeded its legal powers, as found in the election laws, by ordering the perforation of the ballots, this was not sufficient reason for throwing out the 60,000 votes cast by means of the perforated ballots.

WILL BE CERTIFIED

This means that James A. Walker, secretary of the commonwealth, will now go ahead and certify the name of Mr. Pinchot as the regular Republican nominee. Mr. Pinchot had pre-empted the party title "Square Deal" to be used in the event that the nomination was taken from him. This will not be used now.

The opinion of the Supreme Court was unanimous. It was made in the form of a per curiam order and opinion; in other words, a brief direction and expression of opinion on the matters at issue.

Shortly after 11 a. m. the members of the tribunal went up on the bench, and within a few minutes the case had been disposed of. Justice Robert S. Frazer, of Pittsburgh, who is acting as head of the tribunal in the absence of Chief Justice Robert Von Moschzisker, who is abroad, handed down the order. With him sat Justices William I. Schaffer, Sylvester B. Sadler and Emory R. Walling. Justice John Kephart is in Europe and Justice Alexander Simpson, Jr., had refused to sit

GRAIN ELEVATOR FALLS, 16 HURT

BALTIMORE, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Sixteen persons were injured and three were reported missing following collapse of the Western Maryland Railroad's grain elevator on the waterfront here today. Fire broke out and all available apparatus was sent to the scene.

The victims were taken to the South Baltimore Hospital. Officials at the elevator said three workmen were unaccounted for and that a search of the debris had been started, although hampered by the flames.

Georgia Legislator Held for Holdup

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—J. H. Kirby, Forsyth County representative in the Georgia Legislature, was arrested today on a charge of robbery in connection with a recent holdup in an office building.

An indictment returned against him charged he entered the offices of the American Finance Corporation, held up employes with a toy pistol and robbed a cash register of $106.

MRS. O'DONNELL WINS 6TH LAP

LORDSBURG, N. M., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, of Long Beach, Cal., won the sixth lap of the women's national air derby today by landing at the Lordsburg airport at 9:03:17, mountain time. Her elapsed time from Douglas, Ariz., was 33 minutes 17 seconds.

Miss Marjorie Doig, of Danbury, Conn., was second, landing at 9:08:12. Her elapsed time from Douglas was 37 minutes 12 seconds.

Miss Ruth Barron arrived at 9:19:04, with an elapsed time of 47 minutes 4 seconds.

Armour Co. Official Hurt in Bus Crash

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—G. M. Willetts, vice president of Armour and Company, was injured, perhaps fatally, and 20 passengers of a Greyhound Lines bus from Kalamazoo, Mich., to Chicago, were shaken up in a collision between the bus and Willetts' automobile on South Parkway, today.

Washington Auto Advertising Scored

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—The Washington Society of this old Virginia town where the father of his country went to church, has adopted a resolution condemning automobile tire covers advertising the George Washington bicentennial celebration as "Beneath the dignity of the man."

Lucky at Numbers, Unlucky in Row With Wife

He hit the clearing house pool for $150, got drunk, abused his wife and went out, later to be found in the home of his divorced wife, is what Mrs. Leo Kelly, of 4556 Penn avenue, told Magistrate James J. O'Connor in Morals Court this morning about her husband.

Kelly, a bit taken back, admitted he was lucky yesterday, also a bit drunk. He was not sure, however, that he struck Mrs. Kelly as hard as she charged in her complaint.

The magistrate turned him over to social workers.

GIVE UP SEARCH FOR BLACK

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Search by airplanes for the body of Van Lear Black, who vanished from his yacht Sabola off the New Jersey coast on Monday evening, was abandoned today.

Three planes which pressed the hunt for the Baltimore publisher for three hours this morning reported that there was such a strong tide out to sea, with ocean currents moving away from shore in such volume that little hope remained for the present that the body would be found near the coastline.

Black was last seen shortly after 9 o'clock Monday night, 18 miles south of Ambrose Channel, sitting on the stern rail of his yacht, his legs entwined around the guard rails and one hand grasping a stanchion. He was smoking.

That day he had flown to Newport to see his twin grandchildren, just born to his daughter, wife of Lieut. Albert J. Bolton. He had boarded the yacht at the wharf of the New York Yacht Club.

Shortly after 10 o'clock his valet went on deck to consult him. Black could not be found.

The captain said he had warned Black many times that his habit of sitting on the rail was dangerous and that he was apt to be thrown overboard if the yacht gave a sudden lurch in a swell.

Gest Gets Discharge In Bankruptcy Case

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Morris Gest, theatrical producer, today obtained a discharge from bankruptcy in Federal Court. Gest filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition last March, but did not list his assets or liabilities.

'HUNCHES' FAIL POOL PATRONS

After all "hunches" are just "hunches" and no more than that.

This became evident today in "numbers" circles when a much wished-for and widely advertised "double"—a number containing the same digit twice—failed to come through.

Strangely enough, the failure of the soothsayer's prediction did not line the pockets of the racketmen, for, since the adoption of the reduced payoff scale which only rates "doubles" and "triplets" a 300-to-1 bet, the play on such combinations has been greatly reduced.

On the other hand, since it was generally conceded that a "double" would come through today, betting also was light in other combinations which net the player 600-to-1.

Since today was the first day the operators throughout the city employed a regulation payoff scale, the operators got a bad break every way.

The "numbers" racket is wandering slowly into the red, and operators agree that something has to be done to increase business, for racketmen have overhead to meet—plenty of it.

Believed Drowned Boys Found Here

OIL CITY, Pa., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Two boys whose bodies were sought in the Allegheny River here advised relatives today that they were safe in Pittsburgh. Firemen and volunteers dragged the river after clothing of the youths, Michael Grigolack, 16, and Frank Stemfrin, 14, was found near the river.

Divorce Granted Wife of Golf 'Pro'

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 20.—Henrietta Thomas Brennan, wife of Francis J. Brennan, former golf professional at the Greensburg Country Club, today was given a divorce by Judge Charles D. Copeland.

They were married in 1927. Mrs. Brennan charged cruel and barbarous treatment.

Bronx Woman Leaps 6 Stories to Death

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Veronica Goodridge, 50, wife of an insurance broker, jumped to her death today from the window of her sixth story apartment in Bronx boulevard, she left notes instructing that her husband be notified.

'Ma,' Aimee Rumpus Due To Rivalry in Temple

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 20.—(INS.)—The latest rumpus between Aimee Semple McPherson and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, was caused, as far as it could be determined, by internal friction in administering the affairs of Angelus Temple. Today the situation stood as follows:

MOTHER—She hit me on the nose.

DAUGHTER—I did not hit her—she threw herself on the floor.

MOTHER—She is a genius—but she has an unhappy faculty of picking the most terrible associates. Aimee has no idea of business.

DAUGHTER—My flock has called me an iron woman, because I worked almost every hour of the day.

MOTHER—If I hadn't been weak from the effects of my face lifting operation I would never have been knocked down.

DAUGHTER—Miss Schaeffer and Miss Jordan, who were in the house, know that I did not strike her.

MOTHER—I may be an old lady, but I can take care of myself.

DAUGHTER—I am just a sick girl, but I'll be all right soon.

MOTHER—If my daughter will take my advice, she will get out of bed, dress herself and go back to work.

DECISION STIRS STATE LEADERS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20.—(INS.)—The immediate effect of the State Supreme Court decision today upholding Gifford Pinchot's nomination for governor was to cause a stir among leaders of the Republican organization throughout the state.

Usually in Philadelphia it has been the custom of the state committee to meet and formally indorse the nominees of the primary soon after the results are announced. But this year that indorsement was withheld pending settlement of the dispute. There also has been some disaffection among anti-dry Republicans here over Pinchot's victory and many were reported secretly favoring John M. Hemphill, the Democratic and Liberal party candidate.

Pinchot Pleased, Brown Refuses Comment

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—After reading the opinion of the State Supreme Court which today upheld his nomination for governor, Gifford Pinchot issued this statement:

"I am, of course, glad to be technically as well as actually the choice of the Republican voters. Nothing remains but to win by a smashing majority in the fall, and carry out my platform afterwards."

Francis Shunk Brown, defeated candidate, whose appeal was denied, left for a cruise on his yacht after being informed of the decision. He said:

"I have no comment to offer."

HARRISBURG, Aug. 20.—(INS.)—"It will at least clear the political skies." This was the only comment Gov. John S. Fisher would make today when informed of the State Supreme Court's decision in the Luzerne County ballot case.

LEADERS HERE BACK PINCHOT

Republican political leaders in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, many of whom supported Francis Shunk Brown, after learning the supreme Court decision upholding the nomination of Gifford Pinchot for governor, generally accepted the decision philosophically and expressed their intention to work for the ticket as it now is constituted, at the November election.

No expressions of opposition were heard. County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman of the Allegheny County Davis-Brown campaign committee, and Joseph N. Mackrell, Western Pennsylvania chairman, together with city administration leaders, pledged their support to Pinchot. Mayor Charles H. Kline indicated his support of the nominee before leaving on his European trip. State Senators James J. Coyne, supporter of Pinchot at the primary; Frank J. Harris and William D. Mansfield, previously announced their support of Pinchot regardless of the Supreme Court decision.

Here are some expressions of officials and party workers:

JOSEPH G. ARMSTRONG, county commissioner, chairman of Davis-Brown ticket for Allegheny County—I went into the recent Republican primary, had my choice, which was not Gov. Pinchot, and did everything in my power to help Francis Shunk Brown in opposition to Pinchot.

Pinchot is now the candidate of the Republican party and, playing the game as I have always tried to play it, it is my duty, as well as the duty of every other Republican who entered that primary, to give his support to the regular ticket nominated at that time.

Gov. Pinchot being one of that ticket, he is entitled to my support without any obligation of any kind.

E. V. BABCOCK, county commissioner—I have always voted for

CABINET TO RESIGN IF CAROL SEEKS CORONATION ALONE

ULTIMATUM FOLLOWS RUMORS

Premier Acts to Forestall New Romance and Further Reconciliation With Helen

International News Service.

BELGRADE, Aug. 20.—An ultimatum threatening resignation of the Rumanian cabinet, if King Carol consents to coronation before a reconciliation with his wife, Princess Helen, has been effected, was delivered to the monarch today by Premier Jules Maniu, it was reported here.

Premier Maniu, the reports declared, served decisive notice to this effect following rumors that the Rumanian king virtually had abandoned hope of a reconciliation and was planning either a morganatic marriage with Mme. Magda Lupescu or an alliance with the Princess De Guise, daughter of the pretender to the French throne.

Carol's coronation, originally set for October 16, has been deferred because of his domestic troubles and in the hope they would be patched up by next spring.

REFUSES TO ACQUIESCE

Premier Maniu, it was said, is determined not to acquiesce in the coronation of Carol without Helen by his side. This lends additional confirmation to prevalent rumors that a serious political situation may develop over the king's matrimonial difficulties.

King Alexander, of Jugo-Slavia, has thrown the influence of the Jugo-Slav court toward efforts to bring about a reconciliation between Carol and Helen, it was learned here today.

In spite of Carol's other plans, Rumania still believes a reconciliation ultimately will be effected.

Princess Helen, it is understood, insists Carol renounce Mme. Lupesco forever as a condition to reconciliation.

NEW ROMANCE RUMORED

BUCHAREST, Aug. 20.—(INS.)—A political rift threatened further to complicate affairs of King Carol today, whose domestic life since his seizure of the Rumanian throne has been redundant with strife and dissention.

Alternately reported as reconciled or definitely parted from Queen Helen after her steadfast refusal to assume her place on the throne beside the man from whom she secured a divorce when he renounced his royal status for the love of red-haired Magda Lupescu, the King is rapidly losing popularity among his own supporters. The government as well as political leaders are suddenly developing a pronounced sympathetic attitude toward Helen.

Meanwhile the name of another European beauty was linked with that of Carol. Current rumors intimated that political and royal circles would favor a marriage between Carol and the Bourbon Princess de Guise, daughter of the Duke de Guise, pretender to the French throne. Carol was frequently seen in her company during his sojourn in Paris.

BAR CONTINUES DRY POLL

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—The American Bar Association today voted to continue its membership prohibition referendum. The action was taken at the first plenary session of the organization's convention, after opponents of the prohibition poll had taken to the floor their fight to have it abandoned. The vote was approximately 10 to 1, with 2,000 members voting.

The action came when James F. Ailshie, of Coeur D'Alene, Idaho, introduced a resolution to stop the referendum on the ground that it was not within the object and purpose of the association and was contrary to the constitution and by-laws.

Cadets Will Stage 'A Night in Spain'

WEST POINT, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—The summer camp of the cadets of the Military Academy will be illuminated Saturday night following a custom set by Washington in 1781, when the post was lighted up in honor of the birth of the Dauphin of France. But the theme Saturday will be Spanish. Guests will have Spanish costumes and the camp will be arrayed to represent "A Night in Spain."

AIMEE, 'MA' VARY STORIES

when I got there. She accused me of talking about Miss Waldron and herself. I denied this, but I did tell her I said something about some of her associates.

"Then things began to happen so quickly that I can't remember all. I was on the floor—and my poor nose was killing me."

Mrs. Kennedy said that she then made preparations to go to Olympia, Wash., to dedicate a church, adding:

"My nose kept getting worse and worse. I rushed back here for treatment. My nose turned blue and green and I realized I was badly hurt."

HAS FACE LIFTED

Mrs. Kennedy then revealed that previously she had submitted to a face-lifting operation at a Brentwood sanitarium. She also stated that Mrs. McPherson had a similar operation.

Adherents of the evangelist also denied that she had had her face lifted. Reports were current here, however, that the evangelist had submitted to such an operation at Budapest, while she was abroad, and that she had another one performed here to remedy certain results of the first one.

Then there is the business of the "snake-throwing."

This proved to be a somewhat elusive episode.

Miss Waldron is reported as saying that a woman came to the temple about 10 days ago and tossed a big boa constrictor into Aimee's room, whereupon the evangelist collapsed.

SNAKE STORIES

The report that the snake, in reality, was tossed at Mrs. Kennedy by Miss Waldron and Mrs. McPherson, in order to frighten the former from the temple, was hotly denied by Mrs. Kennedy. She said:

"Whoever said that has a depraved and a diseased mind. I never saw the snake, and I know nothing about it."

Miss Waldron was emphatic in denying that Mrs. McPherson's face was lifted. She declared:

"No, it certainly is not true."

Mrs. Kennedy was equally insistent that such an operation had been performed on her daughter, saying:

"Mine was certainly lifted—what of it? So was Aimee's—she won't deny it if you ask her."

4 AUTOS TOWED FROM STREETS

Rigid enforcement of parking regulations in the downtown triangle is being continued by the traffic division of the Department of Public Safety.

Four cars were towed to city garages yesterday because drivers ignored "no parking" signs.

Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey said yesterday that he has inaugurated no new regulations, but as long as he is inspector the existent regulations "will be enforced to the letter."

Automobiles parked at night in alleys are being tagged by traffic patrolmen. This practice, Dorsey and Fire Chief Richard L. Smith said, is a hazard because congestion of narrow alleys blocks movement of fire apparatus.

The cars towed in yesterday were from Fifth avenue, Smithfield and Diamond streets. One was owned by Samuel Beyer, of Allison Park, who pleaded ignorance of the parking regulations.

DROUGHT BOARD TACKLES FIVE PROBLEMS

Credit, Feed for Livestock, Ban on Food Profiteering First to Engage Attention

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—President Hoover's drought relief committee began informal conferences today, devising plans for federal co-operation with the states in relieving agriculture throughout the sun-baked areas of the nation.

The President has turned the problem over to the committee of eight, headed by Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, with the admonition to utilize state agencies wherever possible, in administering aid.

For this reason, additional federal aid measures will await the formation of city organizations in the states. As soon as these are established, federal help will be extended.

FACES FIVE NEEDS

The Hyde committee and the state organizations have these five major needs to meet:

Providing credit facilities for carrying farmers in the devastated areas through this season and next year's planting.

To feed livestock now and through next winter in the barren sections.

To prevent profiteering on foodstuffs throughout the nation.

To furnish supplies to individual farmers, whose crops were destroyed.

PICKED FOR PURPOSE

The President apparently had all these in mind when naming his committee. He appointed the undersecretary of the treasury, Ogden L. Mills; Roy A. Young, governor of the Federal Reserve Board; Paul Bestor, farm loan commissioner, and Henry M. Robinson, prominent Pacific Coast banker, to handle the farm credit problem.

Young and Bestor are familiar with every phase of it. Mills and Robinson are financial experts.

Hyde and Chairman Legge, of the Federal Farm Board, will deal with the problem of feeding livestock. A suggestion already made is to use the 75,000,000 bushels of wheat, purchased by the Farm Board to stabilize prices, several months ago, selling it to farmers in the devastated districts at a low figure and on long-term credit.

DUE TO MEET MONDAY

The committee probably will hold its first formal session Monday. Robinson must cross the continent to participate.

The wide extent of the drought was demonstrated anew when Hyde published a revised list of counties in which freight rates will be slashed. So far, he has recommended this emergency relief for six counties in Illinois, 36 in Indiana, 73 in Arkansas, 62 in Missouri, and some in Kentucky, Tennessee, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, Wyoming, Montana, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

Since the week-end, Mother Nature has furnished relief through the medium of refreshing rains. Weather Bureau officials, however, declared that these, while replenishing springs and streams, have not been sufficient to revive the sun-baked lands in the drought area.

Open Air Mass Held In Honor of Saint

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—An open-air high mass in honor of St. Emery of Hungary, was attended yesterday by many eminent European prelates and bishops. The Rt. Rev. John Noll, of Ft. Wayne, Ind., and Bishop Joseph Schrembs, of Cleveland, two American bishops, joined in the ceremony.

The mass was celebrated on the banks of the Danube in the presence of an enormous crowd.

BONUS REVISION ADVOCATED AT MERGER SUIT

System Has Served Purpose, Says Witness, Director Of Both Steel Companies

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Bethlehem Steel Corporation's system of paying large bonuses to its executives—the target of an attack by the forces opposing the merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube with that concern—has served its purpose but now should be revised, Henry G. Dalton, of Cleveland, director of both companies, testified at the hearing on the merger yesterday.

Dalton, who previously had testified under cross examination in the suit to enjoin the merger, was called to the stand for further cross questioning by plaintiffs' counsel.

As soon as Dalton took the stand, Attorney Luther Day, of plaintiffs' counsel brought up the Bethlehem bonus plan.

RUMORS OF AMOUNT

Dalton said he had heard rumors as to the amount of bonuses Bethlehem paid, shown by previous testimony to have been approximately $3,200,000 in 1929, of which Eugene Grace, president, received $1,600,000.

Day asked:

"Don't you think Bethlehem's bonus plan was important information which the Sheet and Tube stockholders were entitled to have?"

Dalton answered:

"I think it was important to everybody."

"And everybody includes Sheet and Tube stockholders?"

"Yes, I think so."

JUDGE INTERPOSED

Judge David Jenkins interposed a question to learn whether the bonus plan would have materially affected earnings on the converted stock. Youngstown having agreed to exchange each share of its own stock for one and a third shares of Bethlehem.

Dalton answered:

"It would have affected the converted stock to some extent, but not materially."

Attorney Day interposed:

"It would be a couple of dollars a share, wouldn't it?"

The witness answered:

"No; I'd say about a dollar a share."

Although admitting Bethlehem's bonus should be revised, possibly downward, Dalton delivered a defense of the plan. He said:

"After the World War Bethlehem had very little commercial business. The conversion of the Bethlehem plants into peacetime organization required eight years. It cost over $200,000,000. The men who took over the job acquired two steel plants which were not getting along and finished by bringing up the Bethlehem plant to a position where it is second only to United States Steel.

"Considering what they have accomplished I wonder if it (the bonus) is such a tremendous sum."

RESCUE SHIP CHEERED AT ISLE PORT

Two Women Who Fainted Only Casualties in Sinking Of Tahiti, Heroes Tell

PAGO PAGO, Samoa, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—When the trans-Pacific liner Tahiti sank in the South Seas last Sunday the net effect among her 317 passengers and crew members was the fainting of two women during rescue operations.

Stories of the remarkable rescue echoed through Pago Pago today as the steamer Ventura left for San Francisco after making a seven-hour stop here to facilitate handling the Tahiti survivors.

The Ventura, which made a 700-mile dash to the Tahiti and snatched her human cargo from the face of a threatening sea just before the doomed vessel went down, arrived here yesterday afternoon and departed last night amid the tumultuous cheers of all Pago Pago.

"WELL DONE"

The air lanes were swamped with messages of thanks and congratulations for Capt. W. R. Meyer and the crew of the Ventura. A banquet was given to rescuers and rescued. First Assistant Engineer Thompson, of the Tahiti, also was hailed as a hero.

Every signal station in the harbor spelled out "well done" in international code flags as the Ventura approached. Every available whistle and other noise-maker in Pago Pago was brought into play to greet the ship.

The cool-headedness of Capt. A. H. Toten, of the Tahiti, and his crew came in for large measures of praise. For three days fear held sway on the stricken liner, and twice it appeared she was about to go down with all hands, but there was no disturbance.

RESCUERS DARED

The Ventura effected the rescue less than three hours before the Tahiti disappeared beneath the waves.

The 700-mile dash of the Ventura was believed to have been the longest of its kind on record. She turned about, raced through virtually uncharted seas, making 16 knots under forced draft through rough water, and arrived alongside the sinking ship in 47 hours.

All hands, passengers, luggage, mail and a consignment of gold were taken aboard. Everyone escaped without a scratch. The two women who fainted were revived by ship's physicians.

ENDS HIS LIFE ON JAIL PYRE

WARREN, Pa., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Building a fire in the county jail, Frank McKoon, 28, succeeded today in his second attempt at suicide by standing in the flames until fatally burned.

He was awaiting trial on the charge of first-degree murder in the killing of Mrs. Mabel Lindquist at Sugar Grove, last Memorial Day. The trial was to start Sept. 2.

The prisoner lighted the fire in the washroom of the cell range. Found at 4:30 a. m., he died five hours later.

McKoon first tried to kill himself when Mrs. Lindquist was slain but he recovered from the bullet wound.

Death Claims Noted Church Architect

WILMETTE, Ill., Aug. 20.—(INS.)—Friends and relatives today mourned the death of Louis Bourgeois, 74, the internationally known architect, who died at his studio home here last night.

Bourgeois, during his career, had designed gothic type churches throughout the United States, and in Canada and Europe. The body is to be taken to Sacramento, Cal., for burial.

France Clears American Suspected as Spy

PARIS, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—A Paris military tribunal today solemnly absolved Charles Leopold Hartmann, of Hollister, Cal., from all stigma of having been a German agent during the World War, recalling the death sentence passed upon him in 1919.

The court, in rescinding the death sentence, transferred it to "an unknown person who usurped Hartmann's identity."

Hartmann is an American citizen 75 years old. He was arrested on charges of being a German spy when he made a visit to his birthplace in Alsace.

A net of circumstantial evidence had been woven around Hartmann by the activities of the [illegible] who had assumed his [illegible] the French government, in clearing the Californian, acknowledged that a singular case of mistaken identity had caused his arrest at Nordheim.

The American, a hotel man, through the embassy, obtained proof that he had lived in the United States since 1872 and had not left that country until he sailed July 3, to visit his old home for the first time in a half century.

A court martial in 1919 had convicted the alleged spy, who had received a death sentence by default.

Famous Gutenberg Bible For Congress Library

VIENNA, Aug. 20.—(Universal.)—What may be the last transaction ever affecting the 42-line Gutenberg Bible of the St. Blasien Monastery, St. Paul, took place today when the famous old book, purchased by Dr. Otto Vollbehr, of New York, for $275,000 four years ago, reached him at the American Embassy here.

The Bible will be taken to the United States by Dr. Vollbehr for inclusion in the Library of Congress, with other famous early prints. It is a part of the Vollbehr collection which he offered to the United States Government last year, and for the purchase of which Congress appropriated $1,500,000 this year.

The Bible is the work of Johannes Gutenberg, the Mainz and Strasburg inventor, who conceived the first printing press. It is in three volumes, printed in Latin on fine vellum, and is called the "42-line" Bible because there are 42 lines on each page. The St. Blasien Bible always has been believed one of the most valuable Gutenberg Bibles known.

Henceforth, after the volumes reach Washington, they will repose in a glass case near the Declaration of Independence. It is planned to have future presidents take their oath of office upon the famous print.

CIGARET THEFT LOOT $14,000

Lowering themselves on a rope through a hole cut in the floor of an apartment on the second floor of the building, robbers escaped with $14,000 worth of cigarets from the N. Rice Cigar Company, 1635 Fifth avenue, early today.

The robbery was discovered when employes arrived to open the place for business.

The loot apparently was loaded on a truck in an alleyway back of the building, and hauled away. The door of the apartment on the second floor had been jimmied.

The robbery was planned carefully. The thieves had worked for probably several hours cutting the hole in the floor through which they lowered themselves.

Two safes in the office of the store, a wholesale tobacco distributing concern, were not disturbed.

About nine years ago the Rice Company was robbed, and at that time also the loot was confined to cigars and cigarets.

Mexico Decreases Duty on Auto Parts

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—To encourage the establishment of automobile assembling plants in Mexico, the government lowered by one-half the import duty on parts destined for reassembly.

By this means automobiles assembled here will have to pay only half the tariff charged for cars already assembled.

WIDOW DEPICTS 'ATTIC' KILLING

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20.—(AP.) Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich, taking the witness stand in her trial for the murder of her husband, Fred Oesterreich, testified that Otto Sanhuber, her former admirer, shot the wealthy ex-Milwaukee manufacturer. Sanhuber, convicted of manslaughter, has been freed under the statute of limitations. She said:

"We had just come in the front door, the night of August 22, 1922, when the shooting occurred. I don't remember which of us went in first. It was about 11 o'clock. After we got to the living room, Fred put one hand on my shoulder and said: 'Dolly, you look pretty good to me tonight.'

"I slipped on a rug, fell to the floor and let out a scream. Then I saw Otto on the stairs. He shouted 'stop.' Then he shot once.

"The next thing I knew Fred was on the stairway landing, struggling with Otto, and then I heard some more shots. I called out, 'Fred, oh Fred!'

"'Dolly, where are you?' I then heard Otto call. He ran down into the living room, grabbed me by both hands and pulled me upstairs. I asked him to let me go down, but he wouldn't. He pushed me into the closet and locked the door."

LEGION BAN MAY OUST PASTOR

Directors of Church Vote Dismissal But Final Action Rests With Congregation

IRON BRIDGE, Wis., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—The directors of St. Mathew's Evangelical Lutheran Church here today voted the dismissal of its pastor, the Rev. John Henning, because he had refused to admit several American Legion members to communion service.

However, the board's action is not final. The case now will be laid before the congregation for approval. No date for the hearing has been fixed.

The pastor said the Legion was considered anti-Christ and consequently a heretical group. Rejection of Legionnaires, he declared, was not absolute but he had excluded Legion members who sought his advice.

The board earlier had been reported as asking the pastor either to resign or to admit all Legion members to communion. Newspapermen were banned from the meeting.

Evangelical Lutherans of the Wisconsin and Missouri synods are to consider refusing church membership to Legionnaires at a meeting in Milwaukee next month. The basis of the move was stated by church members, who said the foundation of religious services is Christ. The Legion, they aver, is non-sectarian and hence, necessarily ignores Christ in its religious services. And the ignoring of Christ is heresy, they contend.

OFFICIALS SURPRISED

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Officers at the national headquarters of the American Legion here expressed surprise when informed that the Rev. John Henning, Evangelical Lutheran pastor at Iron Ridge, Wis., had objected to "religious services" of the Legion organization.

James F. Barton, national adjutant, said:

"We have no religious services or exercises, strictly speaking.

"We are a non-sectarian organization and admit members with utter and complete disregard of their religious beliefs and creeds. I recall that at one time, however, some pastor wrote to the national headquarters with some objection to our activities, but I do not recall just now what the specific objection was."

The prayer of the Legion, Barton said, was adopted at a national convention and worked out by a committee representing every faith found within the ranks. It is used in the initiation ceremony, he added.

BRITAIN AWAITS BIRTH NEWS

GLAMIS, Scotland, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—There was little news today from Glamis Castle, where the Duchess of York is awaiting the birth of a royal baby, but some one discovered that most people have been mispronouncing the name of the castle.

The chances are that most people in the United States say "Glamm-iss." Over here they have been asking:

"Has the happy event occurred yet at 'Glahms'?"

Now they find that they should say:

"Is there any news from 'Glarms'?"

The latter pronunciation is given by Debrett's peerage, than which there is no higher authority on such matters.

Meanwhile, the duchess continues the normal routine of quiet life in her ancestral home. The duke went shooting on the moors near the castle yesterday and has a tentative engagement for grouse hunting today.

CAREY LEADING IN WYOMING

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Robert D. Carey, former governor, led the field of Republican senatorial aspirants both for the short and long-term nominations with the tabulation of scattered returns in yesterday's primary.

Figures from 189 of the state's 680 precincts gave for long term: Carey, 4,808; Charles E. Winter, former congressman from Casper, 3,407; W. C. Deming, Cheyenne publisher and former United States civil service commission president, 1,561, and W. L. Walls, Cheyenne attorney, 502. Short-term figures are relatively the same.

Walls was running on an anti-dry platform, advocating repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Among the others there was no issue, but personality played the leading part.

Senator Patrick J. Sullivan, Casper, was not a candidate in the primary.

Democrats went into the primary with a single candidate for each office and without contests.

Gov. Emerson was leading the Republican ticket for the gubernatorial nomination with 6,832 votes in the precincts reported. His opponent, W. H. Edelman, state treasurer, had polled 1,992.

Sets 2-Way Record For Crossing U. S. in Auto

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Cecil Hawley, son of Congressman Willis C. Hawley, of Oregon, arrived in New York last night at 10:25, Pittsburgh time, claiming a new record of 69 hours and 20 minutes for the 3,000-mile automobile drive from Los Angeles to New York.

Hawley bettered the time of 84 hours and 20 minutes established by "Cannonball" Baker, whose New York-Los Angeles record of 69 hours and 29 minutes was also taken from him when Hawley reached the West coast last Saturday in an elapsed time of 67 hours and 38 minutes.

NEW FIND LINKS GANGS, POLITICS

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(INS.)—Additional evidence revealing the partnership of Chicago politics and crime, said to be more sensational than any heretofore, was reported in the district attorney's possession today, following the raid on another safe deposit box held by Jack Zuta, slain gang leader.

Although the investigators declined to reveal the nature of the records uncovered, they intimated that the evidence will prove far more disturbing than did Zuta's first records which involved judges, politicians and police officials.

The safe deposit box was found in the vaults of the Security Trust and Safe Deposit Company, where the first of the slain gang leader's caches was located last week.

Among the papers was one giving clues to the whereabouts of two trunks, both jammed with papers and records preserved by the business-minded member of the Aiello-Zuta-Moran gang. These will be opened today.

DRY LAW ISSUE, LEWIS INSISTS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic candidate for United States senator, in his keynote address at the state convention today, urged modification or repeal of the Volstead act, the Eighteenth Amendment or any portion of either which cannot run concurrently with the rights and privileges of the state.

In his first speech of any length since being nominated to run against Ruth Hanna McCormick, the Republican nominee, Lewis blamed prohibition for official corruption, economic ills and the despair of farmers. He said the farmers again should be permitted to profit from the medical and mechanical uses of the juice from their grain.

Lewis, a former senator, urged that the citizens bring back the government to the people. He demanded a state free of theft and murder by "national prohibition highwaymen."

Predictions were current that adoption of the platform today would find downstate and Cook County Democrats agreed on a demand for blanket repeal of the prohibition amendment and of supporting legislation.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Dr. Miner Lee Bates, 61, former president of Hiram College, Hiram, O., died at a hospital here last night. Dr. Bates was made president of Hiram in 1908. He resigned last November. He had held pastorates in East Orange, N. J., and New York.

QUIZ IN SWIFT'S DEATH OPENS

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Inquiry into the death of William L. Swift, son of the millionaire Chicago parker, was to be opened here this afternoon.

Swift shot himself while a patient in a sanitarium conducted by Dr. Edward S. Cowles, who was expected to be the chief witness.

Examiners said they would attempt to find out how Swift obtained the gun with which he killed himself and also to determine which of several conflicting stories concerning his death was correct.

Adolph Hellmanek, Swift's male nurse, will be questioned as to whether he was with his patient when he fired a shot through his heart.

The revolver with which Swift killed himself Saturday night was purchased in Chicago August 9, 1929, by a person who gave the Union Stock Yards in Chicago as his address, New York police have learned.

Swift shot himself while a nurse was attempting to wrest the gun from him, it was reported.

MYSTERY FLIER IN ICELAND

REYJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 20.—(INS.)—A Dornier Wahl seaplane manned by the German pilot, Gronau, an ex-naval officer, was eyed with curiosity today as the goal of the flier remained curtained in mystery.

The plane appeared suddenly on the horizon of the Atlantic last night, bringing the coast residents from their dinner tables in amazement. It was reported Gronau planned hopping off for Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, and the United States, but this remained unconfirmed.

BAMBERGERS YIELD IN DISPUTE

Give Dissatisfied Father Infant He Claimed, But Deal Fails to Please Him

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Another complication punctuated the Watkins-Bamberger baby scramble today after William Watkins had returned home to find that in his absence his wife had been persuaded to trade infants with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bamberger.

Telephoning for his lawyer, Watkins declared:

"There wouldn't have been a baby trade if I had been home. How do I know which baby is whose? The courts were going to settle that question."

The trade was effected last night at the Watkins home. Both mothers wept, hugged their infants for a last time and the trade was made.

RELIGIONS MIXED

Mrs. Watkins took the infant which had been given a Catholic baptism as George Edward Bamberger, and the child which was christened Charles Evans Watkins by a Presbyterian clergyman, went to the Bamberger home.

Both babies were born on the same afternoon in Englewood Hospital. Ten days later Watkins discovered his child was labelled "Bamberger," and the Bambergers found a "Watkins" tag on their infant. A jury of scientists decided the babies had been switched, but the Bambergers refused to agree to a trade at that time.

The case is still awaiting official decision in Superior Court.

Last night's exchange was effected under the watchful eye of Dr. Arnold Kegel, city health commissioner.

BAMBERGERS YIELD

A committee of experts headed by Dr. Kegel had decided the babies were in the wrong families. Dr. Kegel said the original mixup happened in marking the clothing of the babies.

The Bambergers, after reviewing the findings of the medical board of experts, finally decided yesterday to give up the baby the Watkins claimed.

Mrs. Watkins appeared elated when the Bambergers, their attorney and Dr. Kegel appeared last night, saying:

"Oh, I've always wanted that baby. It's mine. But how will we do it?"

Mrs. Bamberger replied by starting to undress the infant she held in her lap. Mrs. Watkins followed suit and soon the women held their new babies.

HUNT ANOTHER IN DEATH PLOT

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—A fourth man is sought today in connection with the alleged conspiracy to assassinate Gov. Doyle E. Carlton, it was learned from authorities.

Meanwhile, Vincent C. Giblin, of Miami, attorney for Alphonse Capone, Chicago racketeer, issued a statement declaring that his client was not implicated in the alleged plot. Giblin was arrested with Fred O. Eberhardt, Tallahassee editor, and Frank Ralls, former Carlton campaigner, Saturday night. He was released, however, after going to the sheriff's office. A preliminary hearing is tentatively set for next Monday.

Mother Gets Prison, Daughter Freed

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Anna Schaffer, mother of two grown daughters, was sentenced to one to three years in prison, after she pleaded guilty to charges of receiving stolen goods.

Judge Harry S. McDevitt denounced her as the "real offender" behind nearly 100 robberies. The daughters, who also pleaded guilty, were released on probation.

Bombing at Mine Where Strike Exists

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—A charge of dynamite was set off yesterday near the plant of the Connellsville By-Product Coal Company, whose employes walked out August 11 in protest to plans of the company to adopt a new "clean up system." The explosion did no damage.

The strike committee of the Connellsville mine today reported that the strike was 100 per cent effective.

Coolidge Puts Crime Question Up to People

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Aug. 20.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Much attention very properly has been given to the damage from lack of rain. It is extremely serious in amount and human suffering. Every effort must be made for adequate relief.

Calvin Coolidge

Bad as this has been, it is non-recurring, beyond human control and involves no moral blame.

While this calamity gets great attention, as it should, the report of a reliable authority that the yearly damage from crime is estimated at $7,500,000,000 goes almost unnoticed. This amount is more than one-half the entire agricultural production. It is an enormous tax on the resources of the people, being about 8 per cent of the national income, goes on constantly, ought to be largely preventable and represents a moral delinquency. Of this loss apparently little is chargeable to prohibition. Most of it represents violation of state laws.

This is one of the greatest challenges to good government. But fundamentally it is a question of good citizenship. The executives, national, state and municipal, the police and the courts can help. But the real remedy lies with the people. The laws will be enforced when the people clearly and emphatically indicate that they demand enforcement. But law is not enough. We need a change of heart.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Crossing Watchman Dies, But Still Guards Post

HAMMOND, Ind., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Even in death Caleb Gibbard guarded the Oakley avenue crossing of the Michigan Central Railroad.

Automobiles, piled up for a block or more on each side of the crossing last night, waited and waited for the train to come. No trains were even in sight; the gates were down, and finally the motorists grew impatient and started honking.

The clamor set up by dozens of automobile horns attracted police, who climbed to the watchman's tower. There they found Gibbard dead. He had lowered the gates so the crossing would be protected until some one came to take up his post.

COURT OPINION UPHOLDING PINCHOT

Text of Supreme Court Order Reviews Controversy Over Disputed Luzerne Votes

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20—The per curiam order as announced by acting Chief Justice Frazer sustaining the Common Pleas Court of Luzerne County in the Brown-Pinchot ballot dispute covered three typewritten pages. It was concurred in by Justices Sadler, Walling and Schaffer.

The text of the order follows:

"These appeals are based on alleged error in computation of the vote for Governor at the primary held in Luzerne County on May 20, 1930. The first deals with the returns for the Second District of the Eighth Ward of the city of Wilkes-Barre.

"The Court of Common Pleas was asked to open the ballot box used therein and direct that an accurate computation of the votes cast be made. On examination, to use the words of the president judge of the court below, 'The evidence in this case reveals a most glaring instance of foul fraud and corruption.'

WRONG-DOING EXTENSIVE

"This wrong-doing the court found was so extensive as to make a correct tabulation impossible. It held that the apparent fraud could only be taken advantage of in a contest proceeding and as the petition was based on the act of 1927 (April 23, P. L. 360) providing solely for a recount, directed the commissioners to certify the result reached by the election officers.

"Perforations by number previously ordered by the court appeared on each ballot, and for this reason it was also asked that the entire vote from the district in question be rejected.

"It is clear under the law that the direction to make such markings was without legal justification, and that the court exceeded its power in requiring that the ballots be so altered; its right to guard against anticipated fraud is limited by act of assembly to the appointment of overseers to conduct the election when the necessity for such course is made apparent by petition of a party interested. The County Commissioners alone have the power to determine the wording or marks on the ballots.

SUPERSEDEAS ASKED

"On June 21, the last day before our summer recess, we were asked to grant a supersedeas to stay further proceedings until the dispute which had arisen was passed on in this court. We refused to make such an order. No completed record was then presented which would enable us to determine the real legal question involved, nor was the decree, finally requiring a certification of the returns by the commissioners, made until some days thereafter.

"Indeed the appeal of the first case involving the single district was not perfected until June 24, 1930, when the writ of certiorari was filed in the court below, though the affidavit asking a review was sworn to on June 20th. The second case, hereinafter referred to, in which objection was made to the certification by the county commissioners, ordered by the court, was not appealed from until July 9, 1930.

NOT BEFORE COURT

"It is therefore evident, that the question in dispute was not before this court on June 21, 1930, when it made its cautionary order refusing a supersedeas, and we could not have passed on the contested legal question subsequently raised, and now presented for the first time. Following the usual procedure, the hearing was made returnable at our next scheduled meeting, which, under the rules, was September 29.

"Neither party saw fit to ask that the case be heard at an earlier date because of any existing emergency, though such procedure is expressly provided for and permitted by our rules. This court, however, of its own motion ordered its advancement and fixed for hearing of argument the first day when it was possible to secure the attendance of a quorum of the court. We have carefully considered the briefs, record and oral arguments.

VOTES NOT ALL AFFECTED

"It does not follow that, because of the receipt of fraudulent ballots, or the improper perforation thereof, the entire vote of the district must be rejected, where the request is solely to open the box and retabulate the contents as permitted by the act of 1927. A proceeding based on this statute is confined to a recounting, and, in addition the correction of errors in calculation apparent on the face of the returns to the extent indicated in our most recent cases of Gerlach's appeal, not referred to in the briefs of counsel on either side in the present argument.

"If the reception of illegal votes is made evident, resulting in an admittedly dishonest return, the computation must nevertheless be accepted, and the parties injured relegated to contest proceedings. Here, the court found the fraud to be of such character as to make impossible the separation of the ballots validly deposited from those improperly cast, and for this reason could only accept the count returned by the election officers as verity.

OPINION SPEEDED

"So that the interests of no one may be jeopardized by the delay necessary for the preparation of a formal opinion, which will be later filed, we have thus briefly stated our conclusion.

"What has been said applies to the second appeal before us complaining of the receipt of returns from all districts in Luzerne County where perforated ballots were used, the same having been made at the direction of the court without any legal authority. This does not justify our rejection of the entire vote, as already noted, but was a matter for contest proceedings.

"The orders of the court in both cases are affirmed at the cost of appellant."

Justices Throw Out Brown's Appeal to Void 60,000 Luzerne County Votes

in the case because of his long association with Mr. Brown as a law partner.

FRAZER READS ORDER

Justice Frazer read the per curiam order after saying:

"In the matter of the Luzerne County election returns, on appeal from the Luzerne County Common Pleas Court, we file today a per curiam opinion affirming the order of the court below. A formal order will be filed later."

After the Luzerne case had been argued for nearly three hours yesterday, the justices conferred until about 5 o'clock, when Acting Chief Justice Robert S. Frazer, of Pittsburgh, announced there would be no decision at that time.

John Hampton Barnes, chief counsel for Brown, in his argument, insisted the breaking of sealed packages of paper ballots and resealing them constituted a violation of the election laws.

Deputy Attorney General William A. Schnader, chief counsel for Pinchot, declared Barnes based his contention on the election law of 1893, whereas the ballots in Luzerne County, he said, were perforated to prevent election frauds under terms of the primary elect act of 1913. This act, he maintained, was not violated.

CHALLENGES

Mr. Schnader agreed with Justice Frazer's remark that the Luzerne County Court judges had "no more right than the alderman of a ward" to order perforations stamped in ballots, but insisted that if individual markings could invalidate a ballot every vote cast in Philadelphia and Lackawanna Counties would have to be rejected.

Schnader challenged the right of the court to rule on the question whether the votes cast in Luzerne County were illegal. He argued that the perforations were designed to prevent fraud, that the law requires the counting of every ballot when the intention of the voter is clear, and that the perforating was done under the supervision of the County Commissioners.

He also contended that the court could not rule on anything that happened to the ballots prior to election day, and that its sole right was to review the action of the Luzerne County Court of Common Pleas to determine whether there had been any error in procedure when the lower court directed the County Commissioners to certify the primary election vote.

Coffee at the South Pole

It Helped to make Life Bearable on the Wastes of Antarctica

Coffee—hot and lots of it—was the drink that made the greatest contribution of any beverage to the success of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition. In the long, bitterly cold months during which the forty-two men wrote history upon the ice of Little America they drank sixteen gallons of coffee a day. At the base, on the trail with the dogs, in the air, hot coffee helped to fight off the penetrating cold and to stimulate tired brains and muscles.

One of the most important men of the gallant Byrd Expedition was George W. Tennant, chief cook. Besides being chief cook, he was the one and only cook for the forty-two brave adventurers.

Mr. Tennant says: "On account of the cold, the men got away with a great deal of hot drinks—coffee, tea, cocoa, chocolate and some prepared beverages that were real good. But they drank over twice as much coffee as all the rest put together. They took vacuum bottles of coffee on trips over the ice, and you can bet there was some on the flight over the South Pole. They also had coffee cached at the supply bases on the ice, and it was included in all emergency rations along with pemican and other concentrated foods."

"Coffee braced the men up and stimulated them when they had work to do, and it made them cheerful when they were just sitting around wishing they had something to do. When they came in off the trail they almost knocked me over getting to the pot that was always steaming on the stove. In some ways, I think coffee was about the most valuable thing we took down to Little America."

"Every morning the first thing I would do was to put two and quarter pounds of coffee in a four-gallon pot, fill it two-thirds full of water until it boiled, and then add the rest of the water. Often I had to tell the men it wasn't done when they made a rush for it before everyone was ready for breakfast, because if those lads ever got ahead of me I was a ruined man. As soon as the first four gallons of coffee began to go I started a second pot, and there was a pot of it on the stove every minute of the day. I used nine pounds of coffee a day—sixteen gallons—and I guess they would have drunk more if I'd have had time to make it for them."

The Truth About The Healthfulness of Coffee

An exhaustive and unbiased scientific investigation of Coffee was made by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The work extended through a period of three years, and is unquestionably the most accurate, unbiased single investigation of coffee that has ever been made.

The result of this scientific research, as announced by Professor Samuel C. Prescott, Director of the Institute's Department of Biology and Public Health, shows that Coffee is a wholesome, helpful, satisfying drink for the great majority of people.

The report covers many hundreds of pages, for every aspect of Coffee and Coffee making was studied, but in just one paragraph of ninety-two words Professor Prescott has swept aside all the old prejudices and superstitions, and given Coffee the cleanest bill of health that could be wished. He says:

"It may be stated that, after weighing evidence, a dispassionate evaluation of the data so comprehensively surveyed has led to no alarming conclusions that coffee is an injurious beverage for the great mass of human beings, but on the contrary that the history of human experience, as well as the results of scientific experimentation, point to the fact that coffee is a beverage which, properly prepared and rightly used, gives comfort and inspiration, augments mental and physical activity, and may be regarded as the servant rather than the destroyer of civilization."

This statement, coming from such an unquestioned scientific authority, should be a source of satisfaction and relief to every true lover of Coffee and should establish, for all time, the fact that Coffee is a wholesome drink for the great mass of human beings.

FOE OF LEAGUE GAINS SUPPORT

TRINIDAD, Col., Aug. 20.—(Universal)—Colorado's "cowpuncher" candidate for the United States Senate rode the political range high, wide and handsome today.

All along the dusty trail that links La Junta to this near border town the lanky, six-foot figure of George H. Shaw was the signal for a wide open welcome.

Every abode that boasts a radio had heard of his square-shouldered stand against the league court.

One of the biggest beet sugar manufacturers of Rockyford, for instance, F. J. Kaspar, was out to greet him. He said:

"We tuned in on your speech at Denver last Friday. It was a humdinger, the people of this section want a red-blooded American like you to represent them at Washington, a man who will keep us out of that political mess across the water, a fellow who thinks more about preserving the peace and prosperity of this nation than playing up to the international bankers."

Identity of Man Suicide Mystery

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Aug. 20.—Efforts are being made to establish the identity of a middle-aged man, apparently a suicide, whose body was found near a service station at Vanport by Constable Wesley Jordan. There was a gunshot wound through the heart and a revolver was clutched in the hand. The body bore nothing to assist in identification.

MACNIDER LAYS OTTAWA PLANS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP.)—Hanford MacNider, American minister to Canada, has announced he would leave for Ottawa in time to confer with Prime Minister Bennett before the latter leaves for the imperial conference in London in September.

MacNider had dinner with President Hoover last night and was to confer with him again today. The minister may be among the guests over the week end at the Hoover camp on the Rapidan.

One of the questions of vital concern between the two countries is the St. Lawrence waterway, in which the chief executive was deeply interested before he became president.

MacNider's principal task at Ottawa is expected to be the bringing to the Canadian government's attention the status of the St. Lawrence diplomatic exchanges and President Hoover's attitude on the question.

PLANS TARIFF REPRISALS

MADRID, Aug. 20.—(Universal.)—America faces further tariff reprisals at the hands of Finance Minister Julio Wais, former minister of economy, who today took over the finance portfolio resigned by Manuel Arquelles.

Senor Wais, who was primarily responsible for the recent rise in import rates which hit the American automobile trade, last night left for Santander, where King Alfonso is summering, to take his oath of office.

The new finance minister will then return to Madrid in order to bring before the cabinet of Premier Berenguer his measures to halt the disastrous decline of the peseta, which is quoted on the Madrid exchange at 9.35 cents. The par value of the peseta is about 20 cents.

OPPOSE WOMEN AS JURORS

BALTIMORE, Aug. 20. (AP)—Members of the National Catholic Women's Union were urged in resolutions adopted at the annual convention here to assist in electing candidates to Congress and state legislatures this fall with "sound ethical, moral and Christian principles."

Resolutions against birth control, inordinate love of luxuries and jury service for women were adopted at the convention, held in connection with that of the Catholic Central Verein of America.

August F. Brockland, of St. Louis, assistant director of the central bureau of the verein, speaking at the women's meeting, said persons who desire to impose jury service on women have a false conception of equal rights. He continued:

"Man is at the head of the home and represents God in the family, while woman is his assistant and has not the same authority, though her role is as noble."

The verein selected Fort Wayne, Ind., for the 1931 convention.

CREDITORS SUE LADY HEATH

PLYMOUTH, England, Aug. 20. (AP)—Lady Mary Heath, celebrated British aviatrix, divorced from Sir James Heath at Reno, Nev., last spring, was served with bankruptcy proceedings aboard the liner on which she traveled to Europe when it called here Sunday.

The action concerns the purchase of dresses in London about which there had been already a dispute between the aviatrix and Sir James. Lady Heath did not land here, but continued to Boulogne, planning to go to Paris.

As the service of the papers was made on Sunday, it may be illegal in the British courts, and the dress company is considering a fresh service at Paris.

Infantry Veterans Plan Boat Ride

Phone Girl's Quick Work Arouses Firemen

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 20.—When West Brownsville volunteer firemen failed to hear an alarm summoning them to a fire early yesterday, Miss Catherine Dudzak, telephone operator, aroused seven of the members by telephone in three minutes.

GIRL, 15, ADMITS SLAYING

FULTON, N. Y., Aug. 20. (AP)—After being questioned for eight hours, Anna Dziegel, 15, confessed police said, that she shot and killed Mrs. Marjorie Brackett Gillespie, 30, in Recreation Park here. Mrs. Gillespie was found dead beside her husband's car with two bullet wounds in her body. Children who heard the shots reported seeing a girl running from the scene, and Miss Dziegel, who had been discharged as a domestic in the Gillespie home, was arrested.

Police believe the girl's loss of her position was the motive for the shooting.

DEMAND LEAGUE ACT ON DOPE

GENEVA, Aug. 20.—(Universal)—The victim nations represented on the central opium board of the League of Nations, now in session here, have decided on a public meeting, to be held tomorrow, at which time they will demand league action against the illicit traffic in narcotics and control of manufacture.

The session of the central board, which began Monday, have so far been secret. Last night, it was learned the board, with six out of eight members coming from countries constituting the league's "opium block," decided that Sir Basanta Mullick, of India, was eligible to sit on the board.

Mullick's eligibility had been questioned because he admitted being paid by the British government, which controls the opium monopoly of India. The convention of 1925, which created the board but which the United States refused to sign, prohibits the holding of membership by one who is in direct dependence upon his government.

CASTORIA
INFANTS / CHILDREN
A helpful Remedy for Constipation and Diarrhoea and Feverishness and Loss of Sleep
Chas. H. Fletcher
THE CENTAUR CO. NEW YORK
At Druggists, also 35 DOSES - 40 CENTS

Children hate to take medicine as a rule, but every child loves the taste of Castoria. And this pure vegetable preparation is just as good as it tastes, just as bland and harmless as the recipe reads. (The wrapper tells you just what Castoria contains.)

When Baby sore warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria has him soothed, asleep again in a jiffy. Nothing is more valuable in diarrhea. When coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, invoke its gentle aid to cleanse and regulate a child's bowels. In colds or children's diseases, use it to keep the system from clogging. Your doctor will tell you Castoria deserves a place in the family medicine cabinet until your child is grown. He knows it is safe for the tiniest baby; effective for a boy in his teens. With this special children's remedy handy, you need never risk giving a boy or girl medicine meant for grown-ups.

Castoria is sold in every drug store; the genuine always bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature.

Acid Indigestion Torture for Months. Not A Sign Now!

New Formula Acidine Ends Gas Pain After All Else Failed

"I suffered for months with acid indigestion and gas on the stomach," writes Mr. C. Bedford of Detroit, Mich. "Couldn't eat a meal without being troubled with gas and pain, also dizzy feeling. I tried all kinds of medicines, but nothing really helped until I took Acidine. Got relief from the very start. Now I am entirely well, no pains at all. Have recommended Acidine to all my friends."

Thousands are astonished how this new formula Acidine succeeds where other remedies fail. The reason is that it is entirely different. Contains an effective scientific digestant, Juptase, that promptly dissolves and liquefies 800 times its own weight of heavy, starchy food, under proper conditions. Five other ingredients relieve burning acid, stop gas and soothe irritated stomach lining. No other remedy contains this scientific combination to end acid stomach trouble.

Physicians are prescribing Acidine, and thousands have found it the only real relief from acid indigestion and dyspepsia, gas, pain, heartburn, coated tongue, bad taste, dizziness and other troubles from the stomach. So it is rapidly taking the place of other stomach remedies.

Don't take chances with acidity and gas that often lead to more dangerous illness. Get Acidine today and watch how quick one dose ends pain, gas. You can smoke, eat and drink if you take Acidine to stop resulting acidity. Results guaranteed or your money back. Get Acidine from any druggist today.

New Discovery Revolutionizes Washing of Fine Fabrics

Ethel Barrymore, Anne Morgan, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank on distinguished Committee of 17 which sees new bead soap out-perform chips and flakes

A TINY bead of soap no larger than a pinhead, yet it holds the secret of 20% longer wear for silk stockings! Science proved this recently, at a meeting at the Ritz Hotel, New York, to the entire satisfaction of the Committee of 17, a group of distinguished women who were asked to give "the woman's viewpoint" on this revolutionary new soap for fine fabrics.

Famous women watch tests

Social leaders, home economics consultants, the wife of a distinguished cabinet member, eminent university authorities—women representative of every type of American femininity—the committee watched authorities test the flake and chip soaps used by women for washing silks. They heard chemists tell how modern washbowl laundering of silks demands soap that dissolves instantly . . . works in water as cool as 85 degrees F. and rinses away completely in one swift rinse. Could the ideal soap for silks be made?

Science said "yes," and before the skeptical eyes of 17 women tested a revolutionary new soap that performed miracles never witnessed before. It dissolved 30 times faster than flakes, cleansed in water 20 degrees cooler than required by any existing soap. Rinsed away 100% in one rinse!

Committee approves soap

So revolutionary was the new soap . . . so perfectly did it fulfill requirements no soap has ever been able to meet before . . . that the Committee of 17 went on record as "unanimously approving the new soap as ideal for washing silks and fine fabrics."

"The most amazing . . . the most perfect soap for silks I have ever seen," was the tribute of Miss Lillian Edgerton, consulting textile authority, "and I have tested soaps on over 6,000 different fabrics!"

Dr. Ellen B. McGowan, noted Columbia University expert, told of her tests with the new soap and how the olive oil base keeps silk threads soft and elastic and helps protect silk stockings against runs.

The name of the new soap is Palmolive Beads. It is the first soap for silks ever made in the form of tiny, hollow, instant-dissolving "beads." The only fine fabric soap ever to be made of olive and palm oils . . . oils hitherto reserved exclusively for complexion soaps.

Palmolive Beads are for sale everywhere at 10 cents the box—no more than you pay for ordinary flakes and chips. Get a box at your grocer's today.

(Above) Three distinguished committee members arrive at the Ritz for the soap meeting that made history. They are Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt and Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of the Secretary of Labor and chairman of the Committee of 17.

Members of the Committee of 17 compare silks washed with instant dissolving "beads," with those washed with slow dissolving flakes. The microscope reveals that slow dissolving soaps often fail to rinse away completely, causing soap damage. Mrs. James J. Davis (at microscope), Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, Miss Edgerton and Miss Pollard.

ANNE MORGAN
Famous daughter of a famous father, and member of the Committee of 17. Miss Morgan is gratefully remembered for her rehabilitation work in France.

Could Write a Book About It

"Nine years ago after my little girl was born dead, I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for about four months. The next year I became the mother of a fine 11 pound baby boy. After he was born, I kept on with the medicine to build me up. Four months ago I was nervous and rundown and suffered from other troubles which I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would relieve as I started taking it and now I feel fine again. Many of my friends could write a book on the good the Vegetable Compound has done them."—Mrs. W. # LYNCHING STIRS GOVERNOR'S IRE

TARBORO, N. C., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—A mob which yesterday lynched Oliver Moore, 29, Negro, was confronted today with the expressed determination of Gov. O. Max Gardner to see that its members are prosecuted.

The Governor, on a vacation in the western part of the state, characterized the lynching as a "disgrace to North Carolina." He was undetermined whether the state would make an investigation independent of that of Sheriff W. E. Bardin, but said the sheriff had "the state back of his county forces."

Moore, a tenant farmer, accused of attacking his landlord's two small daughters on July 18, was taken from the Edgecombe County Jail by the mob shortly after midnight and carried into Wilson County, near the scene of the attack. The mob strung Moore from a tree and shot him to death.

Test Police Guns To See Which Killed Bandit

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Six policemen today were awaiting the result of tests by ballistics experts to find out which of them deserves credit for killing a bandit.

William E. Drake, who while off duty started a chase for the man when he recognized him as Angelo Pessalano, an ex-convict, has been promoted. The other policemen all fired at the car in which the man was fleeing, one of their bullets killing him.

The policemen were taken to the headquarters pistol range, where they fired their revolvers into wads of cotton. The bullets were then taken for comparison with the one found in Pessalano's body.

MYSTERY SHOT KILLS WIDOW

CARSON CITY, Mich., Aug. 20—(AP.)—A well-to-do widow, 63, was shot to death late yesterday or last night as she sat in her farm home, five miles west of here, an open check book on a table in front of her and a fountain pen in her hand.

State police and county officers, called to the scene after the body of the woman, Mrs. Dora Loree, had been found by her niece, Mrs. Beatriee Miller, who lives nearby, are without a clue to the identity or motive of the killer.

Mrs. Loree was shot in the head, apparently with a shotgun. There was no sign of a struggle and the contents of the house had not been disturbed. Lloyd Miller, husband of Mrs. Loree's niece, told Sheriff F. M. Mills that he saw his wife's aunt at 3 p. m.

"I'M in the hauling business," he told us, "and I get paid by the day. If I keep the money in my pocket it will be paid out for something or other. If I put some in my Savings Account, I'm paying it to myself."

Nearly every day he makes a deposit of three dollars—has made such deposits since June 19, 1914 when he opened his account. When he bought his first truck he paid cash for it. Subsequent trucks have been bought with cash and it is estimated that several hundred dollars have been saved because installment payments were not necessary.

He now has nearly $14,000.00 in his Farmers Savings Account. The three dollar deposits continue and the account grows at the rate of about $4.57 a day. The extra $1.57 is the interest earned by his capital.

Client Orders Duplicates Of Raquel's Clothes

CHAPTER XXXI.

Alphonse was reassured when Raquel remarked to him, quite casually, that the man in the horn-rimmed glasses had seen fit to apologize to her for his incessant coughing.

"He's the type that is content to take life secondhand," said Alphonse. "From the written word. Like the man who takes his food in capsules. Life pre-digested."

"It does not seem to agree with him," Raquel said.

"It doesn't agree with anybody. To gulp pleasure, happiness, pain, out of a book. One must know them, feel them, do one's own digesting. Books should be reminders of experience, not experienced in and of themselves."

Raquel knew Alphonse was thinking aloud. Well he should know. There were few experiences a book could offer him he had not himself known and felt. He skimmed the cream off of life. It was written in every line of his face.

Madame Pauline Whining miserably to Raquel, clutching after his errant fancy. Had he drained Madame Pauline dry? Made her the dregs of a woman she was?

It was difficult to believe he had done so. He was so unfailingly courteous, kind, thoughtful. Still there was that night he kissed her hand when he took her to the suite. She could feel the kiss even now, as she felt the clinging lips of Farrell the night he told her good-by on the fringe of the desert.

Raquel Puzzled

And Alphonse's white-hot anger the night he blamed Greta because Bertie Adams, by some queer quirk of his fogged brain, had found his way into her room.

Alphonse had not been fair with Greta. Why should he be fair with her? Unless—

His errant fancy winging to a bright flower, settling lightly, drinking deep, draining the perfume, the freshness. Winging away again when the perfume surfeited or the petals of the flower faded.

She was one flower he would not rifle. She would fold up her petals so he could not get at the heart of her. Let the humming-bird beat its wings against her in vain.

She, Raquel, would laugh. Use the humming-bird's wings to make a bandeau for her wise brow.

"There is in the collection for you a gown of green," Alphonse told her. "The color of jade. Built of a special satin that clings. Extreme perhaps, and sophisticated. You can carry it off with a dash, even if you are a neophyte in worldliness, ma petite. We shall try it this evening."

Raquel wondered why Alphonse had chosen the gown. There was a reason. Fashion's supreme dictator never toyed with Beauty this way unless there was an objective he wished to gain.

He saw the question in her eyes, alight with the verve for conquest.

"You have done well," he said confidentially. "A client of Chez Alphonse is aboard. She came to me this morning, for a conference. She has ordered a duplicate of everything you have worn since you came on the ship."

"Then I've—why I must be paying my way," Raquel said, delighted with the prospect.

Alphonse's hand closed over hers, patted it approvingly, affectionately.

Longs to Grow

"You had already done as much, cherie," he said, "before you embarked."

He had given her more than words. Emotion.

"I like to know I can do something beside just look—"

"Beautiful."

"Well, yes."

"That is right. Beauty is like the dress of which I spoke. A fade. So soon rumpled, so easily frayed. But spirit, genius, even a profession or a trade, they have both beauty and durability. In them beauty does not fade. It grows the richer for use."

"You think I can grow?" Raquel's eager face sought truth and truth only in the answer.

Yes. As a fine healthy plant in the rain and the sun. You have already grown inches."

I want to grow a foot," greedily.

That will be as you make it."

Oh, I shall try. If you will show me the way."

There are many ways."

I know . . . ."

And one is now at hand."

What did he mean to ask of her? Mentally, she poised on tiptoe, breathless, wary.

There was enough of the master in him to keep her waiting. Then he went on, quite as if he had not sensed her anxiety.

"The client of whom I spoke. She asked to meet you."

"But surely I can do nothing except to suggest the clothes she likes by wearing them."

"She does not like the clothes you wear."

Raquel bristled. Why had this woman selected her for a pattern then? Sought to imitate her, as Alphonse's confidence about the order proved?

"If she were in position to indulge herself," said Alphonse, "she would look like nothing so much as an ill-formed shop-girl cursed with bad taste. She is one of my most difficult clients. It is almost impossible to keep her from ordering loose bags instead of dresses."

"Then why do you bother with her?" There could be no profit, either artistic or material, in loose bags, Raquel thought.

Meeting Arranged

"It pleases me to do so," Alphonse chuckled. "She has the essentials of a great beauty. And she has unlimited means wherewith to mold the essentials into a finished product."

Raquel began to feel something of the creator's fine frenzy in his problem.

"It will be fun to convert her," she said.

"She is already converted."

"Then it will be easy—"

"I don't know. One can never tell. A woman in her state of mind. One day she is a burning brand. The next day, a lump of cold clay."

"Why?" Raquel was confounded by the contradiction of the woman Alphonse drew for her. "If she has money—if she can be beautiful—"

"Ah, but she has not the essence, the very soul of true joy. That she cannot buy. But she knows it is there. She has had it. Now it has slipped away. It eludes her. She hopes to win it back with beauty, with spirit. It may be she will succeed. We must help her."

"But you have not told me what it is she hopes to win," Raquel reminded, aglow with the promise of adventure.

"That she shall tell you herself." Alphonse's smile was enigmatic. "Tonight. I have arranged that you meet."

Art Fashions in Photography Have Gone Futuristic, Advises Fay King

THE KIND OF SNAP-SHOTS YOU USED TO TEAR UP ARE THE KIND THAT TAKE PRIZES NOW!
TERRIBLE
ACROBATIC ANGLES ARE WHAT COUNT NOW!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

Modernistic photography has made the camera fool-proof.

The kind of snapshots you used to tear up would probably take prizes now.

Tip-tilted skylines and grotesque portraits are now the smart thing.

The films the expert developed, but refused to print for you, he would now enlarge and advise you to copyright.

As a camera fiend I was always pretty much of a flop until lately.

But since terrible mistakes are considered artistic triumphs, I just go about shooting the shutter at any old angle, sure that I've got something good even if it is out of line and out of focus.

The more unexpected your camera results are the more original they are considered.

The correct camera eye is cross-eyed.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

The Party Leaves the Farmhouse for the Catskills.

What could Philip Veritzen have written to his son which had such power to govern Noel's conduct toward Mary? This was the question which again beat insistently against my brain as Noel refused to give his fiancee the assurance of trust I asked, and said that he mustn't let her think anything different until after I had seen his father.

There was no time, however, to debate the question with him. I already had exceeded the limit of time I had set myself for talking to the invalid. From the hall there were sounds indicating that the Underwoods and Mary were already out there ready for the hurried journey to the Catskills which Robert Savarin's message and condition had made imperative.

"Very well," I said in matter of fact tones. "I won't say anything to her—on condition that you do not worry. We shall be back in two or three days, and I shall expect you to have gained at least five pounds."

I smiled merrily at him, but there was no mirth in the faint smile he gave back to me. But poignant anxiety was mirrored in his eyes.

"Take care of her!" he adjured me. "That—"

"She'll be with me all the time," I told him, and bidding him a hasty good-bye went out of the room to find the upper hall empty. But I heard voices on the lower floor, and putting on my hat and coat and snatching up my emergency traveling bag ran down the stairs to find the car at the door. Lillian already in it. Harry beside the car, and Mary, on the porch, receiving voluble instructions from Katie concerning the proper unpacking of the capacious lunch boxes and hot liquid containers which Mr. Underwood was stowing in the tonneau.

"Shake dot soup ting oop und down und sideways," Katie was saying. "Eef you don't all goot stoof goes by bottom und you get only not so goot jooce. Und you find crackers in vaxed paper und you find—oh! Meesis Graham," as she spied me, "I put in jar of dose vild strawberry preserves you like. Dey go goot mit roast scheeken. Gee! it loocky ting nobody hoongry last night. I had two scheekens, und vun of dem not touched. It shoost fine for your loonch."

"Katie!" Mr. Underwood interjected explosively. "How is that chicken packed? Is it all cut up ready to eat, or does it have to be carved?"

His face expressed such lively apprehension that I think we all mentally echoed Katie's high-pitched giggle.

"Oh! Meester Underwood!" she caroled ecstatically. "You sooch a foony man!"

He bowed from the waist elaborately.

"Thank you, Katie," he said, then abruptly to the rest of us: "Do you hear that, women? However," he looked sternly at Katie, "you haven't answered my question. The salve was very soothing, but—the festering wound remains. Is that chicken carved?"

"Sure ting," Katie rejoined. "Eet all sliced, vite meat und dark meat by eetself, und drumsticks und vings und scooch tings each wrapped oop so you can eat mit your fingers. Und you get sliced ham und vun jar potato salad und bottle olives und pickles und some nice red tomatoes und two kinds cake und apples und bananas und dot soup und two bottles coffee all feexed mit cream, und bottle of vater and leetle qveeck folding stove und pan und tea balls eef you vant make tea. Me—I nefer forget nodings."

"I'll tell the listening world you don't, Katie," Mary said with a laugh. "And it's sure a good thing the thin figure's gone out of style. We'll each have gained from five to ten pounds by the time we reach our journey's end."

"To say nothing of a probable ambulance call to a hospital," I added, but was careful to wait until the doors of the car were safely closed before saying it. Katie had interpreted my orders for a packed lunch so liberally that I was afraid much of it would have to be thrown away, but I would not have hurt her loving loyal heart for thrice the value of the wasted food.

"Cut the canny caution, Cassandra!" Harry Underwood admonished. "If it's the quality of the food which worries you, I resent it as a slur on me goil friend, Katie. If you're worried because there's too much of it and we'll overeat or worse have to throw it away uneaten, just gaze upon my massive frame and be reassured. I could stow away everything in the boxes if I wanted to be selfish, eh? Lil. You can testify that I'm a valiant trencherman, can't you?"

His wife smiled up at him, her eyes apparently calm. But I knew what a tremendous effort she had made to give him that smile, knew also that underneath the big man's foolery—which I knew was staged simply to camouflage the stress under which we all were laboring—there was the same obsessing thought.

Would we reach the Catskills in time to grant Robert Savarin's last wish which he had been too chivalrous to pen to the woman he loved?

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, August 21.

Lively and interesting conditions may be expected on this day, according to the ruling transits. Although there may be an unforseen change or journey of an unwelcome nature, yet in all pertaining to writings, publishings or to bold adventures, there will be a marked degree of initiative and enterprise.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively year, with initiative and energies under fine stimulus for aggressive action; yet there may be a disturbing influence.

A child born on this day may be brilliant, versatile and energetic, but may be subject to many vicissitudes in life of a sudden nature. It should make fine success in literary work or kindred activities.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Mrs. Solomon Says—

My Daughter, I know not which perplexeth and comforteth me more; the humility of woman or the self-complacency of man.

For, verily, both of these pass my understanding.

Behold a Youth came unto me saying: "Would that I could find a damsel of my dreams! For, lo, I am weary of the bachelor-life, and the marrying mood is upon me."

And I questioned him, saying, "Yea, it is well, my Son. But what things wouldst thou demand of a woman, that she be worthy in thy sight?"

Then the Youth spake gravely, and without hesitation, saying:

* * *

"She, whom I would marry, must be companionable in all things, and full of wit and understanding. For life with a dumb-bell is as depressing as a rainy Sunday at a country club.

* * *

"Likewise, she must be exceeding easy upon the eyes. More shapely than an artist's model, and more dazzling than a glorified member of a beauty chorus. So that, beholding her, all men shall envy me and call me 'lucky dog.'

* * *

"Moreover, she must be 'chic;' for a smart woman glorifyeth her husband, but a frumpy wife casteth shame upon him and causeth him to blush.

* * *

"Above all, she must be sweet of temper and full of tact; yea, she must know when to soothe me, when to flatter me, when to kiss me, and when to LET ME ALONE. For my moods and headaches are not to be lightly regarded.

"Yea, and she must be docile withal; blind to my foibles and deaf to my mistakes. For, a little reformer is a deadly thing!

"Last, she must be thrifty and frugal and eager to save my pennies at the market and the beauty shop, that I may have the dollars for golf balls and gasoline."

* * *

And when he had finished speaking, I summoned a damsel unto me, and questioned her, saying, "What, oh my daughter, wouldst thou demand of the man whom thou lovest, that he might find favor in thy sight?"

But the damsel was filled with confusion, and shook her head, saying:

"Only this should I demand of my Beloved: that he love me always and forever, and have neither eyes nor thought for any other woman, all the days of his life!"

And, at her words, the Youth smote his forehead, and reached for his hat, crying:

"What? FOREVER? Impossible! For, because it raineth today, how can a man say that it shall rain tomorrow? And because he loveth a woman today, how can he promise that he shall love her tomorrow—and for all the tomorrows to come? Nay, verily, the woman asketh TOO MUCH!"

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLEY

Watch out for pillow wrinkles. The high pillow throws the head to one side and forms lines in the neck. Not only that, but they put up-and-down creases in the cheek. The pillow should be just large enough to allow the head to rest on a straight line with the spinal column. Babies shouldn't have any pillows at all, if they are to grow up straight of form.

It is no longer fashionable to uproot, mangle and pull apart one's eyebrows. Wild hairs are banished by the tweezers, but the proper caper now is the eyebrow of normal proportions, nicely arched, tapering away at the far end into a fine line. The arch should not be in the center, but inclined toward the inner terminal, like outline of the wing of a bird in flight. Brush the inner end of the brow upward and the far end downward, using brilliantine on the brush to induce the hairs to stay put.

Facial contortionists who tie their portraits into knots should keep in mind the fact that they are wreckers of good looks. Pulling down the corners of the mouth, lifting the eyebrows, distorting the features generally, deplete the tone of tissues and lay on definite lines that no beauty magic or skillful massage can erase. To preserve the soft contours of youth, the human countenance must not do gymnastics. It must not be subjected to tissue storms and disturbances. Facial repose is an insurance against the ravages of that mean old be-whiskered man with the scythe.

Household Hints

Tooth paste will clean tarnished French jewelry.

Before serving afternoon tea, pour a few drops of hot water into each saucer. This will moisten them just enough to prevent the cups from slipping around on the saucers when they are being passed.

When the perforations on the grater become clogged, you will find that a crust of hard bread rubbed gently up and down over the holes will clean it beautifully. A small vegetable brush is excellent for this purpose, too.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Can a Woman Love Two Men at the Same Time?

Can a faithful wife of 18 years, who still adores her husband, still find room in her heart for the sweetheart whom she loved and lost as a girl?

Toinette's asking. But hundreds of other women—with a secret hunger tugging at their own hearts—will listen with her for the answer.

"Dear Sally Martin:

"Can you help me analyze a situation, and can you suggest a solution for it? Please! If I don't have help soon, I'm going to go absolutely batty.

"To give you a general idea of what it is, I am going to tell you first of Ed, my husband, who is kind, loving and generous, and who turns his pay check over to me as regularly as he gets it. He has even taken work at unreasonable hours, to increase our income.

"We have been married 18 years now, and have two children. One is 16 and the other 13 years old. And Sally, I do love Ed. That's the funny part of it, because—

"There is Roger, whom I have known and cared for since we were together in grammar school. He is divorced now, and the father of three children.

SWEETHEARTS QUARRELED

"You see, we were sweethearts, and it was in a fit of stubborness that we quarreled, and he married someone else. Six months after that, I married Ed, whom I have known since I was 8.

"Now, as to myself. I am considered practical, intellectual and talented. And although I am 35 years old, I do not look it. I keep myself trim, because it is an absolute necessity, associating with people as I do each day.

"Is it possible for a woman to care for two men at the same time? I know that Roger cares for me, and it is all I can do not to chuck everything and go to him. Just last night I wanted to phone him and arrange to meet him. The only thing, really, that held me back was the thought of the children.

"It isn't that I am idle and have time to sit and moon over him. I guess I'm just plain batty, I expect you'll think so, too, when I tell you that I believe in mental telepathy, and I know that I get things he thinks of.

"No, I'm not one of these moonstruck youngsters, by any means. I should use my brains and act my age, but it does seem like I'm not going to be able to.

"Fortunately, I have had common sense enough to see my obligations so far. And for the five years he has been divorced, I've held myself in check. But won't this drive me really batty, Miss Martin?

"Please help me. My head's going around in circles, I've thbught about it so much. How can I love two men at the same time? I do care for my husband. Please! What shall I do?

TOINETTE."

TWO LOVES AT ONCE

Is it possible to be in love with two men at the same time?

Yes, sister. It is. It's possible to be in love with many, many, different people at the same time. But not the same kind of love.

You do love your husband, you say. I don't doubt it a bit. And probably if the truth were known, he is the man you care the most for when you come down to real brass tacks.

But there's the hitch. In becoming part of your real life, he has also become monotonous. He has lost his novelty. You have discovered all his little faults. There's no glamor about him any more—you've passed through too many tests together.

But Roger—you've never seen him subjected to any tests and he still retains all the glamor of that youthful dream.

It's the glamor you're in love with, Toinette. And not Roger himself. And you're also enthralled by the secret thrill of a forbidden love. Eighteen years of marriage becomes a bit of a bore—you want excitement.

But look out, Toinette! Many a woman has bartered real love and a beautiful security for the false flame of such an adventure—and would have given her heart to be back again in the quiet home that once bored her. Don't fool with your happiness. If you must have some diversion and change—and you surely should have—seek it by some safer method. Take a vacation. Join a dancing class. Make some new friends. But don't gamble with love!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Preventable Accidents Are a Growing Menace.

There are all too many accidents these days. The great life insurance companies, the health departments of the great cities, the newspapers all attest to the increasing frequency of fatal and non-fatal accidents.

DR COPELAND

One of the largest life insurance companies in the country heads one of its advertisements with the caption, "Help the Healthy." It shows the startling increase in accidents among our boys and girls under the age of 15 years.

Twenty thousand children under 15 years old were killed last year. Nearly 30 per cent of these deaths were caused by automobiles. Drownings, burns, the careless use of firearms, falls and other causes were grouped in the order named.

Eighty thousand persons 15 years old and over also were killed last year. Accidents are sixth on the list of causes of deaths for persons of all ages. Accidents are first on the list for children from five to 15 years of age.

Most of these future citizens of the country are healthy, fun-loving, daring boys and girls, ready to take any chance. They must be taught reasonable caution in earliest childhood. They must learn the rules of self-preservation so that they can protect themselves from dangers greater than disease.

Then there is another class of accidents even more common. Those are the non-fatal injuries received in the home. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company recently announced that 22 visiting nurses associations had reported that out of 6,585 non-fatal accidental injuries treated by them last year 46 per cent occurred while the victims were occupied in domestic pursuits, 45 per cent in public places and only 9 per cent at work.

More persons were injured non-fatally by home falls than by automobile accidents. The record gives the ratio as 1,424 to 1,342.

More and more playgrounds are needed in the big cities and towns to keep the children off the streets, where the majority of fatal accidents occur. We need all the parks and all the playgrounds possible for the health of growing children.

People at home should think more of the dangers of rickety stepladders, chairs and rugs so easily tripped over. We are always hurrying these days, indoors and out. Teach the children to be careful and to observe "Safety First."

Be on the lookout for dangers yourself. Think before you step out. Observe the traffic regulations in your town. Don't be a "jay walker." New York City has inaugurated new traffic regulations for pedestrians because "people must be saved in spite of themselves."

It is about time that people stopped to think and act for safety's sake.

Answers to Health Queries.

MRS. M. T. Q.—What do you advise for high blood pressure?

A.—The diet should be corrected.

N. P. Q.—What causes my gums to bleed?

A.—You are probably troubled with pyorrhea and it would be wise to see your dentist for treatment.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Greeting Guests

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My girl friend lives out of town but stays overnight with me often. When her young man friend comes to call for her, whose place is it to go to the door, hers or mine? She insists that I should because it is my home, but I think she should as she is expecting her company.

2. From which side of the chair should a person be seated when sitting down for dinner and so forth? When arising? I have seen it done both ways, but have always believed that the left side is correct.

3. Is it proper for a girl to take a man's arm while walking down the street? I do this, but a friend claims that I am entirely wrong. ALEDA.

1. I think, with your friend, that it would be the hospitable thing for you to go to the door to greet your guest's guest.

2. You are right—the left side is the usual one, although, in reality, it doesn't make any real difference.

3. Again I agree with your friend. Unless you need assistance, as in crossing a crowded street, there isn't any reason why you should take a man's arm.

'No, Thank You'

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Due to my health I do not drink tea or coffee. Will you please tell me the proper way to refuse these drinks when I visit and they are served?

2. When there are two gentlemen and a lady walking together, how should they walk? READER.

1. With a slight bow of your head say, graciously, "No thank you." You need make no explanation. A great many people nowadays do not drink tea or coffee, and therefore you are not at all conspicuous by your not taking them.

2. The lady walks between the gentlemen.

Send Him One

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have recently become engaged. About a year ago I was practically engaged to another man, but it was broken off by mutual consent. Would it be right to send him an announcement? We are still very good friends. ANXIOUS.

By all means send an announcement to this friend. It will show that you have a sure social sense instead of a narrow point of view.

FLIGHT PROJECT BANKRUPT

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—One of the most ambitious endurance flights yet planned has landed with a splash in a pool of red ink.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed by the New York and New Jersey Endurance Flight Inc., which planned to put on a re-crewing and refueling flight. Liabilities were estimated at $50,672 and assets at $12,200.

Washington frowned on the re-crewing idea—tired pilots were going to jump out in parachutes and fresh ones slide down ropes from the refueling ship to the endurance planes. Then a regular refueling flight was begun with two planes but neither stayed up long.

Dog Gives Fire Alarm, 17 Flee Building

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 20.—The barking of "Whitie," a Boston bull terrier, was credited with saving 17 persons from a fire which damaged an apartment and store building owned by Angelo Scatena at Fredericktown yesterday.

The dog, owned by Scatena, was chased back in its kennel early in the morning but resumed its barking and whining. Investigating, Scatena found the cellar of the building ablaze. He warned the 16 other occupants and all escaped. Damage was estimated at $4,500.

PITTSBURGHERS MADE OFFICERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Commissions in the Officers Reserve Corps issued by the War Department to Pennsylvanians include:

Second lieutenants, engineers: Adamont F. Colonna, Youngwood. Thomas Davies, 1015 Faust street, Pittsburgh; Roy A. Gilliland, 345 Riverview avenue, Bellevue. Second lieutenants, Coast Artillery: William S. Andrews, 225 Melwood street; David L. Crawford, 517 Emerson street, and James P. Murray, Jr., 4723 Wallingford street, Pittsburgh.

GINGER POISON STILL PUZZLE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Physicians of the Public Health Service are still puzzled as to the cause of paralysis cases which followed drinking of an adulterated fluid extract of ginger.

After months of investigation, they have decided the disease, which crippled thousands in the Midwest and South was caused by some denaturant used in the ginger. A statement by the Public Health Service added, however, that the studies were by no means complete and that the mechanism of suspected adulterants was not clear.

WOMAN FLIER HURT IN CRASH

GREENWOOD, S. C., Aug. 20 (AP.)—Mrs. Mae Hazlit of St. Louis, was injured seriously in a crash of her airplane eight miles east of Greenwood today.

Mrs. Hazlit was flying from Atlanta to Washington. She apparently got off her course and attempted to make a landing in a cotton field. A wheel gave way in landing and the plane groundlooped.

She was brought to a hospital here unconscious.

Miss Vera Downwalker of Los Angeles, flying another plane, made a safe landing near Mrs. Hazlit's wrecked ship.

It Has Made Good Because It's Made Better

It wasn't any magician's trick that made Orange American Gas a better regular gasoline. It wasn't accomplished by waving a wand.

We sought a better crude--and found it. We built a new refinery--one of largest in the world. And we used a new process. That's why Orange American Gas will give you better performance than anything else at its price.

TORRENTS HALT CHINESE WAR

SHANGHAI Aug 20.—(INS.)—With the commanding generals of both the Nanking government and the Northern rebels claiming military successes in the past week torrential rains today continued to enforce a lull on all Chinese fronts.

The Manchurian war lord Feng Yu-Hsiang, grasped the opportunity to reorganize his troops for a new offensive against the Nationalists, while the latter were realigning forces to launch new drives against the rebels.

Although the Nanking regime professes to have its affairs well under control foreigners viewed the situation skeptically. The British government has ordered the closing of its consular offices gunboat protection will be impossible because of low water at Changsha December 1, when

REDS SEEK TWO GIRLS' RELEASE

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Communists are raising a defense fund and planning a mass meeting for Saturday in a campaign to free Allene Holmes, 23, of New York, and Mabel Husa, 20, of Belden, N. D., who are in the County Penitentiary on charges of desecrating the flag. The girl Communist began serving a three-months' sentence Monday.

They were arrested when they refused a flag offered for a camp in which they were giving Communist instruction to 100 children. Police were called to protect them from a mob of 2,000.

The case was heard before Justice of the Peace William Westbrook, who imposed the sentence. Defense counsel said the intense feeling against them in the crowded court room made it difficult for the justice to render an unprejudiced verdict. Both girls denied the offense.

CASKET FOR JACK BRADSHAW"
DALE
SERGEANT OWENS TAKING MISS RUTH HACKETT TO THE POLICE STATION

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Oliver Weadon bank cashier absconds with $100,000. Among the loot are five $1,000 bills. Shortly after his disappearance Weadon is found murdered. The newspapermen with headquarters at an undertaking shop get on the case. Robin Dale learns that one of the $1,000 bills was found on Weadon's body. The rest of the money had disappeared. Dale meets Ruth Hackett when her brother orders a casket for someone still alive! Within an hour a murder is reported at the address to which the casket is to be sent.

Now Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER III.

No. 1142 West Seventy-eighth street was an old-fashioned three-story dwelling built of red brick. It was like a dozen others in the same street. An iron rail surrounded the grounds and the house was set back about 25 feet from the sidewalk. There was an open porch on the ground floor. The second floor also had one which was closed in with glass.

Robin Dale found Sergeant Queen and Detective Clymer on the job.

"Just one of those reporter guys," Clymer called to Owen when he let Dale in.

"Smart fellow. You were right the first time . . . Robin Dale of the Daily Journal. Who's murdered, who did it and why?"

"Go in and have a look . . . Dinkie Roberts was the guy's name. When you come out you tell us who did it . . . an' why!"

"Sure I will inspector . . . glad to help you out."

Dale went into a small room at the rear of the ground floor. It apparently was used as a sitting room, mostly by men, because it was untidy and showed the absence of a woman's touch.

The remains of Dinkie Roberts lay on the floor where he had fallen. Dale made a careful inspection of the room and such clues as it might afford. He was at it almost half an hour. During that time the doorbell had sounded and he heard Sergeant Owens' conversation in the hallway.

"Casket for Jack Bradshaw," he heard the expressman say. "One hundred an' thirty-five dollars collect."

"You guys work fast," Owens replied. "Dinkie hasn't been dead an hour yet an' here you are with the box. Set it down an' send the bill to the city . . . they'll have to buy one anyway."

Robin Dale continued his inspection. On the floor, in the corner, he found a note crumpled into a ball. He knew who had sent it. It was very brief. "Big Boy, I'm sending you a coffin. I hope it fits you, because you'll need it today." There was no signature.

Shortly after that Robin Dale went into the front room and found Sergeant Owens and Clymer busy thinking.

"I got it, sergeant. The man you want is a gangster, about six foot one or two and shoots lefthanded."

"What? You ain't Sherlock Holmes? What's crime comin' to? Awright, I'll bite. Why is the man we want a gangster, about six foot two an' shoots left-handed?"

"Come on in and I'll let you in on it, sergeant."

They went into the little room in the rear. Dale took his position near the body of Dinkie Roberts, on the spot where he must have stood when he was shot.

"He was standing about here . . . see? Examining the wound you'll find the bullet entered on the left side, right behind the heart, and it came out quite a distance to the right. If you'll stand behind me, sergeant, with your revolver you'll see that you'd have to shoot left-handed to make a bullet take that course, with me this close to the wall."

"Awright, wise guy . . . go on."

"Next; he was shot with a dum-dum bullet. Only gangsters use them, and, if that isn't enough, he was shot in the back! Now, for point number three: The bullet came out a little lower than it went in. Doing a little simple geometry that I learned at college, I find that the assassin is about four inches taller than the man he shot, making him about six foot one or two. Simple, sergeant, simple. . . all you need is a college education."

"What was the guy's name?" Clymer queried.

"Shut up, Clymer!" growled Owens.

"He didn't leave a calling card . . . when you get him, just ask his name," said Dale joshingly.

Maybe he didn't leave a calling card but he left something on the body that tells me he wasn't a gangster." Sergt. Owens dove into his vest pocket and brought out a bank-note. Dale saw that it was another of the $1,000 bills.

Robin Dale had not had time to recover from his surprise of this unexpected clue when the doorbell sounded again. Clymer went to answer the summons. After a moment Dale heard a woman's voice that sent a thrill through his frame. In another moment the little lady with the deep blue eyes was ushered in, none too gently.

Sergeant Owens took charge of the questioning.

"What do you want here?"

"I came to see Mr. Bradshaw," she replied nervously.

"Oh, you did, eh? Well, who are you?"

"What difference does it make?" Robin Dale interfered. He stood close to the little lady, and after he had spoken turned a gaze of reassurance toward her. She smiled wanly, but he saw the thanks in her eyes.

"A lotta difference! You keep your mouth shut, scribbler!"

"I'm Ruth Hackett."

"Any relation to Georgie Hackett?"

"He's—he's my brother . . . my half-brother."

"Well, ain't that nice! You'll have to come along with me, lady, and talk to the captain. We want to know something about Georgie Hackett and Big Boy Bradshaw."

"You can't do that, sergeant," insisted Robin Dale.

"Maybe we can't, but we're gonna! Clymer you stay here in case anybody shows up."

"What'll I do with 'em if anybody comes in?"

"Fry 'em a coupla eggs! What'll you do? Bring 'em over to the station, that's what you'll do!"

Robin Dale went with Sergt. Owens and Ruth Hackett. He walked beside the little lady. He took her arm for a moment as he helped her through the gate. Dale felt a thrill at the touch. But they walked down the street without speaking a word.

While they waited at the station for Capt. Morgan a call had been sent for the manager of the Hancock National Bank. Tenant arrived and identified the banknote found on Dinkie Roberts. He had a startling piece of news.

"That Dinkie Roberts must be the man who called at the bank to see Mr. Weadon today. He drove a taxicat which is still parked in front of the bank. It's the same one Weadon went off in just before he was murdered."

GIRL SAVES PET HORSE IN FIRE

POTTSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Risking death or serious burns from fire, Marian Kirland, 14, rushed into her grandfather's burning barn to lead her pet riding horse to safety. As she emerged from the flaming structure leading her horse the roof collapsed.

The fire, which occurred on the farm of Horace Kohl, destroyed the barn, crops and equipment, at a loss estimated at $8,000.

Spontaneous combustion in hay stored in the loft of the barn on James Torrens' farm caused a fire which destroyed the barn, crops and two horses.

Memorial Library Contract Awarded

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Aug. 20.—Contract for the Memorial Library at Geneva College, to cost approximately $125,000, was awarded to the Cook Anderson Company, Beaver. The library will be erected as a memorial to the Rev. Dr. Clarence E. Macartney, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh. It will be of collegiate gothic design, and will be built of Briarhill stone, trimmed with Indiana limestone.

"THINK KONJOLA WONDERFUL" SAYS PITTSBURGH MAN

Stomach Ailment and Run Down Condition Soon Banished By New Medicine.

Medicines, like men, are known by what they have actually done, not by the claims and promises that are made for them. The record of Konjola has made this master-compound America's most talked-of medicine. The Konjola Man at the Dow drug store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh, is prepared to tell you all about this master-medicine. Now read the interesting statement of Mr. Charles M. Martz, 101 East Montgomery Avenue, Pittsburgh:

"For six months I was in a badly run down condition and suffered from stomach trouble. had tried different kinds of medicine and did not seem to get any better. Through friends I heard of the results people were getting from Konjola. Up to this time I have taken four bottles of this medicine. Before I finished the third bottle I could see that I was getting results. I sleep and eat better and I seem to have a great deal more "pep." The reason I am endorsing this medicine is because it has done exactly what the Konjola Man said it would. I really think it is a wonderful medicine."

Konjola is free from alcohol, nerve-deadening drugs or heart depressing chemicals. It is all pure medicine and every drop works. Even infants can take Konjola.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow drug store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily. Konjola is sold also at all Dow drug stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

RING LARDNER ENTERTAINS ON WCAE TONIGHT; NEW KDKA FEATURE

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—While dance maestros are a class continue to their great drawing power of the air is so easy to believe that explosions might prove the greatest attraction to the airwaves of the land.

I have waited a year come Michaelmas Day for the good Calvin to air his shrewd knowledge of the political scene as it now is presented in the republic. I have about given up hope of hearing him.

Commenting against his own New England background and with the flavor of his own personality Coolidge could easily be the outstanding lure of the loudspeakers provided of course that he offered what the people would like to know rather than what he thinks it would be best for them to know.

It may be that some obscure but powerful tradition is holding him back. But for the life of me I cannot see why. Radio today is as dignified as the print shop. It offers an infinitely larger audience. If the sage of Northampton found radio useful during his occupancy of the White House—and he used it nearly forty times—it seems to me that he could find it useful now that he has moved out.

Broadcasters Wait For Coolidge's 'Yes'

They say the broadcasters have already sent out sounding lines to Coolidge. Perhaps they are approaching him at this very moment to bring his viewpoints to the radio with the same refreshing candor and humanness with which he brought them to magazine readers. If so, more power to their persuasion.

Hoover—indeed the entire administration—is radio-minded to a degree that was not even approached by Coolidge, and the latter so far as the microphone is concerned, was at no time the silent figure legend has painted him.

I wonder if Hoover is as regular an ear-cupper as he was said to be before he ascended the throne. Probably not. There have been too many senators massed before the microphones, too many assailants of the tariff and prohibition.

Charles Curtis holds to the vice presidential tradition of reticence. Since he raised his voice in tremulous excitement over the inferiorities of the Democrats in the hectic autumn of 1928 he has been heard but once or twice on the air. Then it was his custom to begin his radio speeches with the declaration:

"We do not open our campaign with 'The Sidewalks of New York,' but with 'The Star Spangled Banner.'"

It was always good for a cheer. Charles G. Dawes' "Melody" continues intermittently to penetrate the eardrums. Wonder if Dawes ever plays it himself? Wonder if he feels the same way toward it that Rachmanioff is said to feel toward his "Prelude?"

Radio Expected Aid to Theater

The manifoldes of the microphone are attempting to do for drama what they have already done for music—make listeners appreciate it, appreciate it on a way, perhaps, that will revive the queues at the boxoffice. Perhaps in radio lies the theater's renaissance.

Perhaps through radio the stage will gain the prestige it had before Massa Jolson stormed out of Hollywood with a tear in his voice for sonny boy.

There are only four figures in the world who, to our mind, could bring a nation panting to the armchairs as nothing short of a program from Mars could. They are Wilhelm of Amerongen, Pope Pius, Mussolini and George Bernard Shaw.

California's crop of theme songs—once it gave every promise of becoming the leading industry of the state—is dying. Tunes still pour out of the Hollywood hills, but they are no longer identified as theme songs.

The melody men of the movies might now turn their attention—as the microphone has already done—in tracking down the origins of familiar chants. It might pay them well.

The ear-cuppers, my agents report, never tire of those broadcasters who temporarily cease their deep quaffs of the Maine stein song to trace "We Won't Go Home Until Morning" to its native lair. The old rowdy voice-strainer has been hunted as far as Beethoven. Why stop at him? Beethoven probably borrowed it from somebody else.

Tunesmiths Reflect Moods of the Moment

The songwriters are now agitating the air with "Cheer Up, Good Times Are Coming," thereby testifying they are not so sure "happy days are here again." The tunesmiths occasionally leap ahead of public opinion, but their heaviest doughbags are centered about those melodies that reflect the moods of the moment.

Six hours comprise the usual time of adapting a play to radio. Yet, only 20 minutes were once required to fit "Camille" to the microphone. The omission of the coughs made the condensation easy.

* * *

Unemployment has not yet hit the jazz bands. Show me an idle saxophonist and I'll show you a fellow who really doesn't know how to play a saxophone.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

Ring Lardner will brighten the radio dial tonight. He will entertain WCAE listeners at 10:30.

WCAE will take "East of Cairo" starting next Wednesday. This feature has met with great success in other cities. It is a dramatic sketch with Oriental music, something on the scale of "Arabesque."

Incidentally, Yolande Langworthy and Columbia are still wrangling about the title rights of "Arabesque." Yolande's attorney has notified stations on the CBS circuit that they will be liable to prosecution for using the feature. Only one station—WHP, at Harrisburg — has dropped "Arabesque." The local station, WJAS, does not intend to discontinue the feature which is now being written by members of the Columbia continuity staff.

Yolande and Columbia fell out over a salary agreement.

Hawaiian music will feature the Dic-a-Doo Cleaners, a new program on KDKA at 7:45 o'clock.

Jo Tyler's special arrangement of "My Buddy" will be a WJAS highlight at 8 p. m.

Mary McCoy

"Just a Little Closer" and "Swinging in a Hammock" will be Mary McCoy's contributions to the Camel hour on KDKA at 9:30. The demure little entertainer will sing several vocal interludes. At the same hour Olive Palmer will repeat the "Indian Love Call" for WCAE fans.

It's true! Frank Andrum, guitar player on Noon Novelties, WCAE, sits on the back ledge of a chair during this broadcast. If that chair ever tilts, someone is going to go boom!

"Howdy" Clark has one of the prettiest whips we've seen on a golf course. He socks 'em 200 yards and better, every time. He does the Sewickley "Y" course—a very beautiful layout—in 85.

DEVOTION TO DUTY

Ford Miller came near being shot for a burglar the other a. m. while pacing the house in his sleep, blatantly reciting, "This is Station WCAE . . . one . . . two . . . three . . . four . . . operating on a wavelength of twelve hundred and twenty kilocycles by authority of the Federal Radio Commission. Kindly stand by for further announcement." His wife, Rose, says it's a habit and wants to know what can be done about it.

QUESTION A DAY

Clarence Grundy, Mt Washington—What is the height of the average radio tower?

A.—This varies according to construction and location. The new KDKA towers are 125 feet high. WCAE about 100 feet, WJAS 110 feet, KQV 75 feet.

NEWS ABOUT HAPPENINGS IN HOLLYWOOD AND ALONG BROADWAY

Al Jolson to Do German Picture Featuring Foreign Cast

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 20.

Though the German version of "Sons of Guns" fell through, Al Jolson tells me he will make a picture over there this fall.

Curtis Mannix, head of a German film concern, is said to have completed arrangements with Joseph Schenck during his recent visit to Hollywood. The story, Al says, concerns the return of a German American family to the fatherland.

Al will speak German, will be the only American star in the cast. The director, however, will be foreign. A company is preparing to present plans. The picture will be started September 2 in Berlin and will be finished in time for Al to return to Hollywood for "Sons of Guns." The latter film goes into production around November 15.

Al Jolson

The Jolsons leave for Europe in a short time. Several film jobs have been offered the former Ruby Keeler, but she has not accepted any of them.

"All she wants," explains Al with his broad grin, "is for somebody to offer her a job, and to know that she could go to work if she wanted to."

Hollywood sees very little of this couple. Al hates parties and runs with a small group of close friends. He and Joseph M. Schenck are ardent golf opponents, despite the fact that Al nearly always wins.

CLAIMS RECORD

Joseph Jackson, somewhat, is said to hold the talking picture record. He has received screen credit on 25 feature productions since the coming of the audible films.

The writer and his wife, whom you knew on the screen as Ethel Shannon, leave on August 22 for a three months' vacation in Europe.

HER MAIDEN VOYAGE

Having seen "Moby Dick" safely on its way at a local theater, John Barrymore will bundle his family on board the Infanta and depart today on a cruise down the Mexican coast.

This time the baby goes along. It will be her maiden voyage and great care has been taken to assure her comfort. A built-in crib is one of the features of the floating nursery that this youngster will adorn.

It seems that I was a little off the other day about the baby's age. Barrymore tells me she is four months old.

"A beautiful child," he adds originally.

RICHMAN WORKS

Clara Bow's ex-boy friend, Harry Richman, is working for Paramount, too.

Clara Bow

TRICK SHOTS

Some tricky camera shots have been devised for Roland West's production of "The Bat Whispers."

West claims he has the longest (trick) shot on record in the film. A "trolley" shot is where the camera makes an unbroken record of a chase or similar action. West's camera on a railway followed through two entire stages, about 200 yards.

This mystery thriller also has one of the baffling zoom shots. This is accomplished by a contraption that sends the camera 16 feet (in this instance) in a fraction of a second, and as straight and as silent as a spear. West's technician, Charles Cline, built a zoom machine for $400. Some time back, one of the other studios invested $17,000 in a similar machine.

GARLAND FLAYS NUMBER POOL

OIL CITY, Pa., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Racket corruption in large cities was assailed by Robert Garland, Pittsburgh councilman, in an address before the Oil City Rotary Club.

Garland pointed to Chicago as an example of what may happen, and his attack was directed principally at the numbers racket, which he declared was taking lunch money from school children. He said the chances of winning were 1,000 to 1 against the gambler.

The councilman said such conditions existed not because there was a dearth of good people in the large communities, but because these people were apathetic.

Gay Time

Dorothy Sebastian has a gay and romantic time of it in "Ladies Must Play," film coming to the Enright Friday.

WRIT DELAYS DEPORTATION

A few hours before he was to be taken to New York for deportation to Greece, Steve Klados, 52, who operates a store in Steubenville, O., obtained a writ of habeas corpus in Federal Court delaying the move.

The court called upon William Marshall, immigration inspector, to show cause why Klados, who said he came to this country 14 years ago, should be deported.

'Rum Queen' Again Caught by Police

READING, Pa., Aug. 20.—(INS)—Violet Bueltner, so-called "Queen of Lancaster County Rum Runners," has fallen into the toils of the law again.

The attractive 22-year-old blond was seized by state troopers from the West Reading barracks in a raid on a still in the hills near Stroudsburgh along the William Penn highway yesterday. It marked the fourth time she had been seized on liquor charges.

COPYRIGHT 1930 DAILY MIRROR, INC.

Special Delivery

I thought I'd drop you just a tiny note.
And let you know I'm still around the town;
I've kept the final letter that you wrote—
The one in which you gently let me down.

I didn't even know you moved away
Until I happened by a week ago;
(Gee, honey, but your little street looked gray—
I never dreamed a place could alter so.

There's no one living in your cozy flat,
No roses in your window any more;
Remember all those evenings that we sat
And watched the lights upon the other shore?

Well, lights and love flame up and disappear,

Did I Die???

It happened in front of the National Vaudeville Artists' Club on Forty-sixth street. That is, it happened in front of what is left of that club. Mal Donovan, an official of that place left the club about 2:30 a. m., walking straight into the pistols of two stick-up guys.

As the Mahut stood there with his arms lifted high, William Southard of the club witnessed the scene from an office window. Southard frantically blew on a whistle—a whistle he usually blows to summon his gang.

So what happened?

Sixteen taxicabs drove up!

Add Mouthfuls!

"I wish," wishes the incessantly amusing Izzy Elinson, "that all those endurance sitters would go sit on a tack!"

Epitaph

They were reminiscing about one of the Unsolved Crimes again last night, and someone recalled the time that a murder was committed in the Park Central Hotel here. So have a shudder.

The night after the killing, the huge electric sign atop the hostelry blew a fuse, and the only letters in Park Central that remained lighted were the second and third letters in Park—the initials of the victim—Arnold Rothstein.

Reasons Enough

"You're always so indifferent to him. Why don't you treat him decently?"

"Oh, he's all right, I guess, but he dances on crowded night club floors with his elbows way out to here . . . When he feels coy he pulls the tie out of your vest . . . When he accidentally tips over a bottle of ginger ale, or your drink, he tries to make comical cracks, yet! . . . When he is confronted by the people he knocks, he hopes t'die if he did, and he is the type of pill who lets four subway trains pass by trying to get back his penny out of the slot machine. Now do you understand?"

After All Those Years!

One of Manhattan's more popular dramatic critics has a very young daughter who never witnessed an opening night. Her daddy promised many times that some day he would take her along with him—when she was "old enough to stay up until 11 p. m."

The other night he decided to take her to see the premiere performance of "Suspense," a new war play by an all male troupe.

Imagine his feelings when throughout the piece the actor-soldiers kept cussing in the "What Price Glory" manner.

And to make matters worse he had no alternative in plays for her to see, everything in town being more or less highly seasoned.

Newspaperman Stuff

The veteran Park Rogues tell the most engaging stories. Prize example: The time a noted cartoonist belittled Frank Munsey and drew a cartoon showing an unmistakable likeness of Munsey paying newspaper men small salaries.

It burned Mr. Munsey up and knocked him cold, so he bought the paper employing the cartoonist and then fired him! And he managed to keep him out of work for many years. After Munsey's death the cartoonist connected again and is now among the rages.

Oop!

Julius Tannen, one of the better squelchers, won another decision over a heckler at a Long Island party the other eve'g. Lester Allen, the pint-sized belittler, began picking on Julius by reminding listeners that during the war Tannen was a "Dollar-a-Year Man." "And," added Allen, "he was overpaid, at that!"

"Maybe so," indifferently responded Tannen, "but in case you all didn't know it, Lester Allen began his career as a jockey in Hanvana—riding mice!"

COSTE FLIGHT AGAIN DELAYED

LE BOURGET, France, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Capt. Dieudonne Coste, French flying ace in a trial flight to test his radio apparatus, found that his airplane "Question Mark" was too heavily laden for a flight to New York. His start on the trans-Atlantic attempt was again postponed.

Continued bad flying weather in mid-ocean and on the Fourth Atlantic seaboard with strong headwinds, was an added reason for delaying it.

Mechanics were busy removing two additional fuel tanks, each with a capacity of 100 gallons of gasoline.

TRACE ALCOHOL RING TO PENNA.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Special prohibition agents, charged with ferreting out the major liquor conspiracies, today sought in Pennsylvania and Maryland the financial sponsors of a huge alcohol running ring recently exposed here.

Seven persons, including two women, all arrested in Washington, were being held for preliminary hearings before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

The group is believed by prohibition officers to have disposed of 24,000 gallons of alcohol within two months. This, the officials said, was brought to Washington in the form of perfumery and other legitimate merchandise, redistilled and sold to local bootleggers.

The source of this supply, believed to have originated in Pennsylvania and Maryland, is now the objective of the authorities.

Predicts New Law Will Reduce Milk Supply

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 20.—The milk supply of Fayette County will be reduced by approximately 8,000 gallons daily after September 1, on which date the new state dairy law becomes effective, County Farm Agent C. D. Uitel predicted today.

It was pointed out that a number of farmers who are supplying milk for this district will retire from business due to the lack of funds with which to equip their dairy barns to conform with state regulations.

Patient Finds Doctor Dead in His Office

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 20.—Dr. Simeon C. Truby, 50, a practicing physician, was found dead sitting in a chair in his office here late yesterday by a patient. Dr. Truby had been in failing health for several months.

26 CROSSINGS ABATED IN YEAR

HARRISBURG, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Every second week during the last year saw one more grade crossing eliminated in Pennsylvania.

Samuel Eckels, chief engineer of the State Highway Department in a report made public today, revealed 26 crossings carrying highways over railroad tracks were abolished during the year ending July 1, at a cost approaching $3,500,000. Of that sum the Highway Department contributed more than one-third, or $1,217,772.

The abolition of the crossings was at the direction of the Public Service Commission, but in many of the cases the Highway Department instituted the complaints which resulted in the decisions to eliminate them, the report said. The commission also allocates the cost, the railroads, local municipalities and other public utilities sharing the expense with the state.

PITTSBURGH'S COOLEST PLACE TO SHOP

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

By WILLIAM PFARR

This phase, in truth, will never be written: "James (Red) Mason, the popular manager of fighters . . . ." It will never be written because Mason, far from popular, is the mob's enemy. All boxing shows it is not enough for the mob to shout invectives against him but they must assail his honest, tan.

Mason is, nevertheless, one of the most interesting characters in this or any town. For 40 years he has been parading about Pittsburgh and the country, shouting his loiter, prejudiced opinions of one and all. Once, after he had lost a bet on the ball club of his good friend, Connie Mack, he walked into Mack's dressing room and laid low with angry adjectives the athletes who had hosted the game away. Another time, before the days of the boxing commission, he stood alone in a ring and to a crowd of 1,500 which was shouting for his scalp, he returned: "If there's anybody in this house that can put me out, let 'em try it." Nobody tried. Months ago Mason went to the hospital with a jaw bruised by another manager, a gin-size person who was fired by Mason's vitriol. Weeks ago a usually mild and likeable fight follower hung one on his chin. From such clashes as these Mason comes back unchanged.

It is probably true that Mason doesn't have an intimate friend, and it is probably true he doesn't want one. His wife is dead. He lowers his voice to a respectful tone when he mentions his only child, a daughter, who goes to boarding school. Half of those who know him would scoff at the statement that Mason gives much to church and charity, but he does.

His acquaintances marvel at his physical condition. At his sixties, he seems 50. He plays exhausting handball with the vigor of a 30-year old. A few years ago he used to play with his brother, the late Harry Greb, for a few dollars a game, and if Greb beat Mason once, Mason reformed the combination three dozen times.

Mason has grown up with boxing, and of its crooked, rough and tumble days he knows as much as any man. He himself was once a fighter but after a few punches on the chin he decided that managing fighters was equally remunerative and less punishing. Later he was the trainer of the Pirates, before Barney Dreyfuss bought the club. Now he delights in sitting back of the plate at Forbes Field and booing, in a booming voice which reaches all parts of the field, the visiting team. If he is betting against the Pirates, he is silent, but more than one visiting ballplayer would like to lay an ungentle hand on "that guy Mason."

The mob's hatred for him can be traced to his unconcealed naivsam and to the theories he will go to win. If the boxing commissioner is not on hand to silence him, he will sit at the ringside shouting directions to his fighter and irritating challengers at his opponent. At analyzing an opponent's weaknesses he is keen, and he is a convincing master in bolstering the confidence of his own charges.

Promoters of boxing shows like to do business with Mason for there is a fair streak in him which makes such dealings pleasant. Seldom does he ask too much for his honors. When more he works for the success of a show as few other managers can.

None of Mason's fighters ever could match his showmanship. Consequently, he is today, if not wealthy, then well-to-do. He lives in a rather fashionable apartment, dresses well and expensively, now and then succumbing to a weakness for flash in clothes. He could afford a chauffeured limousine, but he rides the street cars. When he is not visiting his daughter at her school in New York state, or a sister who is ill in Chicago, he is hanging out with second-rate fighters and third-rate fight followers. He like to gamble and he is vain. He is not a drinker, neither does he smoke. He goes to church regularly. He likes publicity favorable or unfavorable and although we are not one of his enemies, when he reads this he will turn to anybody and says, "That dirty so-and-so."

SISTER FREED AT HEARING IN RUM DEATH

Stepfather, Confectionery Raided, Friend of Victim Awaits Coroner's Inquest

Walter Kruckles, the 12-year-old boy who, police say, yesterday sold liquor that proved fatal to Charles Richards, 51, of 1811 Manhattan street, was held for Juvenile Court this morning at a hearing before Magistrate John J. Sweeney in North Side police court.

The lad admitted selling "shots" at two for a quarter. Stanley Smith, alleged proprietor of a confectionery store in Manhattan street, where the liquor was sold, and step-father of the boy, was turned over to the coroner. William Vukovich, 56, 1326 Warner street, in whose home Richards died, was also turned over to the coroner.

Mary Krukles, 21, sister of the thugs leaped out and ordered the women to hand over the package containing the money. With the loot, the pair re-entered their automobile, at the wheel of which remained a third man, and sped away.

Several hours later police recovered the bandit car at Irwin avenue, near Columbus avenue. The car had been stolen from in front of an East End automobile agency Monday night.

boy, was discharged.

Smith told Magistrate Sweeney that he had liquor in the store, but denied that he knew his stepson was dispensing it.

SEARCH FAILS FOR PAYROLL BANDITS

Abandoned Holdup Auto Found; No Trace of 3 Who Took $3,776 From Women

No trace had been found by police today of three bandits who escaped with the $3,771.35 payroll of the North Side Laundry Company, Winifred and Juccess streets, after forcing two women employes of the company to drive to the curb at Island avenue and Brighton road, yesterday afternoon.

Miss Margaret E. Hood, of 313 Hutchinson avenue, Edgewood, bookkeeper, and Mrs. Albert F. Bourck, of Oak Hill, Perry Manor, clerk, were en route to the plant with the payroll when the bandit car crowded a machine driven by Miss Hood against a curb. Two of the thugs leaped out and ordered the women to hand over the package containing the money. With the loot, the pair re-entered their automobile, at the wheel of which remained a third man, and sped away.

Several hours later police recovered the bandit car at Irwin avenue, near Columbus avenue. The car had been stolen from in front of an East End automobile agency Monday night.

TABULATIONS VARY, SAYS REPORT

State Senate Counts in 12th District Cited; Phantom Ballots Are Segregated

The recount board checking disputed ballot boxes used at the primary election last May 20, has filed reports with Prothonotary John Vogt for two districts in the Sixth Ward.

Referring to the check of the Eleventh District, the report states:

"The count of the election board was very close to that of the recount board."

TABULATIONS VARY

The board's report of the Twelfth District says:

"The count of the election board varied throughout from that of the recount board as will be noted from tabulations and general return sheet."

Regarding the latter note, the greatest difference between the two tallies was in the vote for state senator. The recount board credited Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., with 150, Patrick F. Riley with 15, whereas the election board did not give either a vote.

The recount board found only 48 votes for Sarah Ford, candidate for member of the Republican state committee. The election board credited her with 182.

CONGRESS VOTE

The board reported finding in the ballot box for the Eleventh District 244 Republican ballots and two Democrat ballots. The numbered list of voters contained 246 names. The report called attention to the tallies for candidates for Congress from the Thirty-fourth District as follows:

Vare, 244; Sullivan, 2. For F. J. Sullivan and 47 for P. J. O'Malley against 0 for Republican return sheet. It will be noted that this recount would be impossible as there were only 244 Republican ballots in the box and the total vote for this office is given in the election board is 246 which is the total number of Republican and Democrat ballots in the box."

The recount board credited Sullivan with 196, O'Malley, 46.

PHANTOM MARKS

The board segregated 10 ballots in the Eleventh district because of phantom cross marks, voided 16 because of erasures, multitudes and double markings and 47 because of double marks.

Eighty-eight ballots were voided because of phantom marks and 47 because of double marks.

Duquesne Residents Hold Annual Picnic

The city of Duquesne was deserted today, as residents held their annual communion outing under the auspices of the Business Men's Association at Kennywood Park. A swimming meet, sports program, dancing amusements and a golf driving contest are on the extensive program arranged by the committee in charge, which includes John T. Waite, general chairman; A. W. Levine, Harry MacFarlane, J. P. Buck and Hyman Perderber.

The public outing sponsored by the Kroger Grocery Company is set for tomorrow at Kennywood.

TEACHER WILLS SCHOLARSHIP

The will of Cora E. Early, former school teacher, of 4720 Center avenue, filed for probate today, leaves an estate of $13,500.

The amount of $4,000 from the estate will be held in trust for Robert W. Early, Jr., a nephew, until he comes of age. To Mrs. Cora Elizabeth Pallenberg, of Spruce alley, W. Va., $1,000 will be given. Mrs. Marion Pallenberg, of Danville, Ky., will receive $1,000. A maid of the deceased, Elizabeth Reed, of Troy, will get $200.

Of the remaining part a half will go to Robert W. Early, Jr., a fourth to Robert W. Early, Sr., and a fourth to create a $500 scholarship at the Pittsburgh College for Women. The school's authorities will determine to whom the scholarship will be awarded.

RENTAL ANGLE IN ARSON PLOT

The wholesale jewelry establishment of Friedman Brothers, at 1011 Penn avenue, where an incendiary attempt was discovered Monday night, faced a constable sale unless rental amounting to $1,180.81 was paid, according to a notice posted in the door of the building.

In connection with the arson plot, detectives said they arrested Max Friedman, 38, a member of the firm, at 6054 Lafayette street. Rubbish sprinkled with gasoline was found piled up in the rear room of the store, firemen reported, after they had seen a burning candle, according to detectives.

Friedman was released in bond following a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court yesterday.

The suit for the rental was filed by Constable Frank A. Riley, of Alderman Thomas A. Flaherty's office.

HUSBAND HELD IN SLASHING

George W. Rose, 39, of 2411 Sarah street, was held by Magistrate John J. Sweeney in South Side police court today on a charge of felonious cutting following an alleged attack on his wife late yesterday.

Arrested on a charge of drunkenness, Rose, according to police, became boisterous and $35 he had on his person was taken in charge by the desk sergeant. A short time later Rose's wife, 33th, 38, appeared and was given the money after she told police, they said, she needed it to pay the rent.

A friend effected Rose's release a few hours later. Going home, police said, Rose remonstrated with his wife for taking the money and attacked her with a butcher knife when she refused to hand the sum to him. Five stitches were required to close her wounds, police said, when Rose was arraigned on Mrs. Rose's complaint.

Driver Little Hurt As Train Hits Auto

Fullerton T. McGough, 31, of 315 Third avenue, Aspinwall, suffered cuts of the face and bands yesterday when an freight train struck his automobile on a crossing in Aspinwall. McGough's car stalled in the train's path and was hurled from the tracks. The driver having a narrow escape from death.

Man Hit by Auto Sues for $15,000

Charles A. Colmery, of Wilkinsburg, asks $15,000 damages from Doctor Viola Bentin, in a suit on file today in Common Pleas Court. He claims her automobile struck and severely injured him while he was attempting to cross Wilmot street June 28, 1929.

$35,000 ASKED FOR INJURIES

Mrs. Rose Shields has filed suit for $25,000 damages and James Shields for $10,000 in an action for $10,000 in Common Pleas Court against B. F. Schuchman, of 1300 Homestead Park, as a result of an automobile crash on the Boulevard of the Allies April 14.

They charge that Mrs. E. Marie Schuchman, wife of the defendant, driving at high speed near Brady street, crashed into a car in which the plaintiffs were riding. Both say they were severely injured.

Harvest Problem Puzzle To County Chiefs

The county is ready to harvest its annual hay and oats crop. The county commissioners learned something about farming when the matter came up at the meeting yesterday.

Parks Director Paul S. Riis presented a letter in which two contractors had bid 5 cents a bushel to thrash and $2.50 a ton to bale. He suggested that the contract be divided, one man to do the thrashing and the other the baling.

Commissioner Babcock was puzzled. He asked:

"How are you going to have a man at the threshing and the other the baling?"

Riis answered:

"Baling is hay. Thrashing is oats."

Commissioner C. C. McGovern asked Riis how many bushel of oats he expects to get from the 90 acres under cultivation. Riis said:

"I don't know. Some of it is a foot high, and some of it is less than that."

The contracts were awarded as Riis suggested.

2 Women Among 60 to Practice Law Here

Two women are among 60 new lawyers to be admitted to practice in local courts next month, according to word received from State Board of Law Examiners in Philadelphia.

The group passed the bar examination held here July 1 and 2. They include Bessie Anna Kahn, of Black street, and Ellen C. Hoge, of Sterrett street, Crafton.

STOWE LEAVES CHAMBER

President James Rea, of the Chamber of Commerce, has received the resignation of Arthur J. Stowe, for more than four years manager of the commerce division of the organization, it was announced today.

Mr. Stowe, for a time, served as assistant manager, co-operating with A. V. Snell, who resigned to do organization work. As commerce division manager, he organized several of the Chamber's councils, notably the Foreign Trade and Wholesalers. He was secretary of the airport committee from the time of its inception, and during the time at which the Mifflin Township site was recommended as a county airport. He served as secretary, also, to a number of other committees.

Prior to coming to Pittsburgh Stowe was secretary of the Chambers of Commerce in Jacksonville, Fla., and Charleston, S. C. His future plans have not yet been announced.

Pittsburgh Woman Hurt in Collision

MEADVILLE, Pa., Aug. 20.—Miss Elmer Gill, Meadville, was arrested and charged with reckless driving following an automobile collision in which Mrs. Glenn Logan, 7725 Braddock street, Pittsburgh, was cut about the head.

State highway patrolman said Gill swerved his car into the path of the machine occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Logan.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

TAHOE TAVERN, Cal., Aug. 20.

Half of England has been in Scotland half the summer, awaiting the arrival of the Duchess of York's new baby. The Scotch would get a long whoop like that. What has caused all the rumpus is that the Prince of Wales has said that if it was a girl baby that he would marry. It just shows what inconvenience some men will put themselves to to prevent a woman from being queen.

The Middle West got rain. Even the Lord couldn't stand to wait on the Republicans forever. Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

SAFETY TESTS DRAW 35,000

Nearly 35,000 children in 37 playgrounds have taken part in the third annual summer traffic safety contest held by the Better Traffic Committee of Walter Rose, chairman of the education section, said today. Final judging of the Bureau of Recreation's playground safety records was to be made late today.

The contest, which opened July 7, closed today. The meeting at which the records were to be judged was to be attended by W. C. Bachelier, superintendent of the Bureau of Recreation; Dellmont Dowell and J. Vincent Brown, general playground supervisors, and Traffic Officer Frank F. Meyers and Emergency Fireman Robert A. Capes.

Two Ask $50,000 As Result of Crash

Claiming an automobile made a left turn without sounding a warning, and knocked over their motorcycle, Henry J. Lang and Robert Linder, South Hills youths, have each filed $25,000 damage suits in Common Pleas Court against Homer Hunt, of Gibsonia. The accident occurred May 25, on Mt. Lebanon. Both say they received severe injuries.

King Liberates Man Who Tried To Slay Him

BARCELONA, Spain, Aug. 20.—(AP)—After serving 17 years at hard labor for attempting the life of King Alfonso, Buncho Alegre has left the prison a free man by virtue of a pardon from the monarch he had attempted to assassinate.

King Alfonso was attending a military ceremony when several shots were fired at him. Sanchez was sentenced to death, but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

Sanchez professes himself still opposed to monarchy, but said he would refrain from all political activities.

POLICE PISTOL TEAM SET

The revolver team of the Pittsburgh police force will leave tomorrow for Toledo where they will compete in the United States Police championship beginning Monday.

More than 80 teams from various cities of the country will be in the meet. Winners of these will go to Fort Perry, O., for matches with police teams from European cities. The semi-finals will begin August 28 and the finals will be held the day following.

Those who comprise the local team are City Detective Guy M. Dailey, captain; Detective William T. McCready, Detective Sergeant George Brubach and Detective Patrolman Charles South.

Damage Slight When Bridge Takes Fire

The south end of the Glenwood Bridge at Main caught fire early today and firemen from the South Side district were summoned. According to the police report, the fire started from sparks from a switching engine on the railroad tracks under the bridge. The damage was slight.

BIGELOW BLVD TO BE TARRED

Bigelow boulevard is being resurfaced from Craig street to Hermon avenue today with tar and slag instead of the usual asphalt.

H. S. Pellow, superintendent of highways and sewers, under whose direction the resurfacing is being made, contends that there is no possibility of the tar melting and becoming a menace to motorists' shoes. Pellow also claims that the danger of skidding is greatly reduced and the cost of resurfacing is much less.

To resurface with asphalt, the city would be compelled to pay approximately $2 a square yard, he says; while the material now being used costs about 20 cents a square yard.

When Bigelow boulevard has been completed between the two points, the Boulevard of the Allies will also be treated with the same process, according to Pellow.

East End Garage Wrecked by Blaze

A double one-story garage at 5108 Lotus way was destroyed by fire at a loss of $1,100 early today, according to a report at the East End Police station. The garage is owned by Martin Mauth, of 5189 Dunbar street. An automobile owned by H. H. Norman, of 5173 Stanton avenue, was destroyed.

Damage Slight When Bridge Takes Fire

The south end of the Glenwood Bridge at Main caught fire early today and firemen from the South Side district were summoned. According to the police report, the fire started from sparks from a switching engine on the railroad tracks under the bridge. The damage was slight.

County to Build Subway Under Road for Cows

Instead of endangering their lives by crossing the state road in Moon Township near Coraopolis the cows on the Rinck-Nettrour Dairy Farm are to have a $3,000 concrete subway built under the road for them.

The county commissioners authorized construction of the underpass nine feet square at their meeting yesterday. By agreeing to build it they obtained a waiver of property damages from the owners of the farm. The new road bisects the farm at the point where the dairy cattle must either cross or go under the road to their watering place.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

This phase, in truth, will never be written: "James (Red) Mason, the popular manager of fighters....." It will never be written because Mason, far from popular, is the mob's enemy. At boxing shows it is not enough for the mob to shout invectives against him but they must assail his boxers, too.

Mason is, nevertheless, one of the most interesting characters in this or any town. For 40 years he has been parading about Pittsburgh and the country, shouting his bitter, prejudiced opinions of one and all. Once, after he had lost a bet on the ball club of his good friend, Connie Mack, he walked into Mack's dressing room and laid low with angry adjectives the athletes who had booted the game away. Another time, before the days of the boxing commission, he stood alone in a ring and to a crowd of 1,500 which was shouting for his scalp, he returned: "If there's anybody in this house that can put me out, let 'em try it." Nobody tried. Months ago Mason went to the hospital with a jaw bruised by another manager, a pint-size person who was fired by Mason's vitriol. Weeks ago a usually mild and likeable fight follower hung one on his chin. From such clashes as these Mason comes back unchanged.

It is probably true that Mason doesn't have an intimate friend, and it is probably true he doesn't want one. His wife is dead. He lowers his voice to a respectful tone when he mentions his only child, a daughter, who goes to boarding school. Half of those who know him would scoff at the statement that Mason gives much to church and charity, but he does.

His acquaintances marvel at his physical condition. In his sixties, he appears 50. He plays exhausting handball with the vigor of a 20-year-old. A few years ago he used to play with his fighter, the late Harry Greb, for a few dollars a game, and if Greb beat Mason once, Mason returned the compliment a dozen times.

Mason has grown up with boxing, and of its crooked, rough and tumble days he knows as much as any man. He himself was once a fighter but after a few punches on the chin he decided that managing fighters was equally remunerative and less punishing. Later he was the trainer of the Pirates, before Barney Dreyfuss bought the club. Now he delights in sitting back of home plate at Forbes Field and booing, in a booming voice which reaches all parts of the field, the visiting team. If he is betting against the Pirates, he is silent, but more than one visiting ballplayer would like to lay an ungentle hand on "that guy Mason."

The mob's hatred for him can be traced to his unconcealed sarcasm and to the lengths he will go to win. If the boxing commissioner is not on hand to silence him, he will sit at the ringside shouting directions to his fighter and irritating challenges at his opponent. At analyzing an opponent's weaknesses he is keen, and he is a convincing master in bolstering the confidence of his own charges.

Promoters of boxing shows like to do business with Mason for there is a fair streak in him which makes such dealings pleasant. Seldom does he ask too much for his boxers. What's more, he works for the success of a show as few other managers can.

None of Mason's fighters ever could match his shrewdness. Consequently, he is today, if not wealthy, then well-to-do. He lives in a rather fashionable apartment. He dresses well and expensively, now and then succumbing to a weakness for flash in clothes. He could afford a chauffeured limousine, but he rides the street cars. When he is not visiting his daughter at her school in New York state, or a sister who is ill in Chicago, he is hanging out with second-rate fighters and third-rate fight followers. He like to gamble and he is vain. He is not a drinker, neither does he smoke. He goes to church regularly. He likes publicity, favorable or unfavorable and, although we are not one of his enemies, when he reads this he will turn to anybody and says, "That dirty so-and-so."

SISTER FREED AT HEARING IN RUM DEATH

Stepfather, Confectionery Raided, Friend of Victim Awaits Coroner's Inquest

Walter Kruckles, the 12-year-old boy who, police say, yesterday sold liquor that proved fatal to Charles Richards, 51, of 1811 Manhattan street, was held for Juvenile Court this morning at a hearing before Magistrate John J. Sweeney in North Side police court.

The lad admitted selling "shots" at two for a quarter. Stanley Smith, alleged proprietor of a confectionery store in Manhattan street, where the liquor was sold, and step-father of the boy, was turned over to the coroner. William Vukovich, 50, 1326 Warner street, in whose home Richards died, was also turned over to the coroner.

Mary Krukles, 21, sister of the boy, was discharged.

Smith told Magistrate Sweeney that he had liquor in the store, but denied that he knew his stepson was dispensing it.

TEACHER WILLS SCHOLARSHIP

The will of Cora E. Early, former school teacher, of 4720 Center avenue, filed for probate today, leaves an estate of $13,500.

The amount of $4,000 from the estate will be held in trust for Robert W. Early, Jr., a nephew, until he comes of age. To Mrs. Cora Elizabeth Palmenberg, of Spring Valley, N. Y., $1,500 will be given. Mrs. Marion Palmenberg, of Tenafly, N. J., will receive $1,000. A maid of the deceased, Elizabeth Reid, Ellwood City, will get $200.

Of the remaining part a half will go to Robert W. Early, Jr., a fourth to Robert W. Early, Sr., and a fourth to create a $300 scholarship at the Pittsburgh College for Women. The school's authorities will determine to whom the scholarship will be awarded.

HUSBAND HELD IN SLASHING

George W. Snee, 39, of 2411 Sarah street, was held by Magistrate John J. Sweeney in South Side police court today on a charge of felonious cutting following an alleged attack on his wife late yesterday.

Arrested on a charge of drunkenness, Snee, according to police, became boisterous and $35 he had on his person was taken in charge by the desk sergeant. A short time later Snee's wife, Ella, 36, appeared and was given the money after she told police, they said, she needed it to pay the rent.

A friend effected Snee's release a few hours later. Going home, police said, Snee remonstrated with his wife for taking the money and attacked her with a butcher knife when she refused to hand the sum to him. Five stitches were required to close her wounds when taken to South Side Hospital. Snee was rearrested on Mrs. Snee's complaint.

Driver Little Hurt As Train Hits Auto

Fullerton T. McGough, 21, of 315 Third avenue, Aspinwall, suffered cuts of the face and hands yesterday when a freight train struck his automobile on a crossing in Aspinwall. McGough's car stalled in the train's path and was hurled from the tracks, the driver having a narrow escape from death.

Man Hit by Auto Sues for $15,000

Charles A. Colmery, of Wilkinsburg, asks $15,000 damages from Grace Viola Brown, in a suit on file today in Common Pleas Court. He claims her automobile struck and severely injured him while he was attempting to cross Wilmot street June 28, 1929.

SEARCH FAILS FOR PAYROLL BANDITS

Abandoned Holdup Auto Found; No Trace of 3 Who Took $3,776 From Women

No trace had been found by police today of three bandits who escaped with the $3,771.35 payroll of the North Side Laundry Company, Winifred and Success streets, after forcing two women employes of the company to drive to the curb at Island avenue and Brighton road, yesterday afternoon.

Miss Margaret E. Hood, of 313 Hutchinson avenue, Edgewood, bookkeeper, and Mrs. Albert F. Boucek, of Oak Hill, Perry Manor, clerk, were en route to the plant with the payroll when the bandit car crowded a machine driven by Miss Hood against a curb. Two of the thugs leaped out and ordered the women to hand over the package containing the money. With the loot, the pair re-entered their automobile, at the wheel of which remained a third man, and sped away.

Several hours later police recovered the bandit car at Irwin avenue, near Columbus avenue. The car had been stolen from in front of an East End automobile agency Monday night.

RENTAL ANGLE IN ARSON PLOT

The wholesale jewelry establishment of Friedman Brothers, at 812 Penn avenue, where an alleged arson attempt was discovered Monday night, faced a constable sale unless rental amounting to $7,192.81 was paid, according to a notice posted in the door of the store today.

In connection with the arson plot, detectives said they arrested Max Friedman, 38, a member of the firm, of 6654 Ridgeville street. Rubbish sprinkled with gasoline was found piled up in the rear room of the store, firemen reported. Atop the heap was a burning candle, according to detectives.

Friedman was released in bond following a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court yesterday.

The suit for the rental was served by Constable W. A. Riley, of Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan's office.

$35,000 ASKED FOR INJURIES

Mrs. Rose Shields has filed suit for $25,000 damages, and James Gallogly has entered an action for $10,000 in Common Pleas Court against B. F. Schuchman, of Edna street, Homestead Park, as a result of an automobile crash on the Boulevard of the Allies April 14.

They charge that Mrs. E. Marie Schuchman, wife of the defendant, driving at high speed near Brady street, crashed into a car in which the plaintiffs were riding. Both say they were severely injured.

TABULATIONS VARY, SAYS REPORT

State Senate Counts in 12th District Cited; Phantom Ballots Are Segregated

The recount board checking disputed ballot boxes used at the primary election last May 20, has filed reports with Prothonotary John Vogt for two districts in the Sixth Ward.

Referring to the check of the Eleventh District, the report states:

"The count of the election board was very close to that of the recount board."

TABULATIONS VARY

The board's report of the Twelfth District says:

"The count of the election board varied throughout from that of the recount board as will be noted from tabulations and general return sheet."

Regarding the latter note, the greatest difference between the two tallies was in the vote for state senator. The recount board credited Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., with 150, Patrick F. Riley with 15, whereas the election board did not give either a vote.

The recount board found only 48 votes for Sarah Ford, candidate for member of the Republican state committee. The election board credited her with 162.

CONGRESS VOTE

The board reported finding in the ballot box for the Eleventh District 244 Republican ballots and two Democrat ballots. The numbered list of voters contained 246 names. The report called attention to the tallies for candidates for Congress from the Thirty-fourth District as follows:

"The count of 139 for P. J. Sullivan and 47 for P. J. O'Malley appears on the Republican return sheet. It will be noted that this count would be impossible as there were only 244 Republican ballots in the box and the total vote for this office given by the election board is 246 which is the total number of Republican and Democrat ballots in the box."

The recount board credited Sullivan with 196, O'Malley, 46.

PHANTOM MARKS

The board segregated 10 ballots in the Eleventh district because of phantom cross marks, voided 16 because of erasures, mutilations and double markings and called attention to one because marks were made in different colored pencils.

In the box for the Twelfth district the recount board found 182 ballots in the box and two numbered lists of voters, one with 182 names and one with 158 names.

The board segregated 91 ballots because marks were made with different colored pencils; 24, because marks on all appeared to have been made by the same person. Eighty-eight ballots were voided because of phantom marks and 47 because of double marks.

2 Women Among 60 to Practice Law Here

Two women are among 60 new lawyers to be admitted to practice in local courts next month, according to word received from State Board of Law Examiners in Philadelphia.

The group passed the bar examination held here July 1 and 2. The women are Bessie Anna Kahn, of Black street, and Ellen C. Hoge, of Sterrett street, Crafton.

STOWE LEAVES CHAMBER

President James Rea, of the Chamber of Commerce, has received the resignation of Arthur J. Stowe, for more than four years manager of the commerce division of the organization, it was announced today.

Stowe, for a time, served as assistant manager, co-operating with A. V. Snell, who resigned to do organization work. As commerce division manager, he organized several of the Chamber's councils, notably the Foreign Trade and Wholesalers. He was secretary of the airport committee from the time of its inception, and during the time at which the Mifflin Township site was recommended as a county-city airport. He served as secretary, also, to a number of other committees.

Prior to coming to Pittsburgh Stowe was secretary of the Chambers of Commerce in Jacksonville, Fla., and Charleston, S. C. His future plans have not yet been announced.

SAFETY TESTS DRAW 35,000

Nearly 35,000 children in 57 playgrounds have taken part in the third annual summer traffic safety contest held by the Better Traffic Committee, Walter Rosenbaum, chairman of the education section, said. Final judging of the Bureau of Recreation's playground safety records was to be made late today.

The contest, which opened July 7, closed today. The meeting at which the records were to be judged was to be attended by W. C. Bachellor, superintendent of the Bureau of Recreation; Della E. Conwell and J. Vincent Sexton, general playground supervisors, and Traffic Officer Frank F. Meyers and Emergency Fireman Robert A. Capes.

Levine, Harry Macfarlane, J. F. Bork and Hymie Ferderber.

Harvest Problem Puzzle To County Chiefs

The county is ready to harvest its annual hay and oats crop. The county commissioners learned something about farming when the matter came up at the meeting yesterday.

Parks Director Paul B. Riis presented a letter in which two contractors had bid 5 cents a bushel to thrash and $2.50 a ton to bale. He suggested that the contract be divided, one man to do the thrashing and the other the bailing.

Commissioner Babcock was puzzled. He asked:

"How are you going to have one man do the threshing and the other the bailing?"

Riis answered:

"Bailing is hay. Thrashing is oats."

Commissioner C. C. McGovern asked Riis how many bushel of oats he expects to get from the 90 acres under cultivation. Riis said:

"I don't know. Some of it is a foot high, and some of it is two feet high."

The contracts were awarded as Riis suggested.

FAMILY HURLED FROM BEDS BY BLAST

Victim Unable to Give Clue To Terrorists; Denies Receiving Any Threats

The Italian colony in Sewickley Heights was rocked by a bomb explosion which shattered windows and damaged the front porch of the home of Joseph Ziparo, on the Quarry road early today.

Ziparo, his wife and their five children asleep on the second floor of the frame dwelling, were hurled from their beds. The bomb had been placed against a corner of the house. The report of the blast was heard throughout the Italian settlement and routed many from their beds.

Ziparo could shed no light on the bombing and denied receiving any threats. County detectives and Sewickley Heights police began an investigation.

CHILDREN AID MILK FUND

Five little Dormont youngsters hit upon a new and novel way to raise money for the Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund. Several weeks ago the girls of the quintet, Anna and Dorothy King, painted flower pots in the modernistic manner, filled them with plants of brilliant color and sold them.

With the help of the other three, Blaine Robert and Kendall King, the summer's work was climaxed with a concert, for which cleverly decorated programs were made. The chief feature, however, was the "rythmic band." As a result of their six weeks' work, the fund is richer by $7.37.

Today it stands:

|---|---|
| Previously reported | $491 48 |
| Four children of Dormont | 7.37 |
| Beginners' Department of the First U. P. Church | 5 00 |
| Ladies' Friendship Society | 5 00 |
| Total | $508 85 |

BELL BUILDING CONTRACT LET

As a prelude to establishment of the dial system in Sharpsburg, the Bell Telephone Company announced today that the contract had been let for a central office building at Main and Fourteenth streets. W. F. Trimble and Sons are the contractors.

More than $700,000 will be spent, according to the company, for the office, its equipment and installation of dial type instruments.

The building of fireproof construction, one story high with basement, will have a frontage of 71 feet and a depth of 90.

PLEA ON BRIDGE COST REJECTED

The county commissioners yesterday refused the request of the Pennsylvania Railroad to pay half of the cost of replacing a concrete abutment on the bridge across the tracks at Glenfield with a steel railing. The county's share was not to exceed $100.

The commissioners declared the railroad was responsible for the work and believed that the railroad should pay the cost.

Miss Shirley, 1225 Arkansas avenue, Dormont, another in the baby beauty contest. The show will be held at Kroger Stores' annual picnic at Kennywood tomorrow afternoon.

OVER 600 SEEK BABY HONORS

Everything is set for what promises to be the greatest baby beauty contest ever held in Pittsburgh. The big event takes place tomorrow afternoon at Kennywood Park as the feature of the Kroger Stores' annual picnic. The Sun-Telegraph has co-operated in the search for the most beautiful children in the Pittsburgh reading area and proud mothers have already entered more than 600 babies.

The judging of the babies will begin promptly at 1:30 o'clock in the picnic grove bandstand. There will be six classes as follows:

Boys and girls under 1, boys and girls from 1 to 3, boys and girls from 3 to 5.

There will be special prizes for twins, triplets and "quads." More than 20 handsome silver cups will be given to winning babies. There are three cups for each class, and additional cups for the babies who do not quite win the first three places.

The most important thing of all is for parents to be on time with their babies.

It is expected that 60,000 persons will attend the Kroger picnic, all of the chain stores in Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Northern West Virginia closing at 1 o'clock tomorrow on account of the affair. Harold D. Sparks, branch manager of the Kroger stores, is in entire charge of the affair.

Aside from the baby contest, there will be athletic events, a bathing beauty contest, a treasure hunt, aquatic events in the swimming pool, prize waltzes and prize fox trots on the dance floor.

Picnic Tomorrow In Riverview Park

The annual picnic of the Economy Building and Loan Association will be held tomorrow in Riverview Park. Features of the outing will be an exhibition by the Pittsburgh Police Dog Training Club and athletic events. R. Frank and A. J. Wesp will head the affair.

Birthday Party For Dance Promoter

The fiftieth birthday anniversary of Johnny Jones, promoter of old-time dances, will be celebrated tomorrow evening at a party in Palm Garden Park, Boggs avenue. Dancing will be the feature of the party.

OBITUARY

Boyd Funeral.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon for James M. Boyd, 74, who died in his home in Miami, Fla., Friday. Mr. Boyd, a native of old Allegheny, will be buried from Asberle's chapel, North avenue, North Side, and burial will be in Highwood Cemetery. Mr. Boyd was born on the North Side and lived there for many years. Later he conducted a grocery store in East End. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias, Junior Order United American Mechanics and the Christian Church. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Margaret Waters Boyd, a son and two daughters.

Novak Funeral.

Funeral services for Charles F. Novak, 57, who died in Waynesburg Saturday, will be held at the Beinhauer funeral home, 2630 West Liberty avenue, at 2:30 p. m. Thursday. Besides his widow he leaves three brothers, Emil, of Dormont; Gust, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Hugh Novak, of Milwaukee, and a sister, Alvina Wawrzenczak, of Merrill, Wis.

DRIVER FLEES AT SIGHT OF OFFICERS

Deserts Machine Laden With Contraband; Agents Make Heavy Haul of Moonshine

Two large stills and a truck were in the possession of prohibition agents today as a result of three raids yesterday.

While the agents were conducting a raid on the home of Patsy Patazrte, 45, at Oakdale, a truck laden with 50 tin containers, 3,000 pounds of corn sugar and 100 pounds of yeast drove up to the front of the house, the raiders reported. The driver of the machine fled into the woods near the Patazrte home when he observed a raid in progress.

Patazrte was arrested after a 100-gallon still, 96 barrels of mash and 125 gallons of moonshine were found in his place, according to the agents. The truck and its contents also were seized.

Joseph Moraway, 31, of 1002 Banksville road, was arrested following the seizure of a 75-gallon still in his home, it was reported.

Confiscation of 135 gallons of moonshine in a garage near his home resulted in the arrest of Joseph Velk, 40, of 308 Furnace street, McKees Rocks, the dry officers asserted.

The Camera Question Box

Today's Question—What season of the year do you find the most enjoyable?

Mrs. McGrew

MRS. MARGARET McGREW, Housewife, Bellevue—I like the spring the best. Everything is new then and has such a fresh appearance. It's like a housecleaning when everything is made to look like new again after a long time of dustiness.

Clifford E. Luft

CLIFFORD E. LUFT, Salesman, Millvale—In my opinion the summer is the best part of the year. You can go camping and on outings then—things that you can hardly ever do in the winter.

S. B. Schutzman

S. B. SCHUTZMAN, Shopowner, Pittsburgh—I prefer the winter because I like the cold weather, but outside of that they're all alike. Whether you like one or the other depends on your mood at the time.

Harold Boyd

HAROLD BOYD, Clerk, Bellevue—I think October is the nicest month of the year. The leaves are turning then and the woods are bright. The air is cooler than at any other time and the sun is clearer.

Robert Kerr

ROBERT KERR, Schoolboy, Bellevue—I like the autumn because it's not cold and it's not hot. It's nice weather to play in and is the most comfortable season of the year.

George Groff

GEORGE GROFF, Schoolboy, Bellevue—I think the spring is the nicest part of the year. Everything is green and nice and looks so clean and different.

Oldest Postoffice Employe to Retire

Levi E. Palmer, 80, of 2974 Mattern avenue, Dormont, superintendent of mails at the Pittsburgh postoffice, will retire from service August 31, he said today. He has been in the postal service 57 years, 44 of which have been spent in the Pittsburgh office. He is said to be the oldest active postoffice employe in the United States.

HUNT FOR GIRL'S ASSAILANTS

While police were conducting a search for her two assailants, Miss Anna Puszko, 19, of 1633 Penn avenue, today was recovering from severe bruises inflicted by the pair in the Washington street tunnel beneath the Bigelow boulevard last night.

Miss Puszko, a waitress at the Sorrento restaurant, at 8 Washington street, scarcely had stepped into the tunnel, a short distance from the restaurant, when two young men ran down the stairs after her, she told police. One held her arms behind her back while his accomplice struck her in the face. After a brief struggle the pair became frightened and fled and Miss Puszko ran back to the restaurant. Police scoured the neighborhood a short time later, but found no trace of the men.

Prison Ship Sails For 'Devil's Island'

LISBON, Portugal, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—The prison ship Mozambique today sailed on its annual voyage to Loanda, the portuguese "Devil's Island." The passenger list was made up of racketeers, gunmen and safebreakers sentenced to long terms in the penal settlement. Their accommodations consisted of steel cages, heavily guarded.

Band-Day Pals To Serenade Davis

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 20.—When Secretary of Labor James J. Davis comes here Saturday as guest of local people he will be greeted by music furnished by members of the old Citizens Band, of which he was a member in his boyhood days.

James Goodall, rounding up the surviving members of the old band, says an extra clarinet will be on hand in case Secretary Davis wants to join with his former buddies in several old-time tunes.

FIND GIRL, MAN FINED $10

Stanley Jones, 22, a plasterer of West View, was fined $10 this morning in Morals Court by Magistrate James J. O'Connor for disorderly conduct.

Jones was arrested yesterday on the North Side in the company of a 15-year-old girl who had been missing from her home since Saturday. The girl was held for Juvenile Court.

Jones testified that he was accosted by the girl and bought her food when she told him she was hungry.

STATE EXTENDS BILLINGS TRIAL

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—New testimony threatened today to prolong the hearing of Warren K. Billings' application for pardon.

As the defense neared the end of its long list of witnesses, justices of the Supreme Court indicated new material to be produced by the state would prevent concluding the case this week.

Developments as a result of an inquiry by Police Capt. Goff, may show "the Preparedness Day outrage was the most diobolical and sinister plot ever planned in this country," he said.

An anonymous letter attempted to show a purported "frame-up" to free Mooney and Billings had been developing for the last 14 years.

AUTO HITS GIRL ON SCOOTER

Agnes Godovichin, 8, of Polish Hill, Mifflin Township, was injured late yesterday when the scooter on which she was riding in the Homestead-Duquesne County Road, near her home, ran into the path of an automobile driven, police said, by J. T. Brown, of Bull Run, Mifflin Township.

Brown reported the accident to the police, who released him on his own recognizance. Witnesses said the accident was unavoidable.

Ask Woodcock's Aid In Identifying Drys

BALTIMORE, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Maryland Automobile Club officials went to Washington today for a conference with Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition. They announced they expected he would give details of a plan he devised to enable motorists to distinguish prohibition agents on highways at night.

The conference is the second called as a result of charges of Edward G. Duncan, a state road engineer, and wife, that they were fired on by two prohibition officers, whom they could not tell from highwaymen.

Prussia Bans Rum On Election Day

BERLIN, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Sale of hard liquor on the Reichstag election day, September 14, has been prohibited in Prussia by a decree of the Minister of the Interior of that state.

Restaurants and saloons selling milder intoxicants, such as wines and beers, are subject to closing on election day where public behavior calls for such steps.

Custer Veteran, 100, And Wife, Buried

FAIRFIELD, Idaho, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—A double funeral was conducted yesterday for Bill Kruse, 100-year-old prospector, reputedly in charge of Gen. Custer's ammunition train, during the Little Big Horn massacre, and his 84-year-old wife, who escaped death in the Indian massacre at Fort Union, N. M., in 1862.

BROAD QUIZ DUE IN EWALD CASE

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(INS.)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was expected to issue a statement today which may order a sweeping inquiry into the alleged buying and selling of judicial appointments in New York City.

This will come on the heels of an order naming Attorney General Hamilton Ward to replace District Attorney Thomas T. C. Crain, of New York City, in prosecution of the Ewald case before the special grand jury September 15. This case involves the alleged purchase of his seat on the bench by former Magistrate George F. Ewald.

From those close to the Governor, it was learned today that he will declare in his statement that he intends either to broaden the investigation of the Ewald case, so as to have a sweeping state probe of traffic in judicial appointments, or to order special investigations separate from that of the grand jury.

The Governor was reported as studying several methods of procedure. Any time between now and September 15, he can issue an order broadening the investigation. He can ask the Appellate Division in New York City to make an inquiry or he can request the New York City Bar Association to conduct an investigation.

The Bar Association would have no authority to call witnesses, but the Appelate Division would.

Banned Bucknell Star Given Decree

RUBBER OUTPUT MAY BE CUT

LONDON, Aug. 20.—(Universal)—To maintain the price, the Rubber Growers' Association has approached the Colonial Office with the request that it consider special legislation in the Malay states to limit the export of the commodity.

Dutch producers contemplate a similar move with regard to colonial rubber production. About 95 per cent of the rubber grown is produced in British and Dutch territory, and more than half of the production is British.

Overproduction is blamed by the Anglo-Dutch producers, who have just ended a convention. They declare that unless intervention is made, stocks will accumulate to such an extent as to threaten the foundation of the industry and jeopardize the livelihood of hundreds of thousands of native and European workers.

M'GOUGH CASE DELAYED

The hearing of Edwin T. McGough, former inspector of city detectives, head of the Edwin T. McGough Detective Agency, and president of the Edwin T. McGough Motor Aid Society, set for today was postponed to Aug. 28 by Magistrate James J. O'Connor in Oakland Police Station.

McGough was arrested yesterday following a hearing given Meyer Giffen, 35, before Magistrate O'Connor. Giffen was charged by Anthony Napoleon, 3139 Ward street, with obtaining money under false pretense by representing himself as an insurance agent.

Two months ago Napoleon, according to his story, gave a representative of McGough's company $10 as part of a $29 payment which insured him.

On payment of the $19 balance, Napoleon was to get a certificate. He failed to get the certificate.

COAL MEN UNITE IN RATE FIGHT

SPANGLER, Pa., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—More than 300 bituminous coal operators of Western Pennsylvania, at a meeting here last night, organized to oppose freight rates they declare are discriminatory against the Pennsylvania coal industry.

Fred R. Maurer, of Spangler, was named chairman of a temporary committee which will be represented at Washington September 8 when the Interstate Commerce Commission resumes hearings on the freight rates cases.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, one of the speakers at last night's conference, told the operators lower wages in Southern fields gave the producers of that area an unfair advantage over Pennsylvania operators, and urged the bituminous interests of this state to be fully represented at the Washington hearings.

Four Priests Escape Injury in Auto Upset

GRAFTON, W. Va., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—The Rev. William Kelly, of St. Peter's Church, Hancock, Md., and three other priests, narrowly escaped injury when Father Kelly swerved his car to avoid hitting a little girl on the Northwestern turnpike.

The automobile turned over and was wrecked, but the four occupants escaped injury. Accompanying Father Kelly were Father Slade and Father Beafield, of Cumberland, Md., and Father Roach, of Washington.

Alleged Bandit Held In Default of Bond

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Andrew Jacobs, 40, who, it was charged, placed a gun against the head of Stanley Owoco to force the latter to reveal the hiding place of his money, was held for court in default of $3,000 bond. Jacobs was alleged to have taken a small amount of money and several hundred dollars in securities from Owoco.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Folk Active in Mountains

In the White Mountains, where there may be found a colony of Pittsburgh society folks, the final days of August are marked by comings and goings, informal luncheons and bridges and occasional benefits.

Miss Mabel Lindsay Gillespie, who is summering at the Mountain View House in the White Mountains, has just returned from Kennebunkport, Me., where she went with Miss Isabelle Chalfont for a brief visit.

The Mortimer Millers have arrived to be the guests of Mrs. Alfred E. Hunt at the Mountain View House. Their daughter, Mrs. Roy A. Hunt, is with her family at Sugar Hill. The Roy A. Hunts, who have joined the exclusively Profile Golf Club at Franconia near Sugar Hill, attend the baseball games, golf tournaments and teas given there Saturdays.

Yesterday Mrs. Hunt attended a musicale and tea at Knoll House given by Mrs. W. I. Lincoln Adams.

Judges Horses

Miss Betty Frost was the only woman judge at the horse show held at the Maplewood Polo Grounds Saturday afternoon. Frank R. Frost has arrived to spend the remainder of the season at the Mountain View House with his family. And Mrs. Frost entertained recently with a luncheon and bridge.

The Ira E. Bixlers and the C. C. Dolls are at the Forest Hill, Franconia, N. H.

The Robert J. Clevelands are also in the White Mountains, and so is Mrs. Jessie D. Maxwell. On Saturday they were spectators at the annual bal masque given at the Crawford House.

The C. C. Taggarts are at the Mt. Pleasant, and Mrs. Arthur Hill Smith will remain at the Mountain View House until autumn.

Anne and Mary Stettz, of Valmont street, Squirrel Hill, are spending the month of August with their grandparents, the W. N. Sauers, at the Stevens House, Lake Placid, N. Y. They were winners of the first prize at a pajama party held in the Stevens House Friday evening. Both girls were dressed in red and white sailor pajama suits.

There's much visiting from summer resort to summer resort in the final days of the season.

Visit Resorts

And folks having summer places at the various resorts have been entertaining gay housefulls of friends.

The J. Frank Drakes, who are at Hyannisport, have as their guests their son-in-law and daughter, the Chester H. Lasells. Mrs. Lasell was popular Ruth Drake, a bud of the past winter, before her marriage in June. Virginia Drake, another daughter of the Drakes, who'll make her bow this winter, is with her family, and has as her guest just now Cherry Ross, of Morristown, N. J.

Priscilla Hall has arrived in Hyannisport, where she's the guest for the remainder of August of her sister, Mrs. J. L. D. Painter.

guests of Evelyn Evans, daughter of the Howard S. Evanses, of Beechwood boulevard, at their summer place in Wiano.

The Samuel Hartwells are the guests of Mrs. George W. J. Bissell.

The Malcolm W. Leeches and Paul B. Dickey have returned home from Hyannisport. Mrs. Dickey is still at the resort, where she'll remain until mid-September.

After being the guests of the Frank Adair Leovys at Hyannisport, the Reese Scullys have returned to Pittsburgh.

The John Jackson Bissells and their young son, John Jackson Bissell, Jr., are at the Hyannisport place of Mr. Bissell's mother, Mrs. George W. J. Bissell, and will not return until after Labor Day.

Members of Epoch Club To Go 'Adventuring' In Desert, Air

The thrill of "Adventuring"—with explorers, in the air, in the theater, in science, in architecture, in social welfare, in education, among the crafts, and in government, will be experienced by Epoch Club members this season. An expansive and interesting program is outlined in the new year books which have just been mailed to the members.

With the explorers, the women will have papers on the "Romance of Excavation," "Adventuring in the Gobi Desert" and "The Ocean's Floor," and in the air they will consider "New Uses for Flying," "Aeronautic Exploration" and "Latest Aircraft and Famous Fliers." The theater will furnish material on "Expressionism," "Contemporary Stage Decoration" and "The Theater of the Future," and equally worth-while programs have been prepared under the other topics.

In addition to those already mentioned, there is a day set aside for "Personal Adventures," on which Mrs. Frank D. Newbury will tell of her adventures in English Gardens and Mrs. H. D. James of hers among Florentine art treasures. A late season afternoon will be devoted to "Women Who Ventured."

And of course there is the usual president's reception (Thursday afternoon, October 23, in the home of the retiring executive head, Mrs. Albert Vencill), and a guest day or two, with guest speakers, among them Miss Alice Thurston McGirr, of Carnegie Library, who will give a book talk, and the annual meeting and luncheon to bring the season to a close.

Program Outlined

Of more than the usual interest is the program foretold for the Woman's Club of Forest Hills in the new year books. A political talk by Miss Suzanne Beatty, assistant city solicitor, is the September (and opening) attraction. October lists a guest day at the Penn-Lincoln Hotel with Elsie Breese Mitchell giving a musical program. Mrs. J. E. Webster will address the members in November, speaking on "The Modern Attitude Towards Life" and the Rev. Dr. George Taylor, Jr., will follow that with a Christmas talk. January finds a talk on the press and the annual birthday party; February, a visit from the author, Elinor Cowan Stone, and March a play directed by Mrs. A. D. Kirk.

For the April meeting the women will go to the Braddock National Bank to be guests of George Todd, president of the bank, and to be addressed by Raymond Wilson on "Our Relations with Japan." A discussion of "Prisons and Prisoners" by two of the club members in May and then a June trip to the Allegheny Observatory and another year will have been rounded out.

At its four meetings during the season, the art, drama and music department will visit the International Art Exhibit, will have a luncheon at the Congress of Clubs and will discuss "Color and Why" and "American Folk Music."

"Cookery in Foreign Lands," "Some Psychological Devices of the Modern Novel," a talk by Mrs. Hazel Cole Shupp, a tea and exhibition of treasurers and a visit to the Joseph Horne Company are the events scheduled by the home economics, child welfare and educational department of the club.

Annual Reunion

The Hiland Pioneer Club, composed of the Hiland exchange telephone operators of 20 years ago, will hold its second annual reunion at the Ladies of the G. A. R. Home, Hawkins Station, tomorrow in conjunction with the annual dinner at the home.

* * *

The annual picnic of the women's committee of the American Institute of Banking was held Thursday in Fricks Woods, with Miss Frances Lawrence, newly appointed chairman of the committee, in charge. Howard Hardie, retiring president of the organization, presented Miss Sara Leety, retiring chairman, and Miss Nora Maskrey, secretary, with gifts on behalf of the committee members.

FABRICS GIVE NEWEST EVENING MODE INTRINSIC RICH BEAUTY

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, AUG. 20. The glamor of the night is this season a reality based on materials intrinsically rich in color and quality. Although there are countless new and intricate details, the richness of the fabrics themselves is sufficient to give the 1930 evening mode reason to claim distinction. Trimming is therefore handled with discretion in order not to detract by over elaboration from the beauty of the chosen fabric, which is apt to be a heavy satin, a lame or a rich velvet.

IN A VIEWING of recent collection we were so impressed by the numbers of Florentine sleeves that appeared on evening wraps as well as afternoon dresses that we feel called upon to mention it here. One wrap for instance of bright red velvet, full length and fitted at the waistline exploited the graceful charm of the Florentine sleeves. The coat was lined with white satin which was permitted to show at the slasher on the sleeves, the latter being bound with bands of white ermine. A de Medici collar of white ermine completed this most aristocratic and handsome garment.

DECOLLETES ARE CUT out for unusual interest just now with couturiers apparently disagreeing as to the depths that they should go. While in one collection one sees a tendency toward great modesty even in sophisticated models with higher necklines current even in dinner dresses, another couturier will show models with very low cut backs. Chanel has compromised in this matter by reintroducing her long, soft flowing scarfs that, draped about the neck and flowing to considerable length, perhaps one in front and one in back, give the gown a desirable attitude of femininity.

TWO GOWNS THAT have met with enthusiastic approval here are sketched for you today. They are commentaries on the continued and outstanding popularity of the all black and the all white gown for formal evening wear. Here Irene Dana has employed white moracain to design this model which bespeaks elegant simplicity. Distinctive and graceful is the drape which flutters from the low cut decollete. Simple trimming is supplied by a necklace of black enamel and strass which matches the belt buckle. The successful black evening dress from Worth is cleverly created with a dull black satin bodice and a very full skirt of black tulle. Worth has solved the problem of the decollete in this model by using no back at all, merely employing shoulder straps of strass which cross in the back and fasten at each side of the natural waistline.

ROBINS PLAY 39 DAYS WITHOUT BREAK

WHAT IS POSSIBLY a new record for continuous playing action in a major league pennant fight may have had something to do with the recent slide of Brooklyn's erstwhile pace-setters in the race for the Heydler flag. Though the fact has escaped general notice, Capt. Glen Wright and his Robin mates have been subjected to a strain of steady work such as few, if any, championship contenders have ever before undergone during the hottest stage of a campaign. When they left Pittsburgh last night the Dodgers had been playing steadily through a stretch of 39 days without a single afternoon off.

Glenn Wright

Starting on July 12, the Brooklyn Club has seen championship action every day since. There has been neither an open date nor a postponement to break the remarkable run of activity. In the 39 days, every other club in the league has been encountered, and with the Cincinnati series now starting the Robins will have visited every other city in the circuit. Forty-five games in all have been played without interruption, which means that the string has included six double-headers.

ADD THE NUMEROUS jumps that the schedule has required them to make involving the spending of many nights on railroad trains during the sultriest period of the year, and it will be found that for almost six weeks the Brooklynites have been against an unbroken strenuous grind that is probably without a parallel. It is unusual when a club goes through a stretch longer than two weeks without a day's rest here or there.

Possibly this isn't the only item that has entered into the Dodgers' slump, but there is hardly any doubt that it has been a contributing factor. For that reason it might be well not to count the Robins out of the pennant hunt just yet. They appeared to be "down" and breaking in their final series here, and the loss of 10 out of 13 straight games at a critical stage, with a drop from first place to third in nine days, would ordinarily indicate that a club was about "shot," but in the case of the Dodgers there is still a chance that they may fight their way into the running again when they get back to their own grounds for a long stay.

ALONG WITH EARL WHITEHILL'S 11 consecutive victories for Detroit and other outstanding pitching performances of recent weeks in the majors must be classed some remarkable work that has been done by Carl Hubbell for the Giants.

When he defeated the Cardinals yesterday, Hubbell rounded out a string of four straight games, all way from home, in which he allowed a total of only five runs and 22 hits. He lost to the Robins, 1 to 0, and defeated the Pirates, 7 to 2, the Reds, 5 to 0 and the Cardinals, 4 to 2. The left-hander surely has done his share in putting the New York Club back in the race.

Carl Hubbell

GOOD PITCHING WAS all that the Giants needed to give them a pennant chance as good as that of the Cubs or Robins, and now that they are getting it their rivals probably will have plenty of trouble beating them to the wire. The rise of the McGrawites to second place and to a point so close to the leaders that they must again be reckoned formidable flag contenders has not been due to any fluke, but to steady run of high-class ball in the last month, during which they outplayed both Chicago and Brooklyn. Of their last 27 games, the Giants have won no fewer than 21. In the same period, the Cubs have won 18 out of 27, and the Robins only 13 out of 27.

ANOTHER OF THOSE crucial series is just ahead in the National League's sizzling pennant fight. The Giants invade Chicago tomorrow for a set of four games that will have an important bearing upon the standing of the contenders and possibly upon the outcome of the race itself.

If the Cubs win three out of four they will be sitting pretty with a gain of two full games. If the Giants do that well, on the other hand, the race will begin to assume a New York complexion. If the McCarthys and McGraws break even and the Dodgers meanwhile take a brace in Cincinnati the Robins will be back in the thick of things by Sunday night. It sure is a dizzy whirl.

THE POLE VAULT is an event that promises to produce some of the keenest competition and most brilliant performances featuring the A. A. U.'s National championship track and field meet at The Stadium Friday, Saturday and Monday.

Fred Sturdy of the Los Angeles A. C. is the present A. A. U. champion. He won the title last year with a mark of 13 feet 9¼ inches. But the crown is being tipped to shift to a new head during the Pittsburgh carnival and the man generally rated as having the best chance to capture it is Tommy Warne, of Northwestern University.

Fred Sturdy

DURING THE RECENT European tour of five American athletes, of whom Pete Bowen, Pitt sprint champion, was one, Warne's vaulting was a standout, and on the strength of his achievements abroad it is predicted that he will be at the peak of his form in the local meet. That may mean not only a new champion, but a new record, or at least a close approach to the latter. On several occasions, Warne has cleared the bar at 14 feet 2 inches (the world record is 14 feet 1¼ inches), only to have his efforts count for naught because in his descent he dislodged the cross piece. With a little luck here he may come close to the top figures.

THOUGH FEW PERSONS may have viewed it in that light, Edwin Dooley contends that pole vaulting is one of the most strenuous forms of athletic competition. He is supported by Sabin Carr, Sturdy, Warne, Colyer, Sutermeister and other stars in the assertion that it robs an athlete of his vitality and shatters his endurance, regardless of how well trained or how muscular he may be.

The repetition of the strenuous exertion of hoisting himself over the bar at great heights is extremely exhausting to the vaulter. That is advanced as the reason why a pole specialist, in trying for a record, will seldom take more than two or three tries. He knows that after a few attempts his strength will be gone and he cannot hope to accomplish his purpose.

SEVEN COAST STARS RECORD VICTORIES

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 20 (AP)—Eighteen-year-old Helen Marlowe, of Los Angeles, led the California delegation to a series of brilliant victories in the second round of the national women's tennis championship yesterday.

Scoring the first upset of the tournament, this latest of the tennis-playing Helens from the Golden State eliminated the veteran New York player, Eleanor Goss, 7-5, 8-6, to gain a place in the third round.

SEVEN ADVANCE

Despite the absence of their two leading players, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs, the Californians captured most of the honors of the day, placing seven of their number among the 16 survivors. Only two players from California met defeat in the course of the day.

Other sections did not fare so well, the Eastern representatives dwindling from 15 to four, while the Middle West's representation fell off from four to two and the South's from two to one.

The foreign contingent, consisting of Betty Nuthall, of England, and the Baroness Georgio Giacomo Levi, of Italy, came through with smashing straight-set victories. Miss Nuthall defeated Mrs. Ary J. Lammee, of Rye, N. Y., 6-1, 6-1, and the Baroness, who is the former Maude Rosenbaum, of Chicago, chopstroked her way to a 6-0, 6-1 decision over Florence LeBoutillhere, of Westbury, N. Y.

While most of the 700 spectators were intent upon less dramatic matches staged in the stadium, Miss Marlowe brought about the downfall of her famous opponent on one of the outside courts before a handful of onlookers.

FACES TEST TODAY

Miss Marlowe will clash today with Penelope Anderson, of Richmond, Va., the lone surviving representative of the South. Miss Anderson overcame Edith Sigourney, Nahant, Mass., 7-5, 7-5.

In the only reverse that the Californian group suffered at the hands of another section all afternoon, Marjorie Gladman, of Santa Monica, was upset by Mrs. J. Dallas Cormiere, of Boston, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Although extended to three sets and dangerously near defeat in the process, Edith Cross, of San Francisco, the No. 3 ranking player of the country, came through against Alice Francis, of Orange, N. J., and will meet Miss Nuthall in the third round today. The scores were 6-3, 2-6, 6-3. Miss Cross showing plenty of speed but poor control.

Flowers Stopped By Justo Suarez

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (AP)—Justo Suarez, Argentine lightweight, knocked out Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle, N. Y., Negro, in the sixth round of their scheduled 10-round bout at the Queensboro Stadium last night. Each weighed 136½ pounds.

The end of the one-sided bout came one minute and five seconds after the sixth round had gotten under way and marked a sudden change in the fighting tactics of the Argentine. After using his right to send the Negro to the mat for a count of nine in the second round and again in the third, Suarez suddenly shifted to a left hook, two of which drove his Negro opponent back to the ropes and the third of which put him on the mat for the full count.

The English government lately has instituted some energetic measures to stamp out this abuse, which is highly prejudicial to the welfare of India. I drew the bride from life immediately after the ceremony. The age of the groom was six years. The "marriage" remains a mere formality until the children reach the age of 11 years. ## MARKEY WINS IN TOURNEY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP)—Thomas Markey, of Indianapolis, advanced to the quarter finals of the eighth annual public parks tennis tournament today with a straight set victory over Robert Hall, of Louisville, 6-1, 6-1, 6-0.

George Jennings, of Chicago, defending singles champion, entered the semi-finals by defeating J. C. Miller, of Birmingham, 6-2, 6-3, 6-0.

Ted Drewes, of St. Louis, four-time winner of the singles championship, entered the quarter finals by eliminating Leo Kronman, of Buffalo, in straight sets, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3.

Monte Tiller, of Louisville, was eliminated by Dooly Mitchell, of Washington, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

Robert Considine, second entry from Washington, defeated the remaining entry from Buffalo, Edward Nowak. The scores were 6-3, 6-2, 7-5.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN,

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—Frank Broida, driving little Harvard southpaw and Steel City representative in the eighth annual national public parks tennis championships in progress this week, was eliminated from the nation-wide men's singles tilting yesterday afternoon, but in going down to second-round defeat the lad who performed so brilliantly to capture honors in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph revival of the Pittsburgh public parks title tournament last month sank with colors flying; for his conqueror, Ted Drewes, rangy giant, of St. Louis, was pushed most vigorously to carry off an 8-6, 6-1, 6-3 decision.

Drewes was national municipal premier in 1924, 1925 and 1926, and was seeded No. 5 in the current tourney, only those crack performers, George Jennings, of Chicago; Jack DeLara, of Los Angeles; Jack Castle, of Buffalo, and

PITT CONTEST POPULAR

How are you coming along with your all-time, all-Pitt football team? Have you those guards figured out yet? And how about those halfbacks?

Pittsburgh football fans are getting a splendid opportunity to win free tickets to Pitt's football games this fall in the very interesting contest sponsored by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. All you have to do is select an all-time Pitt eleven embracing the great stars that have worn the Blue and Gold, that comes closest to matching the team selected by James J. Long, Sun-Telegraph commentator and dean of local sport scribes.

Why, it's as much fun as playing the game yourself, with all the broken noses and busted legs thrown out.

Beginning next Sunday, a series of articles will be published in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, in which the great stars of Pitt history will be named and clues given as to the men named on the all-time team.

The winner (or winners) picking the same lineup as the one named by Long will receive a season pass to All of Pitt's home games in the Stadium.

Those picking 10 of the 11 players will receive two duvets to the Pitt-Notre Dame game.

Those picking nine out of the 11 will get two tickets to the Pitt-Tech game.

DUNN, THOMAS WORTHY FOES

By JAMES MILLER.

Joey Thomas, veteran Chicago featherweight, who came here all set to take Jackie Rodgers, Negro knockout star, over the hurdles at Hickey Park, Millvale, tomorrow night, will find Johnny Dunn, of New Kensington, sitting opposite him in the ring for the 10-round imbroglio instead.

The pet of the Mason-Deutsch stable called off his end of the fight on Sunday when he complained of a bad knee, injured while training for the Thomas bout.

Dunn, who boasts a record of never having been knocked off his feet, and two wins over Rodgers, should make an ideal opponent for the highly-touted Thomas, while Joey's scrap book includes such names as Andy Martin, clever Bostonian; Phil Zwick, Billy DeFoe, Howard Mayberry and many other good fighters, which all goes to show that an interesting fracas can be anticipated.

The eight-round semi-final will be a return bout between Al Becker, of Sheraden, and Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock. Becker defeated Belmont in their last start, at Hickey Park, in eight rounds. Sammy Paris, of the Hill, and Paul Balint, of the North Side, tangle in the second six-round bout.

Tommy Ward, of the South Side, and Johnny Brown, of Lawrenceville, will fight the six-round opening number.

Between Rounds

Tiger Joe Wall, of Donora, knocks 8 in Hade in the main bout at Washington, Pa., tomorrow night. Rose Fields and Tony Mallon, Aveloghts, are paired in the six-round semi-final.

Wee Willie Davies, Charleroi flyweight, who should be the world contender in the 112-pound class, will participate in his second fight in five nights, when he answers the bell against Frankie (Kid) Amato, Negro, of New York, in the main bout at the Moose Pool, North Braddock, Monday night. Willie fought Frisco Grazer last night in Johnstown.

Another newcomer to show here will be George Baldor, Canadian lightweight, last night.

Larkspur Victor In Circuit Feature

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 20—(AP.)—Larkspur, the Wedgemere stable entry reined by the veteran driver, Townsend Ackerman, was wired first in three straight heats in winning the 3-year-old trot which featured the opening of the 1930 Grand Circuit meeting at Charter Oak Park yesterday afternoon.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Steve Swetonic has come into his own. There were times last season when he had just as much stuff as he showed yesterday as he blanked the flag-hunting Dodgers, to topple them into third place, but he missed the rating of a star through the medium of bad breaks here and there. The Pirates won, 6 to 0.

It is likely that the casual fan, or even the baseball patron who goes to Forbes Field frequently, does not realize that in Swetonic the Pirates have a young pitcher who deserves to be classed with the smartest hurlers in the league.

The closer student of the sport would get a better estimate on Swetonic by watching him work on the Brooklyn hitters as he dealt them out nine goose eggs. Now it is taken for granted that a club in a wild scramble for a flag is hard to keep away from the home plate, yet North Side Steve was able to do this and any analysis of the contest will show that he displayed a remarkable finesse in achieving his brilliant triumph.

SMART PERFORMANCE

Steve was like the polished veteran as he worked on the weaknesses of Uncle Robbie's sluggers throughout the nine innings. In the fifth he rose to unusual heights by keeping the home plate unsullied after the enemy had loaded up the sacks, with only one out and the top of the batting order ready to swing.

Johnny Frederick is a tough lad at the plate under any condition, and in the circumstance just cited he is unusually mean, but Swetonic jockeyed Johnny into hitting a high loft to George Grantham, and then he made the dangerous Wallie Gilbert loft a foul to Pie Traynor to end the inning.

CONTROL IS FINE

From that critical point until the battle ended, Steve then allowed only two of the foe to get as far as first base.

Steve walked only two batters, one of these being Battleship Ike

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—I have found out what ails the Phillies this season. They are suffering from the drought. You know those Phillies always look best on rainy days. That National League race has given Uncle Nick one of his dizzy spells. Looking over this season's statistics I find the Cubs have been duck soup for the Giants, the Giants have been worms for the Robins and the Robins have been squab for the Cubs. If that Cincinnati club was eager it would put on a pair of false whiskers and sneak up and grab the pennant while the three leaders are playing ring around the rosey with each other.

TRACK KINGS BEGIN INVASION OF CITY

STARS' DRILLS CUT DOWN AT STADIUM

By JESS CARVER.

The vanguard of the sinewy army of track and field stars who will compete here Friday and Saturday and next Monday in the national A. A. U. championship carnival has pitched its tents on the outskirts of the battleground, which will be the cinders and turf of the Pitt Stadium.

While early arrivals yesterday looked over the scene of their coming activities, they were NOT permitted workouts at the Stadium. Frank Mecca, the Stadium caretaker, was on hand yesterday with orders to keep the boys from using the Stadium, and as Mr. Mecca is a very, very tough gent indeed when it comes to carrying out orders, you may bet that buck you held out last week that the boys did not crash the gate.

WORKOUTS CURTAILED

They were permitted to hop about a bit on the outside edge of the track, but so limited was the time allowed and the space offered that the athletes were constrained to raise considerable of a squawk. A. A. U. officials instructed 'em to go over to Tech and try the Tartan Bowl, but the track there was found to be too rough for use. One or two of the lads attempted to use the indoor track at Trees Gym, but found this plan far from satisfactory.

Among the athletes already on hand are Jack Russell, the hop, step and jump star; Paul Jessup, giant University of Washington discus tosser; Steven Anderson, hurdle king; Pete Bowen, intercollegiate and A. A. U. 440-yard champion; Lambert Redd, Johnny Moones and the Indian star, Riley Williamson.

MEET OPENS FRIDAY

Competition for the national championships will start Friday morning, with trials in the junior events. Finals will be run off in the afternoon.

On Saturday, the big day of the meet, the senior titles will be awarded, the program being the same as that for the juniors. Monday will be devoted to the staging of the decathlon and the settling of the relay championships.

The Pacific Coast delegations, teams of the Los Angeles A. C. and from the Olympic Club, of San Francisco, are due in town late today or early tomorrow. The big influex of stars will take place tomorrow.

PITT CONTEST POPULAR

will receive one ticket to the Notre Dame game.

Those picking seven out of 11 will get a ticket to either the York or Penn State game.

Those picking six out of the 11 will receive one ticket to the Waynesburg game.

When the team is selected, it will be placed in a sealed envelope and placed in a vault, so that no one, aside from Mr. Long, will know the lineup of the eleven.

Mr. Long, after the contest is closed and the prize winners announced, will write an article telling why he picked the men he selected.

Sir Gallahad Filly Brings Big Price

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—The remarkable popularity of the get of the great sire, Sir Gallahad III, was further evidenced at the yearly sales here last night when a filly by that sire was sold to Griffin Watkins for $30,000. This price equalled the previous top of the yar, which was paid for a colt by the same sire, and established a new high mark for fillies.

Long's Sport Comment

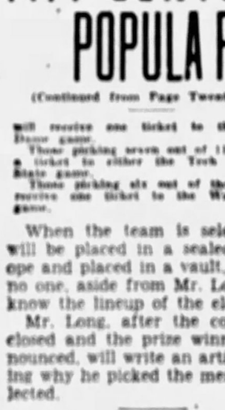
been particular effective against the A's. Last year he beat them four times in five games, and this season he has taken five out of six from them.



George Earnshaw

The question has been raised as to the comparatively ability of Ferrell and Bob Grove. There is no way of comparing them, as Ferrell has pitched only once against Grove and then merely in a relief role. Taunted on his refusal to risk his star left-hander against Ferrell, Connie Mack comes back with the intimation that Cleveland fears to send Ferrell against his own crack right-hander, George Earnshaw.

MACK TAKES EXCEPTION to the rating given Ferrell by some American League critics, who have called him the greatest right-hander since Christy Mathewson. "Cleveland does not put Ferrell in when Earnshaw is pitching," Connie remarks. "Ferrell deserves all the honors that are being heaped upon him, but it is pretty early to say he is Mathewson's successor. It is stretching the imagination to put those two in the same class. Maybe in a few years, when Ferrell has stood the fire, he will be among the greats of the game, but just let me say something about George Earnshaw. There is a man who started off the season with half a dozen defeats. He is now close to 20 victories. Do you know what that turnabout meant? It meant that he had the courage not to sink to despair when he dropped so many games. When Earnshaw is right, there is no better pitcher in baseball. He is right at present, and I'd like to see Cleveland start Ferrell against him when the clubs meet again."*

CHUCK KLEIN, Philly slugger, can no longer claim the distinction of having made more home runs in a season than any other National League player ever piled up. Hack Wilson yesterday tied with Klein for that distinction when he equaled the league record of 43 homers in a year, set by Klein in 1929.

Wilson needs only one more round-tripper to set a new record for the older circuit, and probably will get it within a few days. Incidentally, Hack is also giving Babe Ruth a fight for the home-run honors of both leagues this year. He is only one behind the Bambino up to date and Ruth may have to do some tall swatting to stay ahead of him.

CHAMP DRILLS AT STADIUM

NEW POSITIONS HELP STARS.

By BABE RUTH,
Baseball's Highest Salaried Player.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—In one of our games at the Yankee Stadium a few days ago Tony Lazzeri ran in from third base, snapped up a slow roller in his bare hand and just burned that ball over to Lou Gehrig for the putout at first base. Two innings later Tony grabbed a hot one in his glove and from way back he threw on a direct line for another easy out. Gehrig didn't have to move a muscle after he set himself for the throw.

Babe Ruth

"What a ball player that fellow is," I said to myself. "He was great at second and now you'd think he never played anywhere but third."

Before the game the next day we were sitting in the dugout and I asked Tony how he liked his new position.

"Great," he answered. "I wish I had started at third instead of second."

STAR AT NEW JOB

His one reason for feeling that way, he told me, was that he believed he could play third so much better if he had not devoted all those years to second. He thinks he has a lot to learn about the new job and we all think he is a star already.

The shift of Lazzeri from second base to third should add several years to his stay in the majors. Tony has been a star at second for quite a long time, and now he is playing great ball and able to do everything expected of him at third.

Tony's experience this year, in being assigned to a new position and starring there, is but one of a number in the two big leagues. I never have known so many changes, particularly of infielders, since I first began to follow the big league doings. Almost every lineup will show some player who was shifted since last season. Third base seems to be the favorite spot for these shifts but every infield position has been affected by the changes.

Woody English last year played a star role at shortstop while the Cubs were winning the pennant. Now he is a third baseman. And a mighty good one, too. Joe Sewell was a shortstop for years and he was tried out at third late last summer. All this year he has been putting up a bang-up game at third for the Indians.

Sparky Adams was always regarded as a second baseman until this year and he even had Frisch sent to third at the start of the season. Then Frisch was put back at second, though he played a great third base with the Giants for a long time, and Adams went to third.

HELPED CISSELL

Take Bill Cissell, of the White Sox, as another example of a player who was shifted and became a star. Cissell was a shortstop until Donie Bush took charge of the Sox last spring.

"You're a second-sacker from now on," Donie told Cissell and Bill is quite an artist at second. I like him a lot better there than when he was at short. They are also using him at third base.

Horace Ford, of the Reds, is another. As long as Hughey Critz was with the Reds, Ford was the shortstop, and a good enough shortstop to be part of the game's best double-play combination. After Critz was sent to the Giants, Ford was shifted to second base and Durocher sent to short. Ford has been putting up a fine game in his new position, so National League players tell me.

Joe Stripp, of the Reds, is another. Joe was a third baseman when this season started, now he is the regular first baseman for the Reds. And he is good enough there to let Dan Howley release George Kelly. Johnny Watwood was an outfielder in the training camp last spring, but now he is also playing first base for the White Sox. The Indians had Eddie Morgan playing everywhere last year except first base, where Lew Fonseca starred. Now Morgan is the regular first baseman.

There have been other shifts of players this year from the places where they starred for years. Clyde Beck is no longer a third baseman but a shortstop. Earle Combs was a marvelous center fielder, but now he plays either left or right.

There hasn't been another season in the past 15 where so many players became stars in new positions.

Steve Anderson, high and low hurdle champion of the A. A. U., who holds the intercollegiate mark for the highs and has tied the world record, snapped as he got in a brief workout in the Stadium yesterday. He'll defend his titles in the national A. A. U. meet beginning here Friday.

BROIDA LOSES IN SINGLES

FOOT FAULTS PASSED

Save for a brief period in the second set, which Drewes bagged in short order as the Pittsburgh junior's game sagged upon conclusion of the ultra-torrid opening chapter, Broida stood up to his famous rival in fashion to do utmost credit to himself and his home town and, had the gentleman in the umpire's chair seen fit to call the multitude of foot-faults quite obviously committed by the St. Louis luminary as he hastened to dash to the net on his thundering service, a different story might have been told.

But such refinements of play as observance of the foot-fault rule were evidently beyond the ken of the official, and Drewes was apparently not even warned for the most flagrant of violations.

FOREHAND STRONG

Broida's main stock in trade was his forehand. His backhand was wobbly, and he knew it, and consequently erred frequently off it, though it was by no means a total loss. His service was consistent, but not brilliant, and he seldom took the net.

Drewe's game is based on heavy service and good barrier work. Ted's backhand is a real weakness.

Seeded contenders survived yesterday's milling without exception, Jennings, Considine, Dooly Mitchell, of Washington; Leo Lejeck, of Chicago, and Bob Hall, of Louisville, breezing through without serious opposition.

In the women's division, Helen Germaine, New York girl, who yesterday downed Mrs. Jean Artzberger, of Pittsburgh, headed the parade into the semi-finals by beating Helen Rupp, of Baltimore, 6-3, 6-3. Mrs. Ruth Martinez, Washington driver, likewise entered the penultimate bracket, her victim being the favored Buffalo lass, Ethel Hass.

Men's doubles competition will get under way this afternoon. Broida will probably team with Pat Deck, of Leesburg, Va. Women's doubles, in which Mrs. Artzberger is scheduled to combine with Mrs. Martinez to make up an exceedingly formidable duo, will be started tomorrow.

The summary:

MEN'S SINGLES.

First round—Robert Hall, Louisville, defeated Jack Mercur, Pittsburgh, 3-6, 6-1, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1; Robert Lake, Birmingham, defeated Edward Phillips, Minneapolis, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2, 7-5, 6-2.

GUYS DEFEAT FAIRMONT BY SHUTOUT

With Lefty Drugmond hurling in fine style, the Charleroi Governors handed Fairmont a 7-0 setback in the first game of the series at Charleroi last night. Drugmond limited the Fairies to three safe blows.

At Johnstown, the Johnnies defeated Clarksburg, 3 to 2, although outhit 10 to 6.

Scottdale hit the ball hard to defeat Jeannette, 12 to 5. The Little Cardinals tallied six runs in the fourth inning and added four in the eighth.

Wheeling turned back Cumberland at Cumberland, 10 to 5, scoring six runs in the fourth inning when the Colt defense went to shreds.

FAVORITES WIN IN WOMEN'S TOURNEY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Tommy Waggoner defending his amateur links championship of Washington and Greene counties, got off on the right foot in the qualifying round yesterday by taking down medalist honors. Waggoner turned in a card of 75, which was two strokes better than the score of the second man, S. R. Evans, Jr.

Match play will begin today and continue tomorrow. A field of 80 qualified for the man-to-man competition.

Another defending champion, Mrs. Eva Blair, possessor of the Schenley Park women's title, emerged victor yesterday. Mrs. Blair, tourney medalist, defeated Mrs. J. Stephenson, 5 and 4, to advance to the semi-finals, where today she will take on Mrs. Al McBride, wife of the Schenley professional.

Yesterday's results:

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT

Mrs. Eva Blair defeated Mrs. J. Stephenson, 5 and 4.
Mrs. Margaret [illegible] defeated Mrs. J. M. Waechter, 1 up, 6.
Mrs. C. [illegible] won by default from Miss E. [illegible].
Mrs. Al McBride defeated Mrs. Mansell, 6 and 5.

SECOND FLIGHT

Mrs. Hendrie defeated Mrs. Frankenheim, 7 and 6.
Miss Kelsey defeated Miss Moren, 4 and 3.
Mrs. Gorr defeated Mrs. [illegible], 2 up.
Mrs. Brown defeated Mrs. Donald, 3 and 2.

THIRD FLIGHT

Mrs. Little defeated Mrs. Powell, 1 up.
Mrs. Brinkman defeated Mrs. Phelps, 3 and 2.
Mrs. Lally defeated Mrs. Flint, 1 up, 21 holes.
Mrs. Lattimer drew a bye.

George Foster of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph came through to win the newspapermen's tournament staged by the Edgewood Country Club yesterday, he having a gross 82 and a net 68 to cop top honors. Vern Swartsfager, with 95-21—74, was second. O. H. Sando won third prize.

Sewickley Player In Tourney Final

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Samuel Harbison, of Sewickley, Pa., and Walter Thomas, of Elizabeth, N. J., will play here today for the men's singles championship of the Lake Placid invitation tournament.

In the semi-finals Harbison defeated Eldredge Sheppard, Ottawa, Canada, 6-3, 6-3, and Thomas won from Donald Unger, Pomfret, Conn., 6-2, 6-3.

RELIANCE HELD TO TIE BY WHITAKER

By TOM BIRKS.

Strange as it may seem, Reliance Life was not on the long end of a score last evening. The leaders, undefeated in the Commercial and Industrial League were held to a 2-2 tie by Whitaker in Greater Pittsburgh League contest. In a second league game, Verona nosed out the Dan Heeps, 3 to 1.

Beckman Motors stopped the winning streak of the Allegheny Collegians in the Central League, nosing out Tom Carson's team, 4 to 3.

DORMONT WINS

Dormont and Homewood turned in triumphs in the City League. Dormont staged a comeback after having been slowed down by J. L. Thomas and walloped Pleasant Valley, 14 to 2. Homewood took a fall out of W. O. W., 9 to 6.

The North Side Civics ran into a tartar in Stowe, being held to a 2-2 deadlock.

In the Commercial League, National Union routed Raybestos in a playoff battle, 10 to 4. Equitable Gas tied the Pittsburgh Railways in the Philadelphia Company League, 9 to 9, and in the Metropolitan circuit, Collier Juniors downed Colteryahn, 10 to 1.

GRAYS WIN 29TH

The Homestead Grays made it 29 in a row by defeating the Wyano Coal team, of West Newton, 9 to 1. Swissvale defeated Garfield, 18 to 2, and the Pitcairn Independents and Wilmerding tied, 4 to 4. Fintex took over Fineview, 13 to 1, and J. L. Thomas defeated the Twentieth Ward Traders, 7 to 3.

In the Monon Valley League, Monessen defeated Speers, 5 to 4, and Fairhope nosed out Charleroi Robins, 6 to 5. Parkinson, Monessen shortstop, socked a home run in the fifth inning.

GIANTS TAKE SECOND PLACE

YANKEES GAIN AS ATHLETICS, NATS LOSE

Associated Press.

Due to the efforts of a pair of clubs which are not even making a pretense of getting into the superheated National League pennant struggle, the three contenders for the .g have found themselves in a more uncertain position with the prospect that the coming series between the Chicago Cubs and New York Giants will be the really crucial one of the season.

The Giants have taken second place in the standing and have placed themselves within striking distance of the league leading Cubs, only three games behind.

GIANTS GAIN

While the Giants were taking a close struggle from the St. Louis Cardinals, 4 to 2, Pittsburgh shoved Brooklyn's Robins into third place with an 8 to 0 triumph while the humble Phillies kept the league leaders from making any sort of a gain in a double-header.

The Phillies took the first game by a 9 to 8 count despite the efforts of Hack Wilson, who clouted his forty-third home run to tie the National League record set last year by Chuck Klein, and of Hartnett and Blair, who also hit homers. Then, as the teams attempted to play off Saturday's 11-inning tie, the tailenders battled the Cubs to a standstill in 16 innings of play, which wound up in a 6-6 tie. Fidgety Phil Collins hurled the entire game and was deprived of a victory when Lester Bell hit a homer with two on base in the eighth inning.

The Giants gained their triumph by some timely hitting in the second inning, which produced three runs. Pitcher Carl Hubbell driving in two of them.

Fred Frankhouse turned in another nice job of hurling to give the Boston Braves a 4 to 0 victory over Cincinnati.

INDIANS WIN PAIR

The American League's hurlers had a thoroughly enjoyable day with the single exception of those who work for Boston. The Red Stockinged moundsmen failed to stop the Cleveland batters, while the Indians won by scores of 7 to 2 and 7 to 3.

Earl Whitehill continues his chase after Ferrell's league-leading total of victories by running his string to 11 straight to give a 2-to-1 victory over Washington.

Charley Ruffing made another kind of a mark by pitching his third two-hit game for the Yankees. His victims this time were the Chicago White Sox, who succumbed by a 3-to-0 count.

George Blaeholder hurled the day's fourth shutout, allowing the champion Athletics only five hits while the Browns won, 7 to 0. Goose Goslin hit three home runs in successive times at bat.

PAYNE SHOOT CHAMPION

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—For the second straight year, Gus Payne, of Cleveland, is the North American clay target champion, although he had to win a three-way tie to keep his title.

Payne, A. M. McCrea, of Lamar, Mo., and E. D. Martin, of Columbus, Wis., finished in a deadlock with each having broken 199 out of a possible 200 targets in yesterday's shooting of the Grand American Handicap trap shoot tournament in progress here.

In the shoot-off, however, Payne broke 25 straight targets, while McCrea could score only 23 and Martin 20. Payne won the title a year ago with the same score when he hailed from Oklahoma City.

The women's North American championship went to Mrs. J. A. Murphy, of Freehold, N. J., with a score of 185, one better than Mrs. Norman V. Pillet, of Houston, Tex. Miss Alice M. Crothers, of Chestnut Hill, Pa., took third.

Shirley Peregard, Jr., 15, of Galveston, Tex., shattered 95 out of a possible 100 targets to win the junior championship.

SWETONIC AIDS PIRATES

Boone, who batted for Jim Elliott in the fifth. Steve was pitching high and inside to the Coast League slugger, and his offerings were just missing the mark by inches, so Ike was put on base.

The Native Son was so clever that only one Robin got as far as third base and Picinich reached the three-quarter post when Boone's pass filled the sacks.

The Buccos won the game in the early rounds, they scoring six tallies in the first three innings. Triples by Grantham and Hemsley, a double by Pitcher Steve and Lloyd Waner's single were the big punches of these scoring rounds. Ray Phelps, Elliott and Moss all had a turn on the mound.

CHISOX OBTAIN PAIR

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(INS.)—Acquisition of a second baseman and a shortstop was announced today by the Chicago White Sox. Raymond Radcliff, the first baseman, was purchased from the Dallas club of the Texas League, and the shortstop is Charles Kreiling, of Atlanta, Ga., signed in 21 and hitting upward of .340 in the Southern Association.

GRID COACHES ON AIR

A big new treat for gridiron fans is going on the air during the coming football season. Members of the All-America Board of Football will speak over the Columbia nation-wide network every Friday night between Labor Day and the first week in December when the All-American team for 1930 will be selected at Los Angeles.

Locally this program will be broadcast by Station WJAS.

WEEKLY TALKS

At least two members of the board will take part in the 15-minute interview to be conducted each week by Christy Walsh, founder and member of the All-America board. Readers of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph are familiar with members of this board—Knute Rockne, Tad Jones, Bill Alexander and Pop Warner—whose expert and interesting football articles have appeared in this paper season after season. This famous quartet of football experts, representing the four major sections of the football map, will continue to write exclusively for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph during the 1930 season.

Fifteen weeks of unparalleled activity will keep the all-America board going top speed during the pigskin season. The official blow-off is scheduled for September 2, when the board convenes in New York City with all members at the microphone. Pop Warner is making the longest journey to attend the meeting; Alexander is coming from Atlanta, Rockne from South Bend and Tad Jones from nearby New Haven.

ROCKNE BOOKED

During that same week, Friday, September 5, Rockne, assisted by Walsh, will inaugurate the first of the interview series set for every Friday night. Rockne, the wittiest man in football and beyond football, will do his stuff on seven Friday nights—mixing funny stories with humorous and expert digs at the latest football news of the hour.

When Georgia Tech comes north to meet Penn, Coach Alexander will tell a nation-wide microphone audience the story of football in the South.

In November, Jones will cover the Army-Notre Dame game at Chicago for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and proceed to Los Angeles for the big battle between the Irish and Southern California. Pop Warner, grizzled veteran of the West, will go on the air with Jones the night before the game in Los Angeles, after which the board will select the all-America team for 1930. A monster football dinner in honor of the all-America board will bring the season to a close at Los Angeles. The highlights of the passing season will be reviewed by radio at this dinner and the best players of the year will be discussed — but the all-America lineup will not be announced until the following Sunday, December 7, in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Four Kayoes Mark 27th Ward Show

The boys were in a knockout mood at the bi-monthly amateur boxing show of the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. Four knockouts were scored, featured by Sparky Ewalt's two-round kayo of Jay Collins.

Slim Kovack, Mike Sankey and Steve Kobeda were the others to win by the K. O. route. The summary:

135-pound class—Mike Sankey, Twenty-seventh Ward A. C., knocked out Tony De Grasso, unattached, 1 round. Time 2:01.

Steve Kobeda, Pastorious A. C., won from William Bates, Braddock Library A. C., knockout, 1 round. Time 2:45. Dave Stewart, Braddock Library A. C., won from Angelo Greeve, Dukane A. C., 3 rounds, decision; Johnny Ritzi, Pittsburgh Lyceum, won from Bobbie Carr, Carnegie A. C., 3 rounds, decision.

147-pound class—Eddie Roberts, Clarion A. C., won from Mat Elling, Pittsburgh Lyceum, 4 rounds, referee's decision.

175-pound class—Slim Kovack, Woods Run A. C., knocked out Stewart Brown, Twenty-seventh Ward A. C., 2 rounds. Time 1:01.

GRIDDERS TO REPORT

Members of the Central Catholic High School football team are requested to report to Coach Dick Rohrabacher at the school on Friday, about 1 o'clock. Plans for the coming grid season will be discussed.

SHIELDS BEATS DOEG AT NEWPORT

BULLETIN.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Big Bill Tilden dramaticized his fourth round tennis match with Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans here today in the Newport casino tourney, revelling in every part, from comedy to tragedy and then played the heroic lead to nose out the intercollegiate champion, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 2-6, 8-6, in a typical Tilden last act.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Frank X. Shields, young New York tennis player, yesterday shook off his careless tennis habits and gave the fourteenth annual Newport Casino invitation singles tourney its first real upset by defeating Johnny Doeg, the Californian Davis cup player, 6-4, 10-12, 6-2.

J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., then created a milder sensation by becoming of the "last 16" at the expense of Berkeley Bell, the Texas Davis cup substitute, who was seeded tenth and last. Hall's winning margins were 6-2, 7-5.

The other eight seeded players were up to form and all were safely inside of the fourth bracket when the day's program of singles was completed.

The foreign list of seedings suffered two severe blows when H. G. N. Lee, the top-seeded Britisher, bowed to Ted Burwell, Charlotte, N. C., youth, by scores of 3-6, 9-7, 8-6, and Marcel Rainville, of Montreal, the Canadian Davis cup player, was overcome by Eddie Jacobs, 6-4, 6-4. The Pittsburgh collegian gained the fourth round.

The draw will force Tilden to clash with Sutter today and the lanky Philadelphian has high hopes of squaring his accounts with the Tulane champion, who advanced on Big Bill's sensational default in last week's grass play at Rye, N. Y.

Campus Comment

By KNUTE ROCKNE

Member All-America Board of Football.

ALL-JEWISH TEAM

The group of coaches picking an All-Jewish America football team found it extremely difficult, as nowadays the press no longer refers to a player as being Jewish. Boys of Jewish extraction have furnished some of the greatest linemen in the American game and some of the smartest quarterbacks. The team:

Knute Rockne

Barrager, Southern California—Left guard.

Goldstein, Florida—Center.

Alexander, Syracuse — Right guard.

Frank, Minnesota—Right tackle.

Epstein, North Carolina—Right end.

Harris, Minnesota — Quarterback.

Lom, California—Right half.

Horwecif, Harvard—Fullback.

This team naturally would be one of the smartest teams that could be put together and in Friedman would have the greatest forward passer the game has known up to now.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

Well, folks, where do you suppose we would be robbin' today if we had had Steve and Lloyd all through the season? The stuff Steve puts out when he is able to pitch makes all of us believe he would have copped at least a dozen games by this time and I can count you about half a dozen games offhand that we probably would have won if Lloyd had been in there.

Just put two and two together now and where would we be in the race? There's only about a dozen games difference between us and the Cubs. Jule and everybody on the club thinks we'd be right up there today if Steve and Lloyd had been doin' their stuff.

BREAKS TOO TOUGH

We're only two and one-half games out of fourth place after all the things that has happened to our ball club. So you gotta hand it to somebody. If the team was in last place it wouldn't have been a suprise to a lot of other baseball men who knows what the club went through.

Pie is in there playin' every day with his eye still bad. You wouldn't think there was much wrong with him when you read about him makin' seven hits in a row, but as long as he's able to be up and around he wants to be in the ball game.

CHEER FOR STEVE

We was all cheerin' for Steve yesterday. We had a pretty good cheerin' section because the cripples are gettin' better, and Steve was so good that we didn't have to have many of them in the bull pen.

Swetonic is one of the Pitt gang and we was givin' him the old college yells and all that stuff.

We gotta lot of those Greek fraternity birds on the ball club. I don't know what's it all about, but that makes it a draw, for they don't either.

ROCKNE ON AIR

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Coach Knute Rockne, of Notre Dame, will formally welcome to Chicago members of the British Empire and United States track and field teams, which will meet in Soldier field next Wednesday night, at a luncheon Tuesday. Rockne's address will be broadcast over a National Broadcasting Company network.

STEEL TRADE TREND VAGUE

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say:

A turning point in steel business is not yet definitely in sight, but there are scattered indications of more liberal buying in September and a moderate improvement this week in orders and operations.

Steel ingot output is at 53 per cent, compared with 52 per cent a week ago, but rolling schedules in some districts, particularly of sheet mills, have gained more than raw steel production.

In the development stage, but counted on to bring larger steel tonnage next month, are rail bookings, new pipe line business, oil tank construction, the well-sustained volume of inquiry for structural steel for buildings and bridges and the country-wide highway program backed by federal aid.

AUTO SCHEDULES OFF

A few farm machinery builders are stepping up production chiefly, however, on account of export orders. The canning companies, it appears, will not be hard hit by the drought, although some packs of vegetable crops will be curtailed. Tin plate makers are not seriously affected, the leading producer continuing operations at 70 per cent capacity. Increased radio output is taking a little more steel.

Whatever gains occur in steel buying in the immediate future probably will not be aided materially by the automobile industry. The leading maker of low-priced cars is expected to reduce its operations from a four-day to a three-day week basis, while another large manufacturer is slowing down production preparatory to the introduction of new models in October. Only two or three companies in the medium-price field are maintaining good schedules.

PRICES UNCHANGED

Pig iron shipments at Chicago have gained 35 per cent over those of the corresponding period in July, while a Cleveland producer estimates a gain of 33 per cent; an evidence of sharp depletion of inventories rather than a reflection of increased melt. However, some consumers are using iron more freely, radiator and sanitary ware manufacturers, for example.

Fabricated structural steel booking of 40,000 tons and new projects requiring 37,000 tons, though totaling less in each case than in the previous week, exceeded the weekly average for the year.

The Iron Age composite prices remain unchanged, at 2.156 cents a pound for finished steel and $16.88 a gross ton for pig iron.

NEW OFFERINGS

Central Railroad of New Jersey, $1,166,000 4½ per cent equipment trust certificates, to yield from 3.25 to 3.20 per cent, by International Manhattan Company and R. W. Pressprich & Co.

City of Bayonne, N. J., $1,046,000 4½ per cent bonds, to yield from 3.75 to 4.15 per cent, by Rapp & Lockwood.

Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad, 2,500 shares of 7 per cent preferred, to yield about 4.31 per cent, by Joseph Walker & Sons.

List Great Western In Chicago Market

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Stock of the Chicago Great Western Railroad is the first railroad issue to be listed on the Chicago Board of Trade. The listing signifies that 450,000 shares of the Great Western's preferred stock and 470,000 shares of Great Western common are to be dealt in hereafter in the securities division of the board. Both the preferred and common stock of the Great Western are listed on the New York and London stock exchanges.

Refiners Slash Sugar 10 Points

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Leading refiners have reduced the price of refined sugar 10 points to a 4.40c basis.

CAR LOADINGS DECREASE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Revenue freight loadings for the week ending August 9 were announced by the American Railway Association to have totalled 904,157 cars. This was a decrease of 14,178 cars under the preceeding week and a reduction of 187,996 cars below the corresponding week of 1929.

STOCK MARKET PRICES GO HIGHER

Speculators for Rise Fail To Heed Isolated Weak Spots and Press List Up

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (AP.) — Speculation for the rise was pressed forward aggressively in today's stock market, the bull leaders undaunted by issolated weakness in special stocks such as the coppers and safety razor issues.

More cheerful reports from the steel industry and a better tone in the commodity markets encouraged bull operators to work for higher prices although some recalcitrant bears offered opposition here and there, feeling that signs of business improvement were still altogether unpalpable.

A few issues sold up 5 to nearly 10 points and gains of 1 to 2 or more embraced most of the important shares. After announcement of reduction of the Hudson Motor dividend, shorts were sent to cover in several of the motor issues, Auburn and Hupp gaining 5 and more. Shares gaining 6 or more included International Business Machines and Case. Shares advancing 3 or more included American Water Works, American and Foreign Power, Vanadium, International Harvester, Eastman, Johns Manville and American Type Founders, while such issues as U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Can, Westinghouse Electric and Public Service of New Jersey mounted almost as much. Federal Mining, an inactive issue, sold at 115/16, 35 points below the last transaction and the lowest in three years.

REPUDIATES FORECAST

The fact that dispatches quoting Secretary Mellon yesterday as looking for business improvement in a short time were repudiated by him after having been widely mentioned by financial news tickers and by brokers' wires seemed to cause no concern for Mr. Mellon said he wished no interpretation to be placed upon his denial of the statement, and what he was reported as having said was in line with much private banking opinion in Wall Street.

F. N. Hoffstott, president of the Pressed Steel Car Corporation, was quoted as saying "the wave of pessimism throughout the country appears to be waning and some of the railroads already have started on repair programs."

The weekly steel trade reviews were the most encouraging of trade surveys coming to hand. Iron Age seemed to see a few rays of light for the first time in several weeks. It placed ingot output at 53 per cent of capacity, against 52 last week, the first gain since the week after the Fourth of July.

Composite steel prices, however, showed no further weakening, and strength in Pittsburgh scrap, which was marked up 50 cents a ton today, was cheering.

DEVELPOMENTS DISCOUNTED

The bull faction felt that such unfavorable developments as another falling off in freight movement, as reported for the week ended August 9, omission of the Warner Quinlan dividend, and reduction of the Hudson Motor annual rate from $5 to $3 a share had been foreseen for some time, and should not prove important factors in the market.

The American Petroleum Institute's weekly statistics were again favorable and reports indicating a little better progress in crude production curtailment in Texas counter-balanced reports of dissention in the Oklahoma City pool. In some quarters, however, there was still a tendency to look for a weakening in Mid-Continent crude prices as the peak consumption period will be over in a few weeks.

Call money after renewing at 2½ per cent was finally reduced to 2 per cent the first time it has reached that rate at the loan desk in 10 days, although outside funds have been plentiful at 2 per cent.

P. R. R. Car Loadings Heavier for the Week

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20.—Total cars handled by the Pennsylvania Railroad System in the week ended August 16, 1930, were 141,944 against 139,300 in the previous week and 172,568 last year. For the period since January to August 16, the cars totaled 4,676,682 against 5,362,762 last year.

Steel Scrap Price Advanced 50c Here

Following the sale of 10,000 tons No. 1 heavy melting steel scrap to a large consumer in the Pittsburgh district, the market has advanced 50 cents a ton to $18.75 against $18.25 previously.

Scrap is scarce and further purchases may be made shortly.

Producers Agree On Oil Curtailment

Independent oil producers of Venango, Crawford, Clarion, Mercer and Forest counties have agreed to curtail production 30 per cent until September 1 and may extend the curtailment program to October 1.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

PRESSED STEEL ADDS UNIT

Pressed Steel Car Company is adding another power unit to its Chicago-Hegewisch plant and is contemplating additions to its steel foundries.

F. N. Hoffstot states that the recent ruling of the American Railway Association that arch bar trucks must be replaced with cast steel members by 1934 should result in large purchases of these units in the next few years.

Earnings for the first six months were slightly better than in the like period last year, but reports are made only annually and no figures are available. Second half operations will compare unfavorably with the same period in 1929 because of curtailed equipment buying recently.

P. R. R. Constructing Electric Engines

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20.—As a final step in the development of new electric equipment which will be used on the New York-Washington service when the line is completely electrified, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is building 12 new type electric locomotives at its Altoona shops which it is expected will be given thorough tests before equipment orders are finally placed. It is estimated that between 375 and 400 new electric locomotives will be required for use in the freight and passenger service and cost is estimated around $40,000,000, or approximately 40 per cent of the total cost of the entire project.

CHEAP MONEY HELD TRADE RETARDER

Reserve Policy Is Doing Business Dis-Service, Banking Expert Declares

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The Federal Reserve system has been doing business a dis-service since the panic in adhering to the "cheap money fallacy," according to B. H. Beckhart, Columbia University authority on banking.

Dr. Beckhart, after reviewing the monetary policy of the system, asserted that it has proved a failure as a stimulant to business having failed to revive residential building, for example, and he indicated that in the long run artifically cheap money is likely to have baneful results.

Mr. Rukeyser.

DOESN'T HELP TRADE

In a message to this column Dr. Beckhart said:

"Cheap money in itself will not revive business nor has it to the present time. On residential construction, for example, it has had no effect. Its results have been confined principally to the money markets. There have been other periods in the past, in 1885, 1893-1894, and 1908, when low money rates did not promote business recovery. Business will revive only as the relationship between retail prices, wholesale prices and wages are established on a basis such as to stimulate the demand for goods. When this does take place, commercial loans and interest rates both will rise."

Dr. Beckhart cautioned the central banking authorities against the danger of failing to set up reserves to finance future business expansion.

He said:

"The cheap money policies of the reserve banks may be positively harmful in having induced banks to expand their security losses and investments, leaving no slack to finance the business expansion when it gets under way. Either the reserve banks will then have to pour more money in the market, if their reserves will permit this, or banks will have to force a liquidation of security loans and dispose of bond holdings."

LIMIT TO EXPANSION

Pointing to a limit to the ability of the reserve system to expand, the Columbia authority, who is preparing two volumes on the New York money market, added:

"There is a limit to the ability of the reserve banks to insure any permanency of the present low money rates in the financial centers. The limit is to be found in the amount of 'free gold' held by the reserve banks, i. e., the gold over and above legal requirements, which now amounts to but $900,000,000. The potential expansive power of the reserve banks should be computed on the basis of their 'free gold' and not on the basis of the reserve ratios currently published which are meaningless and find no recognition in the reserve act.

"For example, the reserve rati has risen over the last year while the amount of 'free gold' has declined. How much further the reserve banks will be willing to see the volume of 'free gold' eaten into by gold exports and their cheap money policy is not known. Exports of gold are themselves a function of the cheap money policy. By a reversal of this policy they could be checked and this the Reserve banks will be compelled to do sometime through a continued reduction in their 'free gold' reserves. A 'free gold' reserve of $900,000,000 is not large, in view of the foreign short-term funds in the New York money market. This means that the Reserve banks will sooner or later have to reverse their present policy with inevitably higher rates of interest. Just as interest rates are artificially low now, they will be artificially high then, with the accompaniment of a rigid curtailment in our capital exports to Europe.

"What is desired, from the point of view of the money market, is a stabilization of interest rates, which, since the war, have fluctuated within a wide range, and as a verification of this one has only to recall the low rates of 1924, 1927 and 1930, and the high rates of 1928 and 1929."

CHEAP MONEY POLICY

In giving the Reserve Board's viewpoint, Dr. Beckhart says:

"The reason for the adoption of the cheap money policy is adherence to the idea that cheap money will itself prove a stimulant to business. The argument runs that interest rates are lowered and banks enabled to purchase and lend against bonds, which would help to finance construction undertakings and enable Europe to purchase a greater quantity of American products. The investments of the reporting member banks have increased by $719,000,000 and loans against securities by $530,000,000 since the first of the year, so that the policy would seem to have attained its objective. But business has continued depressed and in the meantime the commercial loans of the reporting member banks have fallen by $644,000,000."

HOW'S BUSINESS?

ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

By FRELING FOSTER

Radio Equipment and Furniture Sales

Chart shows the percentage fluctuations in the sales of radio equipment and furniture in the first half of each year from 1924 to 1930. The radio index, from Radio Retailing, covers all outlets. The furniture index, from the Federal Reserve Board, represents department store sales. 1924 equals 100.

RADIO EQUIPMENT SALES

Based on the volume in the first quarter of this year, it is estimated that 1930 will equal or exceed any past year but 1929 in the sale of radio sets, tubes and accessories.

FURNITURE SALES

Retail furniture sales this year, as indicated by department store activity, exceed all past years but 1929, and show a normal and satisfactory growth over 1928. Although furniture is a necessity, its purchase "can wait" if a family has the purse strings tightened. Hence, its sales are a good index of domestic buying power.

Drought Affects Some Industries Here

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE ACTUAL EFFECT of the drought on business conditions in the Pittsburgh district is still difficult to estimate. It appears that some of the early reports of the extent of damage done in agricultural districts were exagerated, but there is no doubt about the fact that a large share of the country's income for the present year has been destroyed. The loss represents actual wealth in commodities, not merely the wiping out of paper profits such as occured in the collapse of stocks last fall.

While Pittsburgh manufactures few articles which are sold directly to rural districts, a share of its industrial activity is indirectly dependent on the buying power of farmers. Pittsburgh's products are used in the production of a vast number of articles whose markets are affected by agricultural conditions.

It has been estimated that the drought has cost the country about $5,000,000,000. Just how accurate this guess may be cannot be determined. Pittsburgh is not nearly so dependent on this lost buying power as many other cities, but the district's share is large enough to be felt over the coming year.

AUTOMOBILE OUTLOOK

ONE OF THE BIGGEST customers of the steel makers is the automobile industry. The lower priced cars find a large portion of their market in rural territory. The plate glass makers sell about half their output to the motor car builders. This type of production will also be affected.

Some of the principal markets for steel wire and fencing are found in farming districts. Demand for this material will also suffer. Part of the building materials supplied by Pittsburgh manufacturers will also feel the effects of the lack of rain on the farmers' ability to improve his properties.

RAILROAD BUYING

RAILROADS IN THE DROUGHT area will suffer from loss of revenue and reduced rates placed into effect to help the farmer. These carriers may be compelled to cut their purchases of new equipment until agricultural conditions improve.

The business of the tin plate makers is controlled by the size of the fruit and vegetable crops available for canning. Part of these food crops escaped serious damage. It seems likely that the California fruit crops will be about normal. While the companies making tin plate will experience some reduction in demand this year, their loss of sales will be comparatively light.

FARMER'S PLACE IN BUSINESS

WHILE THESE INFLUENCES present a rather gloomy picture, it must be remembered that Pittsburgh's most important markets are found in other directions. Farming is a fundamental type of business which has much to do with the nation's prosperity. But it is not the only factor. It is less important to eastern manufacturing cities than to those farther west.

The country has had many periods of exceptional business prosperity during times when farm purchasing power was in a rather low state. The drought would have been serious for general business had it not come at a period during which industry is trying to recuperate from a severe shock. The drought is likely to impede recovery in sales and production, but it is not likely to retard improvement for any protracted period.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables was dull today at the wholesale produce markets in Pittsburgh. There were no changes in quotations.

The poultry market remained steady, demand good, supply normal, without change in quotations.

The butter, egg and cheese markets rested firm, demand fair, supply adequate, with quotations remaining unchanged.

Car lot supplies were nominal with 380 cars on track. Arrivals included 7 cars of apples, 5 cabbage, 16 cantaloupes, 4 grapes, 1 lemon, 1 lettuce, 1 onions, 4 oranges, 5 peaches, 2 pears, 1 peppers, 1 plums, 16 potatoes, 1 sweet potatoes, 2 tomatoes and 12 watermelons.

DAILY TRUE STORY

"It's because my name is Pearl," said Mrs. Gibbitson, with a sigh.

Mrs. Pearl Gibbitson's sighs were voluminous. But so was Mrs. Gibbitson, for that matter.

"Push-tush," said Mr. Gibbitson.

"If you loved me, Algernon, you wouldn't say 'Push-tush' to me," wailed Mrs. Gibbitson.

"Push-tush," said Mr. Gibbitson.

"There you go again."

"Not going anywhere.

"I mean you go push-tushing at me, and I want to go somewhere.

"Yes, you want to go out for oysters on the half shell, oysters at sixty cents a dozen and you'll order three dozen.

"But you know what I want, Algernon."

"Sure, I know. Pearl you want oysters and more oysters. There's only one reason why you don't turn into an oyster.

"Why, Algernon, why is that?"

"Oysters are mum.

"Why, Algernon, one would think I was talking all the time.

"You would be, if you could talk with raw oysters in your mouth; you have to stop then.

Mrs. Pearl Gibbitson began to cry. An exceedingly plump lady sobbing convulsively is a moving spectacle. If you doubt this, watch one. It moved Algernon Gibbitson.

He said something.

Mrs. Gibbitson gulped spasmodically.

"Algernon Penniman Gibbitson—you cursed.

"I did not," I said—"

"Don't repeat it!"

"Well!"

"Well, what, Algernon?"

"Well—just plain well—that was what I said when you said I cursed.

"I guess I've got ears—and if you put an H where the W is in 'well' it will be nearer to the awful word you said.

Stops Sobbing

"Push—tush."

"Do-o-o-n't push-tush me!"

"Push—"

"D-o-o-o-n-t"

"—tush."

"You are awfully cruel to me. You know very well that the ambition of my life is to——"

"Eat oysters from the half shell."

"The ambition of my life is to find a lovely pearl in an oyster and to have it set in a ring and to wear the ring—because my name is Pearl and it would be so romantic——"

"For Pete's sake, get Rudy Vallee to croon that!"

Mrs. Pearl Gibbitson ceased sobbing. She sat up very straight and glared at her husband.

"Will you or will you not take me over to Skibby's for some oysters on the half shell?"

"I will."

Pearl Gibbitson beamed. "I knew you would!"

"—Not."

"Of all the mean—"

"—Refuse you. Come on, have an orgy. I'll telephone ahead for him to hire five more oyster openers and lay in 10 more bushels of the bivalves."

"I want oysters, not bivalves! And don't be funny.

"An oyster, my dear Pearl, is a bivalve."

She didn't heed him. She was dabbling with a powder puff at her third chin.

Mr. Gibbitson and Mrs. Gibbitson went down in the Floradora apartment elevator, together. It was a small elevator and the operator scarcely had elbow room when both went down together.

It was only three blocks over to Skibby's place. Skibby's was famous for his sea food and beer. And any person knows that beer cannot be famous if it is only 1-10 of 1 per centum alcohol. Skibby's was good old 5 per cent beer. Mrs. Gibbitson and Mr. Gibbitson sort of divided honors when they went there. She had about three dozen oysters from the half shell and he had about nine beers from the back-room bar.

They had moved down the room about half way to their favorite table when someone "Hoo-hooed."

"There's Imogene Trent and Claude," said Mrs. Gibbitson.

They went over and sat down with the Trents.

Mrs. Pearl Gibbitson and Mrs. Imogene Trent began to talk, leaning toward each other across the table so that Gibbitson and Trent could scarcely see each other, much less get in any conversation.

Likes to Talk

Next to oysters, Pearl Gibbitson loved conversation. She and Imogene Trent usually talked at the same time. This saved each one the bother of listening and enabled them to talk more.

On this occasion Mrs. Gibbitson was talking about a new dress pattern for "stouts" that she cut from a newspaper. Mrs. Trent was talking about the way she made an excellent brand of fudge with peanut butter and marshmallow whip and other gooey ingredients.

Algernon Gibbitson managed to get Claude Trent's eye. He winked and jerked his head bar-room-ward.

"Excuse me," each one murmured.

Their wives nodded and continued to talk.

Claude drank quite a lot. He said it was to forget that his name was Claude.

Algernon drank quite a lot. He said it was to forget his wife's yen for oysters.

"Honest, old man," Claude said (they always took a few shots of straight stuff before they started on the beer), "if we didn't have a can-opener in our apartment we'd starve to death."

"Yeah? Well, if there were no oyster-openers in the world I'd be a dashed sight better off."

Pearl still got a yen for raw oysters?

Yen! It's more than a yen; it's a tenacious and scandalous and fatal disease with her.

Oysters won't hurt her, will they?

No, but it's her continual yapping for them, Claude."

"Call me Trent, and let's say, friendly. Imogene was telling me."

He paused to drink.

"That's nothing. Pearl is always telling me."

"Telling you what?"

"Anything, everything. What I mean is she is always telling me something except when she isn't saying she wants to go to Skibby's for just a bit of oysters.

I mean Imogene was telling me that Pearl eats an awful lot of oysters. They seem to make her—I mean she's quite—

Fat. Say it. It's the only word. But can you imagine her excuse.

Appetite, I suppose, old man."

Algernon Gibbitson paused to make a gesture to Eddie the man behind the mahogany. They were served. They drank.

"What I mean, Claude—er Trent, old man, is that Pearl has the damndest excuse if I must say so; she claims that it isn't the oyster at all, but she just won't ever be happy until she finds a nice pearl in some raw oyster."

Claude's Plan

"Lurrul?"

"No, Pearl."

"That's what I said."

Pearl says if she can find a pearl she will have it mounted in a ring and always wear it because her name is Pearl and it would be so romantic."

"Can you tie that one, Gibbitson? She eats three or four dozen raw just looking for a pearl. Reminds me of the girl who ordered 20 cocktails just for the cherries."

I offered to buy her a pearl ring, but no, she's got to find one all by herself in a raw oyster."

Trent laughed. He slapped Gibbitson on the back. He laughed again.

"You got a fat idea of a joke."

"Wait, listen—no, wait—er—Eddie—a couple more."

Eddie served them.

"Look at me, Gibbitson—behold brains. I got it solved!"

"Yeah? Solved what? Why you were born looking the way you do?"

"I'm she—I'm she—I mean I'm serious. I got your problem solved. I got brains. Your wife eats three or four dozen raw oysters every day or so."

"Sometimes twice a day."

"——looking for a lurral—I mean pearl. When she finds one she'll have it rung on a set, demmit, set in a ring, and she'll be satisfied. I got it straight?"

"Right. I just told you that."

Wait—you step out and buy yourself a nice loose pearl. Next time you come here, about the time she's on her twenty-ninth or thirtieth oyster, you get her to look at the woman with the funny hat—that will make her look—you then shove this pearl you bought under one of th' remaining oysters. She'll find it—great! she won't have a leg to stand on!"

"I wouldn't go so far as to say that," Mr. Gibbitson said, as one who knows, "but it's one swell idea—hey, Eddie, a coupla more whatais!"

They went back to the table. Mrs. Gibbitson and Mrs. Trent hadn't missed them. They were still talking at the same time.

Trent winked when he and Gibbitson parted outside of Skibby's sea food (and beer, etc.) emporium.

Plan Fails

"Now, you see, Algernon, I'm happy and you are happy. It makes you happy to take me out like this."

"Tish-push—I mean pish-tish—never mind," said Algernon.

Pearl Gibbitson beamed. Algernon was pleasant after one of her orgies, for the first time she could remember. She believed she finally had him trained.

This was on a Tuesday.

Friday night Claude Trent went to his lodge meeting and dropped in at Skibby's afterwards. He found Algernon Gibbitson draped over the bar. He seemed to be weeping into a glass of something tall and amber and redolent of rye.

"Trouble, old man?" Trent asked anxiously.

Gibbitson looked at him.

"You, huh?" he said with a damp sneer. "You're the guy with brains, huh?"

"Aw, what's itching you, Gibbitson?"

"You had it solved — your giant brain! Told me to buy a pearl, huh!"

"Oh, gee! Did you work it? Celebrating, huh?"

"Work it? I paid $39.50 for a pearl. I slipped it under one of friend wife's oysters like you said—like the idea that came out of that damn big brain of yours—and what happened? She wolfed it?"

"Wolfed it?"

"Crushed it to smithereens with her teeth!"

"Eddie," said Trent, keeping out of striking distance of Gibbitson, "two more — double strength!"

BIG IDEA DEPARTMENT

To all men worthy of the name:

Picking up a paper somebody had left on my neighbor's porch by mistake, I was surprised to learn that a dollar is now worth a dollar and fifteen cents. A great many honest citizens must have dollars and realize they have done nothing to earn the extra fifteen cents, and therefore have no real right to it. After giving the matter a deal of thought, I have decided that the only honorable thing for such citizens to do is donate this superfluity to my Campaign Committee.

Pinchot's Legal Victory Is Triumph for Justice

There was never any doubt that to cast out the 60,000 Luzerne County votes which Francis Shunk Brown sought to have declared null and void because they were perforated would have been unfair to the voters, who had nothing to do with the perforation, and to Gifford Pinchot, who, without the Luzerne County vote, would not have received the Republican nomination for governor. But it is reassuring nevertheless to have the Supreme Court deny Brown's plea—for fairness and the law are, unfortunately, not invariably one and the same thing.

Moreover, Pinchot was obviously uncertain what the decision would be, as was shown by his pre-empting the name "Square Deal Party" and preparing to run as an independent in case the court should sustain Brown. His uncertainty naturally made the public uneasy. So there is cause for rejoicing that justice has triumphed and the Republican nomination given to the man whom the people chose.

Thanks are due the Supreme Court, and especially to our fellow-Pittsburgher, Robert S. Frazer, acting chief justice, for the celerity with which the decision was handed down.

Criminal Court Faces Extreme Congestion

The report that an unprecedented number of cases has piled up for disposition by Quarter Sessions Court when it resumes business in September makes it again relevant to inquire if the court is justified in suspending jury trials for two months.

The question was raised by the Sun-Telegraph on July 1, when the courts went on summer schedule. Attention was called at that time to the facts that Common Pleas Court was about 14 months behind in its work, that the two additional judges appointed to that court some years ago to help relieve its congestion were almost constantly on duty in Quarter Sessions, and that, in addition, it was habitually necessary to call in judges from other counties, sometimes as many as four at a time, to help dispose of criminal cases. In view of the situation, it was suggested, the courts were not justified in closing for the summer.

The suggestion appears to have been amply warranted by what has since occurred. Police magistrates, aldermen and justices of the peace have been holding defendants for court in great numbers. The list of cases awaiting action by the grand jury is said to be a third larger than at this time last year. With 1,500 cases to be disposed of, according to present estimates, the grand jury's inquiry is expected to require a full month. That means that if the accused are to receive the prompt trials to which they are entitled, judges will have to be assigned who should be sitting in Common Pleas Court and others will have to be summoned from other counties. And even then it is doubtful if the docket will be cleared as speedily as is desirable.

This could have been avoided if the courts had not taken the long summer recess. We know of no reason for suspending for two months other than that it has been the custom. It is a custom that dates back to a time when the courts were not so busy, and is not suited to present conditions.

Public Will Approve Completing Airport

While it is true that the ballot on which citizens of Allegheny County voted $1,500,000 for the municipal airport stipulated that the money was to be used for the acquisition of land, it was the general impression that with the city's supplementary appropriation of $500,000 ample funds would be available for the entire project. The revelation that an immense additional sum will be required to give us a first-class airport is a disappointment, but the citizens will be satisfied with nothing less.

Public sentiment will approve, though reluctantly, the County Commissioners' decision to spend another million dollars on the project, since, without such expenditure, it seems, we will have nothing but a tract of graded land. Norman F. Brown, county director of public works, promises that that will be enough to provide a field suitably equipped for commercial aviation purposes and that it will be ready in five months. Eventually, of course, we expect an airport with the A1A rating of the Department of Commerce, which we were told we should have.

Much of the bitterness and suspicion with which the matter has been discussed lately would have been avoided if Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong had taken the public more into his confidence as to what was being done and what remained to be done.

This unexpected call on the taxpayers for another million of dollars—for, of course, the citizens will have to pay off the bonds which the commissioners so nonchalantly decide to issue—will be received with none too good grace by taxpayers already groaning under a high tax rate.

The commissioners owe it to the citizens to relieve them of part of their burden by finding other sources of revenue besides taxes on real estate. Probably, if the commissioners were of a mind to practice economy, the million dollars could be saved, without impairment of the public service, by cutting expenditures here and there on other county activities.

Pittsburgh's Central Position Is Big Asset

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has been analyzing population statistics, as reported for the census, and announces with some pride that half the people of the country live in the territory served by its lines.

That is just another way of saying that Pittsburgh, hub of the Pennsylvania system, midway between New York and Chicago, Washington and Detroit, is within a night's ride of more than 60,000,000 people.

Our central position is an important asset. It gives Pittsburgh advantages as a distributing point. It should make the city one of the nation's greatest aviation centers.

LEONARDO DA VINCI

By Archibald Henderson

Throughout the ages the scientific and the artistic have been regarded as polar aspects of genius. Indeed, it is commonly believed, and on good grounds, that science and art are dissimilar, if not mutually antipathetic. But a new spirit has come over the world in modern times, and we are coming to realize that in the famous architect, the distinguished engineer, even the great mathematician may be concealed the true creative artist.

The creator of Monsieur Dupin, the ingenious author of "The Murders in the Rue Morgue," the famous solver of cryptograms and ciphers, was a genius in the art of the short story; Edgar Allan Poe. The Nobel prize for literature was awarded, some years ago, on a division, to a famous engineer, who was likewise a brilliant dramatist, author of "Mariana," "The Son of Don Juan" and many other plays; Jose Echegaray.

The Rev. Charles L. Dodgson was an excellent mathematician, who wrote a number of useful and valuable scientific works; but he is known to the world primarily as "Lewis Carroll," the author of "Alice in Wonderland" and other delightful and clever fantasies for children—and for grown-ups!

The supreme exemplar of the multiple genius is Leonardo da Vinci, equally great, according to the highest judges, as artist and as scientist. He was born in 1452 at Vinci, some 20 miles from Florence, and the legitimacy of his birth colored with melancholy his entire life. He was reared by his grandfather, and lived an unnatural youth, without the constant association and fostering care of his parents. This experience bred in him a spirit of repression. He became self-sustained, introspective, imaginative and brooding. Nature, with its beauties and mysteries, fascinated him endlessly, and he found release for his inner spirit in the effort to reproduce nature's infinite variety of form, color and proportion.

At the age of 17, he became the pupil of the Florentine painter, Andrea del Verrocchio, and rapidly developed the artistic qualities which his father had observed him to possess. At the age of 20, he won the distinction of membership in the Guild of Florentine Painters. His genius took a wide range; and displayed itself in high excellence in many forms. As analyzed by Tucker in The Gift of Genius: "He was a sculptor in marble and in bronze. He was a musician of no mean ability. He was an anatomist whose anatomical drawings are useful even unto this day; and he was the first to classify animals into the vertebrate and the invertebrate and to describe the laws of respiration. He was the first to describe correctly the structure of plants.

He was an inventor anticipating the flying machine, the camera, the breech-loading cannon, the revolving skillet, the mincing machine, the swimming belt, the wheelbarrow, the composition of certain explosives, the paddle wheel, and the smoke stack. He was a scientist who first described the laws of light and shade and who suggested the undulatory theory of light and heat, steam as a motive power in navigation, the laws of combustion, the circulation of the blood before Cesalpino and Harvey, and, previous to Copernicus, the theory of the earth's movements.

Leonardo was a philosopher, who set down many aphorisms, penetrating in their veracity and acuteness. The genius is often asked how he finds time to accomplish so much; Leonardo trenchantly observes: "Time abides long enough for those who make use of it." As well known as any tag from Shakespeare is Leonardo's first line: "The eye is the window of the soul." The artist who is always avid of praise and distructful of blame would do well to ponder Leonardo's pungent saying: "The judgment of an enemy is often nearer the truth than the judgment of a friend."

Leonardo had many great qualities, and perhaps also the defects of his qualities. He could concentrate mightily; but he required frequent relaxation from his various tasks. He had no single vocation; all his vocations were likewise avocations. He found recreation, not in in idleness, but in change from one form of work to another. He was an inveterate procrastinator; and he would freely contract to perform commissions he knew, at the time of accepting them, that he would never fulfill. The most talked-of painting in the world is his La Jaconde, or the Mona Lisa. His enigmatic smile, according to Tucker, represented Leonardo da Vinci's own outlook on life, and depicted the amused superiority which he had gained as compensation for his resentment against an unkind deal of fate and a frequent misunderstanding of his plays in this ill-conditioned game called life.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

The hardest job you have to tackle is—PEOPLE.

You spend more time on that job and you use up more energy than on any other.

People! They get your goat—they gum up your program. You're always getting mad at them or sorry for them or bored with them. You labor furiously to understand them or—what seems much more important!—to make them understand you. But they don't and it exasperates you. Why are they so stupid, so onery? Why do they meddle and make unreasonable demands and graft and gabble?

If they'd only work with you, or leave you alone in peace, then you could really get somewhere. But they won't. They're always interfering. And, to tell the truth, you can't seem to leave them alone either. The more they bother you, the more you want to change them or, at least, get even with them. The thought of them becomes a habit—an obession—

Then your mood will change. You'll get disgusted with yourself. You shouldn't be like that. You ought to like people—lots of people. You should be able to get along with anyone. Particularly with your own family. It's unnatural to be so bored and peevish. You'll stop it. You'll make yourself remember that every person is your fellow man. You'll love everyone! You'll be helpful to everyone! And then, of course, everyone will love you, and understand you and do what you want.

But, worse luck, it doesn't turn out that way. After a brief period of sweetness and light, you're back in the same old sog. Still fumbling around, fumbling and fretting, trying to like and be liked by everyone.

Stop it! You can't do it and it isn't necessary that you should. You need only a few friends at most. As for the rest, stop fussing about them. And stop letting them fuss you. They are what they are—let them be. God didn't appoint you as deputy to check up on the whole human race. And you'll only get a pain in the neck if you try to do so. Let people be themselves—however far they may be from your fancy. Treat them as you do your other neighbors—the trees, the birds and the clouds. Amiably, tolerantly, with courteous indifference.

There is nothing unnatural in such indifference. You're not queer because you can't like most people. And they are not criminal if they can't like you. That's your right—and theirs. Then why all the bellyakin?

And this applies quite as much to your family as to an chance acquaintance. You are under no obligation to like people merely because they share your blood—and they are under no obligation to be pleased by you. A father or mother, a sister or brother, may be strangers to you at heart. But what of it? Their natures may be fitted for much more important jobs than understanding you. And you may be a much more useful and colorful person if you aren't wrapped up in them.

"Live and let live"—that's the oldest of axioms. But there isn't one mortal in a million that has the sense to do it. What a grand business life would be if we could!

To Fill the Day

To fill the day I ask
Some love, some mirth;
But, first of all, a task
To prove my worth.

A task to tax my powers
Of thought and strength,
A task to brim my hours
Through day's bright length.

Proud ships must know wind's stress
And tempest's voice,
And not in idleness
Could I rejoice.

I need, to fill the day,
Laughter and song;
Glad moods and moments gay
To life belong.

These are to quicken earth;
But first I ask
Always, to prove my worth,
Some well-loved task.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

Indeed, by choosing his strains of moth, Goldschmidt has been able to produce any degree of intersexuality he likes.

The earlier in development the moment when the original under-dog genes catch up with those of the opposite sex and become top-dog, the more the creature is transformed away from its original sex.

And when the catching-up occurs before the rudiments of adult organs are laid down in the chrysalis, there is a complete reversal of sex. The division of the race into two equal battalions, one solidly male, the other solidly female, seems at first sight fundamental and inevitable. But the distinction can be set at naught not only by the slipping of a chromosome cog, but by a slight defect in timing.

H. G. Wells

After one speed, and you throw the whole harmony out of gear.

Various rather similar phenomena have been observed in mandomesticated pigs and goats.

That the existence of these sex intermediates is determined by heredity is shown by some strange facts which Mr. J. R. Baker has brought back from the New Hebrides.

In the northern island of this Melanesian archipelago, intersexual pigs are extremely abundant, making up perhaps 15 or 20 per cent of the whole male porcine population.

They are called by a special name (rawe or ndre) and are employed in religious and social ceremonies. At every step a chief makes in rank, for instance, so many have to be sacrificed. Now, if in Britain the acceptance of a knighthood were necessarily bound up with the ritual slaughter of a number of inter-sexual pigs, there would be a great demand for sows which produced such valuable monstrosities. This is precisely what has happened in Melanesia.

The rawes are modified males, which owe their existence to a single recessive sex-linked or X-borne gene. Sows carrying this gene will produce some intersexes in every litter; and such mothers are eagerly sought after and command high prices. As a result of this artificial selection, the proportion of inter-sexes has grown until it is hundreds of times greater than in the pigs of any other country.

This is one of the prettiest examples of the power of selection, given an initial variation, to build up fantastic types. Here artificial selection has turned an abnormality into a normal component of the race.

In our own species quite parallel phenomena may occur. There are about two thousand well-documented cases of children which inclined to female in their external characters, but had male ducts and testes (which, however, are retained in the belly), and sometimes a more or less well-developed uterus. These children have often been brought up and even married as girls, but masculine instincts appeared after puberty.

Thus, beneath the calm orderly development of the individual there is war in the nuclei, and in all of us, male or female, the rival forces are present, one outnumbered by the other.

In rare cases the battle nearly results in a draw, and that draw marks itself in indeterminate structure. And even when there is a definite win the defeated side may regain a little ground. Various things may go wrong.

The chromosomes may not be quite correctly balanced, or they may get to work at slightly different rates, or there may be influences disturbing the ductless glands.

There are feminine men and masculine women in body and mind.

The interplay of internal secretions in our bodies is extraordinarily complicated; thus, if the outer peel of the adrenal gland is too active in a woman it may deepen her voice and give her masculine tastes and instincts; too much pituitary may give her abnormally large hands and feet; a deficient pituitary may prevent sexual maturing and keep an individual of either sex permanently infantile, and so on.

The reader, we may remark here, must not confuse these genuine inter-sex cases, in which structure and function are truly intermediate, with the alleged cases of which he may find accounts in pseudo-psychological works, of perfect men with women's souls and instincts and perfect women with men's.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The spotlight is, with all there is in the world to write up, being turned on the pay of columnists. Sime's theatrical weekly, Variety, started it with a stud. type banner: "Cal's No. 3 In Soft Jobs!" in welcoming the former president to columnar circles.

It has given other columnists a chance to lie about wages. My impression is most readers are surprised we are paid at all. My weekly stipend, so long as the whole gang has squealed, is $18 a week, Tuesday afternoons off, but I must furnish my own typewriter and eat out.

A guess is our whole outfit is headed for oblivion. The gloomy prediction is based on the fate of other rackets when financial facts leak out. Recently a critic said: "It is getting so anybody can be a columnist." There was certainly no intense struggle about it for me.

I fizzled like a wet fire-cracker on every other job on a newspaper before taking up columning. But as such a misfit have been able to live by grinding out a daily spasm like this. I am not alone in this good fortune. The halo of my fellows is the same tin hat.

The sooner the braggarts realize columning is one of those agreeable tricks Fate often plays on nobodies and quit blabbing about unearned increment, the longer we postpone the finish. I want to put it off until December 18. The next payment on the piano is then. Or out it goes.

The columnist believes he is quite a case. John Gilbert, a year ago, I imagine, had a similar conviction. I have said it before, and here it is again, nothing we do is at all important. We are happy victims of an extraordinarily lucky break, and if we quit tomorrow others would do it as well, if not better.

This is no effort to steal a bow as a shrinking violet. None of us is freighted with modesty. Each believes—I know I am—the best in the business. That is the trouble. We are top heavy with the divine afflatus they call ego.

We tell our readers daily what we ate last night, who—as though everybody couldn't guess—paid the check, the night club we visited, the book we enjoyed and now we tattle about the size of the pay check. Actors used to do most of the talking about themselves, and look what happened. If I keep on in this depressing vein I'll do away with myself or something.

To my notion there were two great columnists—Eugene Field and Bert Leston Taylor. The nearest runnerup is Franklin P. Adams. Nothing the rest have done has not been done by Field and Taylor. We merely flounder about trails they blazed.

I enjoy columns of others chiefly because I belong to the guild. But I am as conscious of their deficiencies—I speak solely of New York—as I am of my own. The theme of every column is a personal exploitation, an asinine supplication for the reader to remark: "What a devil of a fellow!"

* * *

As average humans, columnists rate just as high as the next fellow, but no higher. I know only two columnists who interest me conversationally or in their writing. And I know of none I interest in either capacity. I find them unfailingly dull company.

* * *

With all the signed columns broadcast to the world with intimate details or our shirts, ties and familiarities with the great, no living columnist is as well known among thinking people as Frank Ward O'Malley, who was just a reporter on the old Sun, never signed a story or wrote a word about himself in his newspaper days.

There is one glorious high spot in columning no other job I know attains. A fellow can devote the entire working hours of the day feeling sorry for himself—and be paid for it. For instance!

Isn't It So?

It is luckier to climb the ladder of fame than to walk under it.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Members of your family anger you when they refuse to make themselves over according to a pattern you favor.

You think your ideas of what they should or should not do or think is far superior to what they believe to be best.

In other words your standards differ.

This often happens in a family circle.

As a parent you feel that your greater age and experience ought to be respected and sought.

But when young folk reach their majority they should have acquired the ability to think and evolve some good ideas.

These ideas may not coincide with yours, but if they are founded on good logic why not show that you think them worthy of consideration and a try out?

Where do you stand with people of your own age?

Are you so superior or a "general run of the mine?"

More than likely you are an average parent and you want your offspring to do and be better than you are, don't you?

Don't try to stifle individuality and their efforts to steer and follow a course different from yours if it has a laudable goal.
